Congress Refuses To Quit, Passes Ramspeck Bill

44 Democrats Join in Defeat Of Leaders' Adjournment Plan; Civil Service Measure Covers In Some 200,000 Workers

The Day in Congress

CONGRESS yesterday completed action on the Ramspeck bill to extend Civil Service status to some 200,000 additional Government employes. Its approval by the President was considered certain.

A COALITION of House Democrats and Repubicans defeated majority leaders' attempts bring about sine die adjournment of this Congress. The vote was 191 to 148.

THE WALTER-LOGAN BILL for review of regulations issued by administrative agencies was slated for Senate consideration Friday. Page 3.

Act Faces Delay

Administration leaders yesterday swept the Ramspeck Civil Service bill over its last congressional hurdle, and on to certain signing by the President.

Senate approval was won, without debate, on a voice vote at 12:50 p. m. A little more than two hours later the measure passed the House by a roll-call vote of 206 to 139.

Representative Ramspeck (Democrat) of Georgia, who steered his bill through a barrage of last-minute attacks launched by Republicans and Democrats, was jubilant over the result, and said that passage of the measure made possible "for the first time in our history a nearly 100 per cent merit system in the Government service."

Not yet printed in final form when its passage came, the bill will be sent along to the White House in two or three days. The measure has had the backing of President Roosevelt and his aides as a part of their Government reorganization program.

According to the Civil Service Commission, it will be "many months" before the benefits of the legislation will be extended to all Government employes eligible for them.

Major results of the bill are these:

It authorizes the President to bring under the Civil Service laws between 200,000 and 300,000 jobs in the executive branch of the Government—all except those in the Works Projects Administration, the Tennessee Valley Authority, the "policy making" positions filled with the consent of the Senate and the positions of assistant district attorney.

It opens the way for holders of jobs brought into the classified service to obtain for themselves civil

'Stay on Duty'

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Republicans teaming up with 44 House Democrats yesterday tripped up the Administration's adjournment plans, 191 to 148.

The vote, a sweeping victory for the "stay on duty" slogan of the Republican minority, disposed of the adjournment issue, probably until Christmas.

The Republican - Democratic coalition, responsible for many a White House defeat before the President's reelection to a third term only a week ago, dealt the Democratic leadership its first postelection setback without a word spoken in debate.

President Roosevelt's name had never personally figured in the adjournment effort. Through his leaders, he had left the issue "up to Congress." After the vote, he was asked if it made any difference to him. Smiling, he declared it didn't. He said he had no additional defense measures to submit to Congress at this time, and only Army and Navy promotions to propose.

The House tally sheet showed 144 Republicans, 44 Democrats, 2 Progressives and 1 American-Laborite voted against adjournment, and only 148 Democrats voted to go home. Republicans voted as a solid bloc.

Immediately after the House vote, the Senate, which had been waiting for the sine die resolution in readiness for adjournment last night, recessed until Friday. Senate Majority Leader Barkley said no adjournment move would be initiated in the Senate. The House adjourned overnight to resume routine sessions today.

Many Issues Revived

With no Administration legislation in prospect, "unfinished business," slated for the scrapbasket had Congress adjourned, suddenly assumed new importance. Senate advocates of the House-approved Walter-Logan bill and the Smith amendments to the Wagner Labor Relations Act jockeyed for position. Amendments to the Johnson Act became again a pressing question. The House Appropriations Committee looked to 1941 spending needs and the Ways and Means Committee to its tax studies.

Speaker Rayburn said only that the motion to adjourn would not soon be renewed, probably not during the life of the Congress. The session, which already has run longer than all but three of its predecessors, will set an all-time record if it sits until Christmas.

House Majority Leader McCormack, who offered the adjournment motion, said only that the Democratic leadership had "no alibis" to offer. He noted that there were a great many absentees, but said the vote probably would have been the

A.F.L. Talks 'Waste Time,' Lewis Says

C. I. O. Begins Drive To Draft Murray Despite Assertion He Is 'Not a Candidate'

In 'Nation's Interest'

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, in a message to the A. F. L. convention, urged labor's leaders "with the interest of the Nation at heart," to bring about labor peace. Page 3.

'Peace Resolution'

By George B. Bookman.
Post Staff Writer

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 19. Hopes for an early peace between the two factions of organized labor were punctured here tonight when John L. Lewis, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, declared that unity talks with the American Federation of Labor would be "a waste of time."

His fighting ultimatum, studded with slashing taunts at William Green, A. F. of L. president, was wildly received by the majority of delegates here for the third C. I. O. convention.

They responded by voting to continue the three-man C. I. O. peace committee, but laid down as their condition for unity with the A. F. of L. that every C. I. O. organization must be chartered by William Green's body.

Looking hard at the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' delegates, Lewis referred sarcastically to the "piercing wail and lament" whose tenor, he said, was "Peace, ain't it wonderful."

Drive to Draft Murray

But when the vote on the Lewis-indorsed "peace resolution" finally came, no voice was raised against it.

Sidney Hillman, the Amalgamated's president, and National Defense commissioner, is understood to have been asked by President Roosevelt to try to effect labor peace.

The C. I. O. took its position on labor unity just as the wheels of a "draft Philip Murray" movement were beginning to grind, looking to choice of a successor to Lewis.

Murray, 54-year-old vice president of the C. I. O. and the Mine Workers, told the convention this morning: "I am not a candidate for presidency of the C. I. O." The Scottish-born miner had been the favorite of the delegates to step into Lewis' shoes when he keeps his promise to "pay off his election bet" he lost on Wendell L. Willkie.

Believe Murray will Accept

Surprised as most of the convention was to hear Murray speak "what is beating within my bosom," it was still believed tonight that he would be the next president of the C. I. O.

Highest union officials thought—perhaps wishfully, perhaps not—that Murray could be persuaded to forego his known dislike for high office on the promise that he have a free hand as C. I. O. president to deal with the issues of Communism, withholding of dues payments and labor peace in his own way.

The climax of Lewis' speech came when, shaking his great fist, he invited the followers of Hillman to leave the C. I. O. if they wished.

Lewis said, in typical scriptural style:

"If they find the night too dark and the way too rough, let them sit by the wayside and gather in the shadow of some friendly tree."

There was some uneasy shifting among the delegations of the Clothing Workers and the Textile Workers, but not a man rose from his seat.

The Lewis-Hillman boardwalk "peace pact" between friendly en-

Diplomats Seek Accord Among Sofia, Hungary And Rumania

By Robert Parker
By the Associated Press

Budapest, Hungary, Nov. 19. German and Italian diplomacy, which Axis spokesmen call "a form of war," appeared tonight to be directed toward a new agreement among Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria as a prelude to a fresh campaign against the British Empire.

The German army in Rumania, estimated by conservative neutral observers at more than 300,000 and possibly 500,000 men, is a possible guide to the trend.

Italian sources in Rome asserted Bulgaria and Rumania would join in forthcoming war moves of Germany and Italy and that Spain's decision would become known after Spanish Foreign Minister Serrano Suner, fresh from conversations yesterday with Reichsfuehrer Hitler, reached Madrid.

Bulgaria Seeks Outlet

A Rome dispatch said that L'Avvenire, Italian newspaper, gave credence to a Belgrade report that Russia would seek to gain Turkish acceptance of the Axis plan for southeastern Europe.

Bulgaria's reward for cooperation would be an outlet to the Aegean, through Greece, while Spain would gain Gibraltar and perhaps more of Morocco—this was the hypothesis generally agreed upon by observers in Rome and elsewhere.

A Rome dispatch said diplomatic circles believed Germany would seek Spain's permission to occupy the west coast of Morocco to complete the western Mediterranean jaw of the "vise" with which the Axis would try to squeeze the British.

Greeks Have Taken Steps

Tied in with these were the assertions of diplomatic sources at Bern, Switzerland, that a German-Bulgarian drive into Greece toward the Aegean "may be effected at any hour."

A Greek spokesman at Bern declared that the Greek high command had taken all necessary steps to meet such an attack. Foreign military observers believed, however, that Greece would need Turkish aid.

Of the bare facts, these were fore-

City of 1,000,000 Shattered Like Coventry, Berlin Reports Assert

By Percival Knauth
Copyright by New York Times

Berlin (Wednesday), Nov. 20. German bombers taking off from bases in France, Belgium and Holland launched an all-night attack on Birmingham which is believed to have destroyed that city even more thoroughly than Coventry was destroyed a few nights ago, it is reported in Berlin.

The attack was carried out by massed formations of bombers, it is stated, which dropped thousands of bombs on armament factories and public utility works throughout the city.

In the early hours of this morning, while German planes were still raining destruction on Birmingham, the attack was already described as a "great success."

Defenses Called Helpless

British antiaircraft defenses are reported to be helpless against the steady stream of German machines which are attacking in waves, from different points, at varying heights. The pilots, it is said, can clearly see their targets in the light of numberless fires blazing throughout the city.

[Birmingham, 113 miles northwest of London, is a city of more than 1,000,000 population, the site of huge metal and automotive energy as it was in the World War, and the home of the late Neville Chamberlain.

[The British did not specifically identify Birmingham as the focal point of the attacks, but admitted two Midland towns were under assault, comparable to that on Coventry. They said 12 other Midland cities and the port of Liverpool also were attacked.]

Converge in Mass

The Birmingham attack started just after dark, it is stated, when clearing skies gave promise of favorable weather throughout the night.

Flying into England on a wide front, German planes converged on their objective, attacking in a mass, while new formations followed.

The first wave dropped numerous incendiary bombs, it is stated, which started more than 20 huge fires. From then on the city was brilliantly illuminated so that the formations following were able easily to spot their burning target and drop their bombs in full flight.

Weather Clears Up

At this writing the attack is said to be still in progress. Its destructive effect is held by informed quarters to be greater than the raid which razed Coventry only a few nights ago. No estimate is forthcoming of the number of planes involved. The operation is described, however as a "large-scale attack" which is the superlative term in German military phraseology.

The waves of German bombers it is reported, attacked "concentrically, en masse, and were stepped at various altitudes." The weather, it is reported, cleared up entirely as the night wore on so that "all squadrons reached their objective."

First reports which mentioned only a "city in central England" were far more cautious in their es-

Incident off Tampico

Report That U. S. Navy Halted Mexican Ship Stirs Indignation

Some Newspapers Quote Crew's Charge That Destroyers Acted in Territorial Waters, but Others Reject Allegation

By the Associated Press

Mexico City, Nov. 19.—Some Mexican newspapers expressed indignation today at a reported halting of the inbound Mexican tanker Cerro-Azul and the Honduran freighter Ceiba, 8 miles off Tampico, by United States destroyers.

The crews of the vessels, declaring they were well within Mexican territorial waters, said they were stopped yesterday and ordered to stand by for inspection.

It was in this same vicinity that official Mexican reports say the presence of the destroyers last Saturday led the master of one German merchantman to scuttle his ship and three others to scurry back to Tampico in the belief the warships were British.

The crews of the Cerro-Azul and the Ceiba identified the destroyers as the Plunkett and the 210 and 233. (Jane's Fighting Ships list the 210 as the Broome and the 233 as the Gilmer.)

The newspapers contended that Mexican ships are on neutrality patrol in Mexican waters and that no aid is needed from the United States or anyone else.

The newspaper Novedaes declared the United States' handling of continental defense "is not all that could be desired" if the reported part her warships have played off Tampico is an example.

[The New York Times quoted Mexican papers as saying both ships, at different times in the day, were obliged to heave to and were not allowed to proceed until their captains were questioned, their papers examined and the written registry of their cargo checked.

[According to the Tampico newspaper El Mundo, all this happened

Greek Appeal For Aid Gets Sympathy Here

U. S. Inventories War Material Available For Besieged Nation

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

The United States Government, promising "sympathetic consideration" of an urgent appeal from Greece, last night took inventory of airplanes and other war material available for export to the embattled Balkan nation.

Defense officials were already studying the possibilities of releasing planes, guns and munitions to Greece when Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles formally acknowledged receipt of the Greek appeal for arms and gave the pledge of sympathetic consideration.

Welles told his press conference that Cimon Diamantopoulos, Greek Minister to the United States, had discussed his country's military needs at the State Department at the same time American Minister Lincoln MacVeagh was dispatching from Athens the Greek government's request.

Planes Urgently Needed

Meanwhile, in Athens, Press Minister Theo Nicoloudis told foreign correspondents Greece is appealing to the "free countries" of the world for "planes . . . planes . . . planes."

Nicoloudis, according to an Associated Press dispatch, urged that friends of Greece should not be misled by her successes in the first three weeks of the war against Italy.

"We won't make the same mistake as heroic Finland, which, content with her first successes, failed to ask for help from abroad," he said. "Despite our epic victories, despite our unshakable faith in our cause which is blessed by God, we appeal with all our force to the public opinion of our allies and of foreigners

Athens, Nov. 19.—Again relying chiefly on swift bayonet attacks, the Evzone troops won their breach in the Italian lines on the central front and took the village of Ersek on the Argyrokastron-Koritza Road.

It is also reported that Liaskovik, on the border midway between Koritza and Argyrokastron, has been taken; that part of the Italian counter-attacks have been beaten back; and tonight's communique says there have been successful new offensives on the Morava Mountain ranges.

Eleven Fascist planes were downed in front-line fighting and no Greek planes were lost, it is claimed.

Ultimatum Given To Ankara, Press Hints, Opening Attack on Reich

By the Associated Press

Ankara, Turkey, Nov. 19.—Turkish newspapers warned the nation today that the danger of war was near.

[Strongest warning was a hint by the newspaper Yeni Sabah that Germany had already served demands of some nature on the Turkish government.

["We do not recognize the German right to hand us an ultimatum," the paper declared, in what seemed a back-handed disclosure of the possibility of Axis demands. There has been no previous official announcement or intimation of such action.—Editor's note.]

Turkey's Ambassador to Germany, home for consultation, conferred with President Ismet Inonu and other leaders.

The Turkish news agency quoted authoritative circles in Berlin as asserting that the Rome-Berlin Axis wants to include Turkey in Europe's "new order" and that Soviet Russia wants a naval base on the Persian Gulf.

All Turkish households were ordered to complete blackout preparations by December 1.

The official Turkish radio stressed tonight the "secrecy" of the visit of King Boris of Bulgaria with Adolf Hitler and the fact that a communique on the matter was not issued until two days afterward.

Press Attacks Germany

Government quarters avoided comment as to what Bulgarian cooperation with the German army might bring, but the press, which has consistently warned Bulgaria not to enter the war, fiercely attacked German policies.

"Germany can speak to us only as equals," said Yeni Sabah. "Thus far we understand the new order is to be a system wherein other nations take orders from Germany and Italy.

"Turkey was a free and sovereign nation when the Germans were still wild rovers in their forests, and will revolt against such slavery with all its might. Turkish leaders and politics are welded to values which the Germans consider false—the parliamentary system, courage, independence."

[Authorized Berlin sources disclosed that Franz von Papen, German Ambassador to Turkey, is "on a train headed in a southeasterly direction," by which it was assumed he is returning to Ankara. Von Papen came to Germany shortly before Hitler's conferences with Premier Molotoff. German sources have indicated Russia now is expected to help sway Turkey away from her British alliance, perhaps in preparation for a German drive to Suez.]

Nazis Tell Bulgar Claims

Copyright by New York Times

Sofia, Nov. 19.—A dispatch issued exclusively to Bulgarian newspapers by the German press agency outlining this country's claims for an outlet on the Aegean Sea, said today that this demand was within the framework of the "new order in Europe," and implied that Bulgaria would receive German help in securing such territory.

This message, coming after King Boris' trip to Berchtesgaden and the sudden press campaign of ten days ago calling for the return of territory long claimed by Bulgaria but now in Greek hands by virtue of the treaties ending the last World War, is given the highest importance here and it is generally realized that the King's journey was connected with this question.

The latest clamor in the press for revision coincided with the visit of Premier Molotoff to Berlin.

Tax Office Faces Shake-up

A major shakeup in the office of Collector of Taxes was indicated yesterday by District officials after a survey disclosed shortages in the Department of Vehicles and Traffic resulted from an inadequate system of collection.

Chatham M. Towers, collector of taxes, who is said to have reached retirement age, will be retired by the Commissioners. Porter G. Lumpkins, chief clerk of the Highway Department and a member of the three-man board which conducted the investigation of the shortages at the Vehicle Department, is in line for the job. Commissioners' action in this matter is expected Friday.

The special board of inquiry which probed a $2,025.80 shortage in the accounts, exonerated Miss Julia Vass, traffic department cashier, of responsibility for the missing money, but said she was "primarily to blame for failure to deposit the collections with the District collector."

Miss Vass is dead. She drank poison after she was suspended October 14.

Gifts to Chest Reach 49.84% Of Goal With 80,604 Givers

Slingin' Sammy Baugh, golden boy of the Washington Redskins, will call the signals today at the 12:30 o'clock luncheon of Community Chest workers at the Willard Hotel.

In the tenth-floor ballroom, which undoubtedly will be jammed to the windows, he will speak as representative of the Chest's group solicitation unit.

Rumor has it Baugh will describe the Chest drive as a big-time team driving forward toward the $2,000,000 goal which must be attained to assure adequate continuance of humanitarian work here next year.

As a prelude to expected improvement in reports, workers yesterday turned in pledges bringing the total to $996,950, with 80,604 givers, 49.84 per cent of the quota.

Dr. Leo F. Thiel, of Columbia Junior College (Takoma Park), told the 700 solicitors that he had found in a survey of Chest agencies that their social workers are self-sacrificing, and sympathetic with Washington's needy in their difficulties.

Despite the magnificence of the National Capitol, Thiel stated, "it is a shame to have to say that in the shadow of our great building there are men, women and children who lack the very elements of decent living."

He declared his survey had

Fires Break Out on Battleship And Destroyer in U. S. Yards

Camden, N. J., Nov. 19 (AP).—A fire below decks of the half-completed battleship South Dakota—second on the 35,000-ton warship since construction began two years ago—was quickly extinguished by workmen today and the New York Shipbuilding Co. said damage was "negligible."

(The fire was the third on a partly finished naval vessel in the United States this week. Flames that caused little damage broke out aboard the destroyer Gwynn at Boston Navy Yard last night, the second blaze there in three days.)

A New York Shipbuilding Co. spokesman said investigation indicated today's blaze here resulted from an employe's welding torch which ignited rubbish in a forward part of the hold.

A previous blaze, on October 11, 1939, was ascribed at that time to a hot rivet or welding sparks. The company discounted the possibility of sabotage in either case.

Eighteen workmen were examined by yard physicians after the fire this afternoon—but only one required hospital treatment. His condition was reported as good.

Seven of the 18 men were overcome by fumes within the hold and had to be helped out.

Strikers, Sanitary Still Deadlocked

The deadlock in the Sanitary Grocery Co. strike negotiations continued yesterday and left no doubt that the company's 225 stores in the Washington area would remain closed today, the strike's fifth day.

Union and company representatives, aided by Labor Department Conciliator Frank J. Sheehan, met for two hours yesterday without result. They adjourned at 5 p. m. to meet again at 4 p. m. today.

Funds Grant For New Bases Expected Soon

Quick allocation of funds for construction of United States naval and air bases on sites obtained from Great Britain was expected here last night as official interest centered in reported naval activities in the Caribbean and in developments on the French island of Martinique.

President Roosevelt gave a flat no to a press conference question as t owhether reports indicated important developments might be expected at Martinique. But when asked whether he thought the status quo could be expected to be maintained, he replied that he could not tell about things more than a few hours ahead and would hate to make predictions.

He refused any commtnt on the quickly abandoned attempt of German ships to leave Tampico, Mexico, last Saturday night, and the scuttling of one and hasty return to port of the others when naval craft, presumably American ships mistaken for British patrol vessels, were sighted.

Government officials likewise declined to comment on reports that United States destroyers had stopped neutral vessels and examined their papers in Mexican waters. The attitude was taken here that no official confirmation of the reports had been received and no comment, therefor, was in order.

Argentine Denies Criticism

At the same time, the Argentine Embassy here issued a denial that the Argentine government had expressed any opinion on negotiations between the United States and Uruguay and Paraguay regarding establishment of bases in the latter two countries. Press reports had represented Argentina as holding creation of such bases would be an encroachment on her natural sphere of influence.

The embassy said that the minister for foreign affairs, Dr. Julio A. Roca, had declared in a communique that his government "shall not use any other organ of expression on international matters than the ministry of foreign affairs."

Raiders Rouse Speculation

The situation at Martinique has drawn attention because of the presence there of a French aircraft carrier and more than 100 American-made planes, destined for France before that country's defeat. Both British and United States warships have been reported watching the island.

Information on activities of this country's neutrality patrol of naval and Coast Guard ships has always been closely guarded, but there was speculation last night on whether it might be attempting, in the Caribbean to prevent suspected merchant vessels from acting as supply ships for German raiders in estern Hemisphere waters.

The way was cleared Monday night for the United States to start spending some $60,000,000 on the British-granted bases with announcement that British authorities had agreed as to the sites to be used on British possessions from Newfoundland to British Guiana.

Plan Hidden Hangars

By the Associated Press

Tentative plans for installation of underground warplane hangars at the military bases recently leased from the British government have been drawn up by the War Department.

One of the tenets of air warfare, pictured almost daily in communiques from Europe, is the destruction of enemy airports and enemy airplanes at rest.

A leading Air Corps strategist for years has preached the doctrine that the only way to stop a bombing attack is to destroy the planes before they leave the ground.

On the assumption that any enemy of the United States, advancing across the Atlantic Ocean barrier, would first assault the air bases being set up off the continental coastline, the Army is giving serious thought to protecting its planes by burying them.

Repeal Johnson Act? Voters Divided With 54 Per Cent Now Favoring Change

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 19.—A few weeks before the November 5 election Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, made front-page headlines with a proposal to repeal the Johnson Act and clear the way for United States Government loans to Britain. Neither the Democrats nor the Republicans would touch the issue during the campaign, however.

Some indication of the close division of American sentiment on this issue is revealed today in a Nation-wide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion. The results make it appear to have been good political strategy—at least—for the major parties to avoid this particular issue in the Presidential campaign.

The survey shows that while a small majority favor making it possible for Britain to borrow here—even to the point of repealing the Johnson Act—opinion is so closely divided that a real knock-down-and-drag-out struggle may lie ahead before such a change could be effected.

Fifty-four Per Cent Favor Change

Some indication of the public's attitude can be found in the answers of a cross-section of American voters to the following question:

"The Johnson Act prevents any country which has stopped paying interest on its debt of the last World War from borrowing money in the United States. Would you approve of changing this law so that England could borrow money from our Government?"

Those with definite opinions on the question answered:

Favor changing act 50%
Opposed to changing act 46

An average of one voter in eight said he was undecided or without an opinion.

Democrats interviewed in the survey were more in favor of Johnson Act repeal (60 per cent in favor) than were Republicans (47 per cent in favor).

Sharp Shift Since June

That there has been some shift of opinion on the whole question of loans to Britain since last spring is indicated, however.

When the same question was put to voters at the end of May—before the collapse of France had darkened the war picture for Great Britain—65 per cent of those interviewed said "no" to any change in the Johnson Act. Only 35 per cent were in favor of clearing the way for British loans.

It is safe to say that more Americans look with sympathy toward such loans today than six months ago. But whether this sentiment will continue to grow may depend on the discussion given Senator King's resolution, and similar resolutions, when the new Congress meets in January.

Vichy, Nov. 19.—Marshal Petain was back in Vichy tonight after a two-day visit in Lyons which was marked by impressive manifestations of popular enthusiasm. It becomes clearer that, for the French, the marshal symbolizes hope.

There is good reason to suppose that these tours of inspection are not ended. The next may take the chief of state to Marseilles. His prestige and his hold on the nation seem to increase at each of these visits.

Hints of Future

One outcome of the visit to Lyons has been an indication—necessarily still very general—of the constitution which is to be given to France when "we shall be compelled to discuss the conditions of peace" to cite Marshal Petain's own words. The broad lines were known many weeks ago:

Division of the country into provinces, each under a governor, with the boundaries of these provinces conditioned by economic rather than by geographical factors; mayors of communities appointed instead of elected; parlimentary representation largely on a corporative basis.

In addition, Petain is considering the creation of a supreme court somewhat akin to that of the United States.

Most important of all, especially in the American view, is the measure of popular representation that will be accorded.

It is understood that Marshal Petain desires to retain the popular vote. He is cited as saying "the people certainly will have a voice in the matter." Nevertheless, it is not supposed that "universal suffrage" will continue in the old form; in any case it was a misnomer since women were not enfranchised.

But all these are questions for the future since peace still seems distant. Despite the fact that the press is controlled and its information very limited, even the man in the street can read between the lines, and he senses that there may be many more months of fighting, which means indefinite prolongation of that armistice which is neither peace nor war and which confers every right upon the victor.

Even Vice Premier Laval's newspaper, the Clermont-Ferrand Moniteur, intimates that many difficulties may arise, "even serious ones."

Naval Incident Stirs Mexicans

between 6 and 8 miles from shore off the mouth of the Panuco River This is well outside the international 3-mile limit but within the 9-mile limit Mexico claims for its territorial waters.

[This Mexican claim, said the Times, is based on an ancient treaty which has never been recognized internationally.

[The American Embassy refused any comment on the plea that it is not yet in possession of sufficient facts and is not informed of the instructions given to the American neutrality patrol ships in the Gulf of Mexico. It was said in general, however, that it is the duty of the neutrality patrols to ascertain the identity and business of all vessels within the zone entrusted to their vigilance.

[In Washington, Government officials declined to comment on the Mexican reports. The attitude was taken that no official confirmation of the reports had been received and hence no comment was called for. The Navy Department for weeks has steadfastly kept confidential all information on activities of its ships.]

[Some doubts were also expressed as to whether any violation of Mexican territorial waters actually occurred, even according to the Mexican definition. It should be underlined, in fact, that other Mexican newspapers, as for instance Ultimas Noticias, of Mexico City, clearly say that the incident occurred outside the territorial limit.

[The Mexican government had nothing to say, pending an investigation. Instructions were sent through the ministry of the navy to Rear Admiral Gabriel Carvallo, commander of the port of Tampico, to obtain statements from the captains of two vessels concerned, and to transmit them to Mexico City with the least possible delay.]

Leopold Reported On Visit to Hitler

Belgian King's Conference With Fuehrer Is Talked of in Berlin as Germans Hear Spain Has Decided to Join Axis

By C. Brooks Peters

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, Nov. 19.—The procession of kings and statesmen to Fuehrer Hitler's Bavarian mountain chalet may have received a new and highly significant addition today, with a report that King Leopold III of Belgium had visited the Fuehrer.

Official quarters maintained characteristic silence not only about this rumored visit but also about the subjects of yesterday's discussions among Hitler, Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop, Italian Foreign Minister Ciano and Spain's Foreign Minister Serrano Suner.

The visit of King Boris of Bulgaria to Berchtesgaden was revealed for the first time here this morning in a three-line announcement in the press.

Boris Talked of New Order

King Boris, the Germans explain, is at present on a private visit to Germany and has called on Hitler. The official news agency declares the "conversations carried on during King Boris' visit . . . served the interests of the new order in Europe."

Since German diplomatic consultations at present seemingly extend in all directions of the compass, it appears that the visit of Leopold is more than a probability.

Such a visit fits into the sketch of the comprehensive planning of the new order which semiofficial organs have been outlining with innuendo in the past few days.

There is no reason to suspect that any comprehensive outline of Sunday's, yesterday's or any conversations which may have taken place today on Berghof will be revealed from Berlin.

Semiofficially it is said here that "Spain has chosen her place on the side of the Axis."

Axis Meeting in Vienna

Copyright by New York Times

Vienna, Nov. 19.—The Axis foreign ministers arrived in Vienna tonight, and with Hungarian Foreign Minister Csaky and Premier Teleki are scheduled to arrange tomorrow for incorporation of Hungary into the "new order," and possibly also the cooperation of Hungary with the Far Eastern partner of the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo pact.

The agreement between Berlin, Budapest and Rome has already been settled through normal diplomatic channels, and Wednesday's conference will be devoted, therefore, to consideration of the final details—drafting and signing the treaty.

This treaty, it is assumed, will be in the form of a three-power pact which will be the first of a series of such between the Axis powers and their smaller neighbors in southeast Europe.

It is further assumed that the basis of these pacts will be a military guarantee by the Axis powers to each of the small nations of continued existence as a state in return for guarantees of loyal cooperation with the Axis in foreign affairs as well as the new social-political order in Continental Europe.

Some observers anticipate that a close bond will be established later between Europe's smaller states and Japan. The consensus, however, is that such is not the case, although it is expected that the spirit of the three-power pact—Berlin, Rome and Tokyo—undoubtedly will be reflected gradually in Axis treaties with all the other European states.

Each state's position in the new order as foreseen by Berlin and Rome depends upon several factors, including the speed and willingness with which each government accepts the new order, and the ability of each to carry out its part in establishing and maintaining the new order.

Announcement Due Friday

By Camille M. Cianfarra.

Rome, Nov. 19.—Rumania's and Hungary's adhesion to the tripartite pact is expected to be announced soon after the end of the meetings of the Axis foreign ministers with Hungarian leaders tomorrow in Vienna and with the Rumanian premier, Gen. Ion Antonescu, on Friday in Berlin, it was learned today.

Rumania's decision to join the Axis and Japan was understood to have been taken during conversations which Gen. Antonescu had with Premier Mussolini in Rome last week.

It is doubted that Hungary's and Rumania's participation in the pact was discussed between Hitler and Premier Molotoff. The fact that it will take place is regarded as a sign of Russia's passive collaboration with the Axis.

The definite alignment of Budapest and Bucharest with the Axis is considered important here in view of the fact that it will bring those powers into indirect collaboration with Russia. This, it is pointed out, will contribute to the consolidation of the anti-British bloc which the Axis is attempting to build in Europe.

Complete reserve is kept concerning the colloquy of King Boris of Bulgaria with Hitler. When Italian circles were asked whether the meeting was in connection with persistent reports of German armed collaboration with the Italian forces in Greece—which would necessitate the passage of German troops through Bulgarian territory—they replied that the visit was "an interesting manifestation of the cordiality of relations between Bulgaria and the Axis."

The fact that no denial was issued was taken as an indication that there was some foundation in the report.

Norse Warned Not To Jeer Again At Nazi Rallies

Stockholm, Sweden, Nov. 19.—Fritt Folk, official organ of Maj. Vidkun Quisling's Norwegian Nazi government, today published the following announcement by the chief of police of Bergen:

"The people's attitude during the last Nasjonal Samling (Nazi Party) meetings, at which leaders of the party made speeches, was disastrous and rendered police work extremely difficult.

"It is reminded that it is absolutely forbidden to whistle or shout or make provocative remarks about the German military or to sing the king's anthem. From now on the police will disperse all gatherings of people and do it with all means at their disposal. Even simple onlookers who are not taking part in demonstrations will be punished according to law."

New Earthquake In Bucharest

Bucharest, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—A strong earth tremor was felt here tonight. The observatory had not yet completed its report but said the shock was the worst since the main earthquake on November 10.

In Bucharest, pictures on upper floors were shaken from walls. Plaster was jolted from cracks opened by previous temblors.

Observers at Focsani reported the epicenter of the quake was about 40 miles distant in the direction of the Vrancea Mountains, as in the case of the earlier quakes.

Many houses in Focsani, already damaged, were hit hard by the new quake. The inhabitants were panic stricken.

President Asks AFL To Work for Peace

(Roosevelt Text, Page 34.)

By James Marlow
Associated Press Staff Writer

New Orleans, Nov. 19.—President Roosevelt today called upon labor's leaders "with the interest of the Nation at heart" to find a peaceful solution of the problems dividing their followers into opposing camps.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, sent immediate assurance to the Chief Executive that the A. F. of L. was willing "anywhere, any time, any place," to discuss negotiation with the Congress of Industrial Organizations now in convention at Atlantic City.

"We as a people today have the common determination to put our country above all else," the President said in a letter to Green read at the A. F. L. convention here.

There was no indication here that a similar message had been sent to the C. I. O.

Miss Perkins to Speak

Green late in the afternoon announced that Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins had been sent—and had accepted—an invitation to address the convention here.

It was the first time in three years, an A. F. of L. spokesman said, that the organization had asked the Labor Secretary to be present at its annual meeting.

"We're interested in the Department of Labor," said Green. "We fee lthat no matter what the personal feeling on the part of individuals, we should rise to the heights and recognize the head of the department."

Before the President's message was read a resolution was introduced asking the A. F. L. to favor legislation to outlaw the Communists as a political party.

Another resolution asked that Green's salary be raised from $12,000 to $25,000 as A. F. of L. head, the same sum paid John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O., by the United Mine Workers.

Emphasizing the need for national unity in any "emergency which might be forced upon us," President Roosevelt said:

"Among the things which labor will contribute, I venture to suggest, is an unselfish, a farsighted and a patriotic effort to bring about a just and an honorable peace within the now divided labor movement.

"Labor leaders with the interest of the Nation at heart and the advantage of their followers in mind, can, I am sure, find the way to reach such peace."

Message Applauded

When Green finished reading the President's words to the applauding convention whose slow-moving, flexible program could adapt itself, if necessary, to events in Atlantic City, he announced his reply:

"The committee representing the American Federation of Labor stands ready and willing to meet with a committee representing the C. I. O. for the purpose of negotiating a settlement anywhere, any time, any place.

"Your suggestion . . . that when men of honor and good intentions sit down together they can work out a solution which will restore the much needed harmony by unity or by a sensible working arrangement is coincidental with (the) recommendation of the (A. F. L.) executive council to the convention now in session."

Nathan Straus, administrator for the U. S. Housing Authority, predicted to the convention that when the defense program ends and this country returns to a peacetime economy perhaps 5,000,000 men would be thrown out of work.

He said plans to prevent that wholesale loss of jobs should include a public housing program of about 500,000 homes a year at the end of the defense emergency.

Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer of the Social Security Board said methods of protecting social security rights of defense employes and selectives are being studied.

Men going into the military service and civilian defense workers employed or to be employed by the Federal Government, Altmeyer said, require immediate attention lest they "lose the insurance rights they now have."

Lewis Calls A.F.L. Talks 'Waste of Time'

Calls Green a "Betrayer"

Lewis impaled the A. F. L., its president and other leaders in scorching words.

"William Green has betrayed his union and abandoned it," he said, charging that Green was not legally a member of any union.

Calling the A. F. L. president "a poltroon" and an "inherent pusillanimous traitor," Lewis charged that the A. F. L. would never accept the C. I. O. within its ranks because to do that, he recounted, would "disturb the balance of power" in the A. F. L. by bringing into the parent organization "a golden horde of 4,000,000 people."

Lewis "Dictator," Says Green

New Orleans, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—William Green said tonight John L. Lewis' attack on peace-seeking C. I. O. unions revealed him to be a "real dictator."

He said that the door of the A. F. L. is open to receive those unions which came under Lewis' fire at the Atlantic City convention earlier in the day.

"I interpret Lewis' address as an invitation to right-wing organizations which favor settlement of the differences in labor to get out of the C. I. O.," Green told reporters. "If these unions respond to Lewis' invitation to leave, they will find the door of the house of the A. F. L. open to receive them, if they desire to come back home."

"I think it would be a waste of time to make it appear there is any possibility of peace," Lewis said.

Reminding the assembly that Hillman's union had offered the convention a resolution urging exploratory peace talks with the A. F. L., Lewis threw back his head and asked sarcastically:

Explore the mind of Bill Green? I've done a lot of exploring into Bill's mind and I give you my word there's nothing there."

Doesn't Omit Others

In the same vein he referred to other members of the A. F. of L.'s executive council. William L. Hutcheson, of the carpenters; Thomas Rickert, of the United Garment Workers, and Matthew Woll, of the Photo Engravers.

"Any honorable peace plan that looks to absorption by the old labor movement of the new organizations will fail" as long as "certain people" are in control of the A. F. of L., he said.

Lewis demanded that the A. F. L. rescind its "infamous" action of two years ago in formally expelling nine C. I. O. unions from membership.

Then he condemned labor leaders who had broken away from the A. F. L. to join the C. I. O. movement but later had returned to the A. F. L. camp.

Lewis Attacks Dubinsky

"Where is Dubinsky?" asked Lewis, referring to David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, who led his organization back into the A. F. L. this year.

"He crept back into the A. F. L.," Lewis said of Dubinsky, "and now he sits like Rachel crying out in the wilderness against racketeers and crooks."

Dubinsky this week urged the A. F. L. to adopt an amendment empowering A. F. L. leaders to bar convicted criminals from official union posts.

Lewis also taunted Max Zaritsky, president of the Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers, another founder of the C. I. O., for returning to Green's federation.

Lewis' speech and the vote of the convention appeared to have left the labor peace situation exactly where it was before President Roosevelt made his latest peace appeal.

For sheer surprise, Murray's declaration that "I have no aspirations" was the biggest news as far as the rank and file at the convention were concerned.

Hillman Put on Spot

The speech, however, was generally called by delegates a rephrasing of Calvin Coolidge's famous "I do not choose to run."

"I am not a candidate for the presidency of the C. I. O.," the veteran lieutenant of Lewis said. "That decision has been reached by me. I imagine, and I think I have a right to make a decision once in a while."

To quiet any rumors that he had differed with his lifelong friend, Lewis, Murray added:

"I have a wholesome respect and great admiration, and affection bordering upon actual love for the president of this union."

In a slap at the work of Sidney Hillman, defense commissioner for labor, Murray said labor did not now have adequate representation in national defense.

Peace possibilities were derided in turn by Walter Burke, secretary of the Wisconsin Industrial Council; George Baldanzi, of the Textile Workers; James Matles, of the United Electrical and Radio Workers; Neal Weaver, of the Packing House Workers Organizing Committee; A. Van Bittner, of the United Mine Workers, and Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the miners.

Witness Denies Tapping Wires On High Court

Committee Counsel And Investigator Clash At Senate Hearing

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

Robert C. LaBorde, a principal witness in the Senate wiretapping investigation, yesterday denied he had ever tapped wires in Washington or had any interest in decisions of the Supreme Court.

His disclaimer was in answer to implications of William P. Maloney, committee counsel, that an effort had been made to listen in to the telephone conversation of Supreme Court justices—the late Justice Butler in particular—in October, 1938, while the TVA case was pending.

Marked by frequent clashes between counsel and witness, yesterday's all-day session brought from LaBorde a string of denials that he knew anything about various telephone conversations purportedly linking him with wire-tapping activities.

He admitted that he had tapped wires in only two or three "official investigations," and said his sole contact with New York District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey—whose name had been brought into Monday's hearings—was to rent a dictograph to Wayne Merrick, Dewey's assistant, when he was special prosecutor.

Charges "Smear Campaign"

Newspaper statements issued by Maloney prior to the hearings were denounced by LaBorde as "publicity directed at a political party" and "a smear campaign designed to come in just before the election." Dewey was a Republican Presidential candidate, and former United States District Attorney George Z. Medalie—whose name had been mentioned as a prospective witness—was one of Dewey's political backers.

Medalie, on the stand for a few minutes, said he had never seen LaBorde before yesterday morning.

LaBorde, who heads the Investigators' Technical Service in New York, denounced Maloney for making "irresponsible public utterances" and "false and ridiculous insinuations" as well as for violating the Federal Communications Act by using transcript of tapped telephone conversations.

In one of his numerous rows with LaBorde, Maloney accused the witness of "hiding out" under a false name from the committee investigators in order to escape service of a subpena.

Denies Phone Calls

Denying that he had made certain telephone calls with which Maloney linked him, LaBorde snapped: "I say this is all false."

"Are you trying to question my honestry in this?" queried Maloney.

"I certainly am," the witness retorted.

"I'll stake my honesty against yours any day," Maloney heatedly replied.

LaBorde testified that he came to Washington in July, 1938, in hopes of setting up a recording business here with banks and law firms as his clients. He proposed to install recording devices in conference rooms—a procedure which he carefully distinguished from the tapping of telephone wires. However, he said, the plan fell through because of "lack of funds."

LaBorde was sharply rebuked by Senator Schwartz (Democrat), of Wyoming, a committee member, for suggesting that Secretary Ickes has a telephone-message recorder in his office.

500 in Palestine Ask U. S. Repatriation

Jerusalem, Nov. 19 (AP).—The American Jewish Association appealed to United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull today for aid in repatriating about 500 American Jewish citizens eager to return to the United States.

The association asked that Hull request the American President Lines to make available 100 steerage and 100 tourist passages at the lowest possible rates on winter sailings from Bombay.

Missing Link Theory of Man Is Questioned

Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 19.—A new and radical theory of evolution, differing with the classic Darwinian teachings of maintaining that the process of organic development is rapid instead of gradual, was announced tonight by Dr. Richard B. Goldschmidt, former associate of Dr. Albert Einstein.

Goldschmidt's theory, developed during 30 years of research throughout the world, casts doubt on the existence of a "missing link" in the history of the biological growth of man.

Goldschmidt, like Einstein, is a voluntary exile from Germany where they were associates at the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute. Goldschmidt now is professor of zoology at the University of California.

The theory advanced by Charles Darwin in 1859 holds the change in living organisms occurs gradually by addition of more or less small changes. His theory and variations of it have been accepted generally by scientists as an explanation of the development of new types of organisms.

But Goldschmidt believes these changes are sudden and violent; that they occur by radical mutation—marked variations in the offspring of an organism. Goldschmidt emphasized he does not attempt to refute evolution, but he does differ with the Darwinian theory in regard to the speed of evolution.

Darwinian theorists say there must be intermediate specimens—such as the so-called "missing link"—to fill gaps in the order of evolution of animal species. But Goldschmidt says these steps are taken in evolution in one "leap" or mutation.

There are two processes in evolution, one "microevolutionary," concerned with the smaller mutations within a species to enable it to adopt itself to its environment, such as the change of coloring in animals to harmonize with the surroundings; and "macroevolutionary," which "may proceed by large and sudden changes which accomplish at once what small accumulations cannot perfect in eons."

"In many cases," said Goldschmidt, "a single upset leads automatically to a whole series of consecutive changes of development. If the result is not, as it frequently is, a monstrosity incapable of completing development and surviving, a complete new anatomical construction may emerge in one step from such a change."

Senate to Get Bill to Curb U. S. Agencies

King Will Propose Walter-Logan Measure Friday

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

The Walter-Logan bill, subject of bitter Congressional controversy for months, will come onto the Senate floor Friday, it appeared yesterday after failure of the drive for adjournment.

Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, ranking majority member of the Judiciary Committee, said he will move Friday for consideration of the measure to limit the powers of Federal administrative agencies. The House passed the bill last April by a vote of 279 to 97.

Majority Leader Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, stated last night that he will make no effort to block presentation of a motion for consideration. He added, however, that he will speak and vote against the motion when it comes up.

Administration forces were ready to concede yesterday that the motion to take up the bill will carry and that the bill itself has an even chance of passage. Congressional leaders expect the President to veto the legislation, however, and insist that supporters of the bill could not muster a two-thirds majority in its favor.

Debate on the Walter-Logan bill, in effect, began yesterday, as King held the Senate floor for 2½ hours to condemn what he called a trend toward "administrative absolutism."

"We need a measure like this to put hooks in the jaws of these Government agencies and submit them to safeguards that will insure fair dealings," King declared.

He said he was not questioning the capacity of officials of many of the New Deal agencies, but asserted that the Walter-Logan bill is necessary to guarantee that the bureaus "give fair hearings and follow the fundamental rules of evidence, pleading and procedure."

"In some of these agencies," he charged, "men with no experience in weighing evidence were chucked into their positions by political pull."

"Many citizens are losing confidence in their Government because of the arbitrary actions of these agencies and that, in turn, leads to a general and dangerous lack of respect for law," he said.

The most prominent opponents of the Walter-Logan bill are members of the National Lawyers Guild, he asserted, "who are more inclined to communism than the common law."

Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, told the Senate that President Roosevelt yesterday had "expressed sympathy with the aim and objectives of this bill, with certain objections in matters of form and detail."

Hatch said the Senate should not be swayed by speculation as to whether the President would or would not veto the bill. "It is our legislative duty to act one way or the other on this bill," he said. "If we think it is a good bill, we should pass it. If the President thinks it is not a good bill, he should veto it."

R.A.F. Blasts Krupp, Synthetic Oil Plant

Pilots Claim Direct Hit on Liner Europa At Bremerhaven

By James MacDonald
Copyright by New York Times

London, Nov. 19.—A heavy Royal Air Force bombing attack last night on the important synthetic oil factory at Leuna and a sensational account of the damage done recently by British planes on the Krupp works and the 49,746-ton transatlantic liner Europa which was said to have been hit amidships while docked at Bremerhaven, were related by air ministry officials today.

Leuna, in central Germany not far from Leipzig, was the only target singled out by the R. A. F. Monday night. It is one of the most sensitive nerve centers of Germany's industrial and military networks, and the oil plant there produces 400,000 metric tons annually.

The importance of the bombing raid there may or may not have been the reason why the German long-range guns at Cap Gris Nez sprang to life just before noon. The German habit of revealing anger whenever the R. A. F. does an unusual amount of damage is now an old story.

Britons Aren't Surprised

Thus it was no surprise when shells whistled in the Dover area as the Germans slammed over several two-gun salvos, following them with a succession of single shots. Neither casualties nor damage was reported.

The R. A. F. delivered a three-hour attack, which lasted until just before midnight, on the Leuna plant, which consists of about 150 manufacturing buildings from which go not only synthetic gasoline but chemical fertilizer and other by-products. Its many pipelines are highly vulnerable, and one bomb hitting an essential part of the factory, such as a gas or hydrogenation plant, would, it is said here, disorganize the whole concern for a considerable time.

Air ministry officials also said today that the production of the big Krupp munitions plant at Essen had been reduced 50 per cent as a result of R. A. F. raids. Their information was that some branches of the plant have been closed while others have moved away.

The air ministry added: "The works are having great difficulty obtaining regular supplies of raw materials because of the transport troubles caused by wrecked railroad junctions. Three sections of the factory have been hit and put out of commission. One particularly heavy bomb penetrated the underground workshops before exploding and wrecking the place."

Claim Hit Amidships

The same officials said that the liner Europa, pride of the German merchant marine, "is reported to have been hit amidship" while docked at Bremerhaven. No further details were given out here.

The air ministry added that the Deutsche Vacuum Oil Co.'s factory at Bremen "is out of production."

The British authorities also said that four large buildings in the Union Chemical Co. factory, on the island junction of the Oder and Moile Rivers at Stettin, had been wrecked. Damage to the powerhouse of the Fokker works at Amsterdam is said to have stopped production there for some weeks. Near Magdeburg the gathering of the wheat and potato crops of Saxony has been brought almost to a standstill.

timates of the damage inflicted. The phrases "to Coventrise," meaning to wipe a town from the face of the earth, was used to describe the objective of the raid.

That objective, informed quarters indicate, has been attained, possibly even surpassed.

Other points in England, among them London, were likewise reported to have been attacked in the course of the night. Raids to the capital as well as to objectives in the southern counties, were stated to have been "successful."

So far no German losses have been reported, according to authoritative German quarters. Full details of the attack, however, are still lacking.

British bombers are reported, at the same time, to be active over Germany. Berlin had an alarm tonight, but it is officially stated that no bombs were dropped on the capital. The planes were forced to turn back by the antiaircraft fire before they reached the city limits, so that the "raid on Berlin was a failure."

The attack on Birmingham, following so closely the devastation of Coventry, appears to indicate a further increase in the effort of the German airforce to subjugate the British from the air alone.

The tactics—starting the attack with incendiary bombs, and following up with explosive bombs when the target has been illuminated by fires—are similar to those followed in the Coventry raid.

It appears that large forces are being concentrated on one point instead of being scattered, to attack various objectives—in other words England's key industrial cities are to be reduced, one by one.

Nazi informants earlier had reported dive-bombing attacks on British shipping yesterday, and the daily war communique said German attacks on British shipping had sunk two merchantmen of about 3,000 tons each and heavily damaged three others.

Other sources said dive bombers scored hits on an 8,000-ton ship off the Scottish east coast, leaving it with a heavy list; a 3,000-ton vessel off Ipswich and a 5,000-tonner off the Thames Estuary.

Spokesmen said a German submarine had reported sinking four ships aggregating 24,000 tons recently, and another claimed to have sunk down four ships amounting to 21,000 tons.

2 Cities Made 'A Coventry,' British Report

Dozen More Battered; 41 Die in Italian Raid on Alexandria

By the Associated Press

London (Wednesday), Nov. 20.—German bombers, attacking in endless waves overnight, subjected two Midlands towns to what observers called "another Coventry" and showered bombs on at least a dozen other points in Britain's great industrial belt.

(German sources said the Nazis were dropping thousands of bombs of all caliber on Birmingham, but the censor in London, however, refused to permit identification of any attacked town.)

The raid, launched at nightfall, still was in progress early today.

At least three German planes were reported shot down during the night raiding.

Alexandria Raided

[Official reports from Alexandria, Egypt, said five waves of Italian bombers attacking that British naval base Monday night killed 41 persons, wounded 70, and smashed 17 homes.]

Apparently using London as a signpost to point their way northwest into the Midlands, the first wave of about 100 Nazi planes crossed the southeast coast at dusk. Wave upon wave soon followed in the face of a lashing antiaircraft barrage.

London escaped with lighter-than-average bombing although the firing of her defense guns was as heavy as ever.

The night invaders not only struck at the Midlands but also at the big west coast port of Liverpool, raided three times before midnight.

Raiders were reported over northwest and northeast England, East Anglia, southeast and northeast Scotland and Wales.

Midland's Worst Raid

Early reports of destruction in the Midlands pictured as one of the fiercest and most widespread assaults on that region since the Battle of Britain began.

Casualties are not yet known—but last Thursday night's raid on Coventry, also in the Midlands, left at least 300 dead, hundreds more wounded amid appalling wreckage.

London's Suburbs Suffer

Observers in London reported the city's outer defenses were striving to beat off the raiders. But bombs were dropped in many suburbs by raiders arriving at intervals of a minute or so. Much damage was done to property.

Kent reported the only officially recorded bombing during the daylight hours.

The air and home security ministries said explosives were dropped near a village but caused no damage or casualties.

But despite the desultory character of the air warfare Monday night and Tuesday—due partly to bad weather Monday night over the Channel—the British were told never to relax their guard against invasion.

Sir Edward Grigg, war office undersecretary, said in the House of Commons that the Germans might attempt an invasion "at any time, particularly since their triumphs are beginning to look a little tarnished."

He declared a large German army still stands behind the "invasion ports."

The admiralty said 13 merchantmen totaling 71,749 tons were lost through "enemy action" in the week ended November 10-11.

The admiralty announced also the submarine Rainbow, was overdue and must be considered lost. (The Rainbow was a craft of 1,475 tons surface displacement and had a compliment of 50.)

Thirteen Vessels Lost

Merchant losses included ten British vessels totaling 61,202 tons, one Allied of 1,930 tons and two neutral totaling 8,617 tons.

The figures included four ships sunk when a still unidentified German raider attacked a convoy of 38 ships guarded by the armed merchant cruiser Jervis Bay November 5 in the Atlantic and a fifth vessel of the convoy which was attacked later from the air and abandoned.

The admiralty said that during the week ending November 10-11 Germany claimed to have sunk 140,414 tons of merchant shipping.

The war's almost complete destruction of a London landmark—St. James's Church in Paccadilly—was disclosed by government permission. The church, designed by Sir Christopher Wren in the late seventeenth century, was hit by a bomb in a recent raid.

The bomb fell in the tombstone-paved forecourt, destroying the rectory and killing the verger. His wife was injured.

A mass funeral will be held today in Coventry for the air-raid victims. The coffins, draped in the Union Jack, will be carried by trucks to a common grave, which will be marked by a memorial when peace comes.

Italians Admit Loss of One Epirus Village

Forces in Albania Being Reorganized, Fascist Press Says

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Nov. 19.—The war communique announced today that Greek forces had occupied the village of Ezeki during hard-fought battles on the Epirus front, but that there was no other change on the front lines during the day.

It is clear from dispatches in the press and from editorial comment that the Italian high command in Albania is engaged at present in reorganizing the services to meet what Gen. Ilio Jori, military expert of the Corriere Padano calls "the necessities of the moment." In performing this task it is assumed the Italians are temporarily on the defensive.

The number of Italian troops in Albania is estimated by Gen. Jori at a minimum of four army corps forming a total of eight divisions.

"But it is believed this is a minimum, so that the command to which is entrusted the responsibility of operations in that sector may dispose of other great units as a general reserve."

Dodecanese Attack Defeated

Rome, Nov. 19 (AP).—The Italian high command reported today that an "enemy" attempt to seize Gaidaro, one of the Italian Dodecanese Islands, had been repulsed by land, sea and air forces.

(A Greek communique last night announced that citizens of the Dodecanese Islands, living and working in Greece, "and others," landed from a motor launch on a small island the night of November 17-18, killed three naval guards, captured the police chief and three policemen and returned to Greece.)

"In the Dodecanese," said the Italian communique, "the enemy attempted to gain possession of the Island of Gaidaro. Quick action of our land, sea and air forces chased off the enemy, who retreated rapidly."

Fascist airmen "violently attacked" Greek positions, the communique added, "causing explosions and machine-gunning troop concentrations. Three enemy planes were shot down. One of our planes failed to return."

In North Africa, the Italian air force was said to have caused "enormous damage" on British "aeronautical works, defense works and barracks" at the oasis of Siwa. British raids on Tobruk, Bardia and Salum were acknowledged.

Otho Kesling Buckman, 23, a graduate of the Washington Missionary College, Takoma Park, class of 1940, died Tuesday in Shanghai, according to a cable received yesterday at the General Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, Takoma Park world headquarters of the denomination. Acute leukemia was the cause given for the missionary's death.

Following his graduation last May, Mr. Buckman was assigned to be instructor at the Far Eastern Academy in Shanghai, a school for missionaries' children. Before he sailed for his post, Mr. Buckman married Nora Evangeline Macklan, daughter of Mrs. Helen Macklan, 127 Willow Avenue, Takoma Park.

of another hard day's fighting. The battle for Koritza continues and it is understood the Greek army has improved its attacking positoins, both to the east and to the southwest of that strategically important Albanian town, inching along the heights without risking descent to the plains except for reconnaissance by the engineering units.

Progress continues along the Koritza-Pogradez road which links with the ancient Roman route via Aegnatia. Advance by the way of Ersek toward Moschopol and Berat seems to be moving with the greatest speed.

The Athens radio reports the "general advance" has been under way all day but its extent is not delineated. The military situation is described as "very favorable."

It is said there have been new success around Kortiza and that the only road along which retreat is possible is under heavy Greek artillery fire. The radio says two villages in the neighborhood of Koritza were captured.

It reports a bombing raid on Elbasan by the Royal Air Force.

The fighting now going on seems to be a rather paradoxical sort. Greek soldiers employing their familiarity with the type of terrain to the fullest are creeping up slowly until they get within bayonet range and it is apparent that the Italian morale is much better at rifle or machine-gun distance.

Battle Grows Fiercer

By the Associated Press

Bitoli, Yugoslavia, Nov. 19.—Casualties in the fierce fighting between Greek and Italian armies for the Italian base city of Koritza are mounting but neither side has been able to deliver a knockout blow, it was reported tonight in this frontier town.

The Italians were said to be holding their positions on the Koritza front against heavy onslaughts.

The Italians also claimed capture of some English troops brought from Egypt to help the Greeks.

Reports reaching the Yugoslav border said the Fascist forces succeeded in penetrating Greek lines near Sirica on Mount Morava, advancing more than a mile.

Six hundred Greek prisoners were reported taken, including 100 Albanians expecting their exiled king, Zog, to fight the Italians.

Despite rain, cold and low visibility, aviation is playing an active part in the fighting.

The fighting was especially heavy in the Morava Mountain region before Koritza and the mountains dominating the passes to the plain northeast of Koritza. Greek troops which stormed the Italian positions were reported caught in a crossfire of heavy artillery and to have suffered many casualties.

Five Albanian soldiers wearing Italian uniform crossed the Yugoslavian frontier and were disarmed by a Yugoslav guard. They were quoted as declaring that discontent was widespread in Albania. Dissident Albanians, they said, hoped for a Greek success and complained of the quality of food and equipment supplied by the Italians.

Italian border guards who withdrew from the Yugoslav frontier three days ago when Greek advances threatened to isolate them returned to their posts today.

Greek Plea for Aid Gets Action Here

while there is still time, so that aerial support given to Greece may be extended without delay."

Adding to the urgency of the Greek plea, in the view of many officials here, was information indicating that Nazi Germany may soon move through the Balkans to bolster the faltering offensive of her Axis ally.

Simultaneous with the effort to supply Greece with American-made weapons, the Greek Legation here disclosed a move to bring American financial assistance to their country.

George S. Depasta, counselor of the legation, announced formation of the Greek-American War Relief Association to solicit gifts of money and supplies to help feed, clothe and bring medical attention to Greek soldiers and civilians. In New York City, Harold S. Vanderbilt, financier and sportsman, said he had agreed to serve as chairman of the relief association.

Chief difficulty in the way of a prompt response to the Greek appeal for arms, it was agreed here, were the prior claims of Britain and America's own defense forces on this country's output of war materials. Officials yesterday declined to give any estimate as to the number of planes or other weapons which might be spared from British and American requirements.

Another problem was the transportation from this country to Greece of any materials which may be released. Greece has merchant ships which might be used to transport the supplies, but Britain presumably would have to convoy the vessels across the Atlantic and through the Mediterranean.

Application of the neutrality act to the Greek-Italian conflict last week put Greek purchases here on a "cash and carry" basis.

Meanwhile American aid for Britain was discussed "in a general way" at a conference yesterday between William Allen White and President Roosevelt, the Kansas editor told reporters as he left the White House.

White, who is chairman of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, said there had been no mention of credits or 50 more destroyers for England.

Thousands to Give Thanks by Prayer

Services in Many Churches to Precede Tomorrow's Feasts

By Robert Tate Allan

Before sitting down to Thanksgiving tables tomorrow, thousands of Washington worshipers will gather in quiet sanctuaries to thank God for what they have, be it much or little.

Fifteen neighborhood services, sunrise programs and other individual rites planned in Protestant churches; the resumption of the historic Pan-American Mass at St. Patrick's Church, masses in other Catholic churches and Jewish services promise the most significant spiritual observance of the day in years.

Eight congregations of the Mount Pleasant area will assemble at the marbled Mormon Chapel at Sixteenth Street and Columbia Road Northwest at 11 a. m. to hear Dr. Seth R. Brooks, pastor of the Universalist National Memorial Church, bring the Thanksgiving sermon. Bishop Edgar B. Brossard, of the Washington Ward, Mormon Stake of Zion, will preside. Other participating churches will be Francis Asbury Methodist, All Souls' Unitarian, Cleveland Park and Mount Pleasant Congregational, Columbia Heights Christian and Friends' Meeting.

6:30 A. M. Service Planned

Early-birds of the Thanksgiving observers will be the District Methodist young people and the Baptist Young People's Federation of Washington, the former holding a watch service at 6:30 a. m. at Waugh Methodist Church, Third and A Streets Northeast, with Bishop Adna Wright Leonard, local Methodist resident prelate, speaking, and breakfast following. The Rev. J. Ray Garrett, pastor of Second Baptist Church, will address the Federation rites at 7 a. m. at First Baptist Church, Sixteenth and O Streets Northwest, "mother" church of its denomination here. His subject will be "Thanks—for What?"

Four downtown churches—Calvary Baptist, Mount Vernon Place Methodist, National City Christian and First Congregational—will hold union prayers at 11 o'clock at the latter place at Tenth and G Streets Northwest, where Dr. John W. Rustin, Mount Vernon pastor, will preach on "Worthy of Our Heritage." The 60-voiced Washington A Cappella Choir, directed by Ruby Smith Stahl, will sing. Other participating pastors will be Dr. Howard Stone Anderson, Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller and Dr. William S. Abernethy.

At the Pan American mass across the street at 10:30 a. m., Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles will lead the State Department delegation, which will include Assistant Secretary Henry F. Grady and Chief of Protocol George T. Summerlin.

Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union; Supreme Court Justices Frank Murphy, Justice Harold M. Stephens, Surgeon General Thomas Parran and many members of both Houses of Congress are expected to attend.

Latin Envoys to Attend

South American diplomats who plan to be present include Ambassador of Peru Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander, Ambassador of Argentina and Senora de Espil, Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Alfaro, Ambassador of Venezuela and Senora de Escalante, Ambassador of Colombia Dr. Gabriel Turbay and Ambassador of Panama and Senora de Boyd.

Others will be Minister of Guatemala and Senora de Recinos; the Minister of Uruguay and Mme. Richling; Minister of El Salvador and Senora de Castro; Minister of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Pastoriza; Minister of Costa Rica and Senora de Fernandez; Minister of Icaragua and Senora de Bayle and Minister of Honduras and Senora de Caceres.

The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore and Washington, will preside; the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate, will pontificate, and the Right Rev. Monsignor Lawrence J. Shehan, assistant rector of the most parish, will offer the mass.

Community rites will draw crowds of worshipers to Georgetown Presbyterian, Westminster Memorial Presbyterian, McKendree Methodist, Takoma Park Presbyterian, Chevy Chase Presbyterian, Memorial United Brethren and other churches.

House Chaplain to Speak

Services at the Washington Cathedral will include Holy Communion at 7:30 a. m. and morning prayer, with sermon by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, at 11 a. m.

Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House and member of the Methodist Conference, will address services at 10:30 a. m. at Hamline Methodist Church, Sixteenth and Allison Streets Northwest, with Dr. Harry W. Burgan, host pastor, presiding. The offering will benefit the Methodist Home for the Aged.

Among other Methodist services, Calvary Church will welcome Dr. Mark Depp, former pastor at Calvary and now pastor of Christ Methodist Church, at Pittsburgh, as guest speaker tomorrow at 10 a. m. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of Foundry Methodist Church, will deliver his "thanks" sermon from the new Bishop McDowell Memorial Pulpit at 11 a. m., his subject being "The Nation Says Grace."

"All that a free pulpit in free country stands for will be one of the causes cited for thanksgiving in this crucial year of the world's history,' said Dr. Harris yesterday, in announcing the service.

Food to Be Given Needy

As in many other churches, canned goods and other articles which are to be distributed to the needy, will be brought to services at 10 a. m. at River Road United Presbyterian Church, where the Rev. Virgil M. Cosby will bring the principal address.

Nazis Got War Funds in U. S., Dies Charges

Amount to 'Startle' Americans, He Says; More Raids Planned

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Representative Martin Dies, chairman of the House Committee Investigating un-American Activities, said today that funds had been collected in the United States for "Hitler's war machine."

He reported that he had learned that $13,500 had been raised by "Nazi organizations" in Chicago and had been sent to Philadelphia and thence to Berlin. The money, he added, was supposed to aid wounded soldiers but "actually it was going into Hitler's war machine."

Dies told reporters that his investigators were gathering more evidence rapidly and predicted that the amount involved would "startle" Americans.

The chairman announced that he was sending seven agents to four cities "immediately" to seize records of unnamed German and Communistic organizations. The agents, he added, were dispatched to Detroit, two Eastern cities and another in the South. He did not elaborate.

Plans to Visit Detroit

Dies said that he expected to visit Detroit soon.

"We are very much interested in Detroit, Mich., and Milwaukee, Wis.," he stated. "There is a good deal of work to be done there in the very near future. There's a good deal of subversive activity there."

At the conclusion of a two-day hearing here, the Congressman related that records of five Chicago German and Communist organizations had been seized and that some of them were "very important."

Reviewing the committee's investigation, he said that much of the testimony "hinges around consuls of foreign countries."

He opined also that "some successful indictments and convictions" could result from statements elicited during the inquiry.

He asserted that Nazi organizations, in addition to gathering funds for Germany, strove to place members in key industries to obtain information.

Dies said that when the hearing is resumed in Chicago at a later date he expects to question a "socially prominent woman" whom he described as "very sympathetic to Germany."

War Veterans' Leader Testifies

Committee attaches identified today's witnesses as Ernest Ten Eicken, former president of the German-American National Alliance in Chicago; his successor, Richard E. Sieben; and Nick Mueller, head of the Kyffhauserbund, a group of German war veterans.

The Congressman previously identified one of yesterday's mysterious witnesses as Heinrich Peter Fassbender, alias Harry Smith, whom Dies identified as an agent of the Gestapo.

Dies said Fassbender would be taken to Washington tonight for further investigation. Asked whether Fassbender still was a Gestapo agent, the chairman replied: "Fassbender has a very, very good reasons for wanting to sever his relations with the Gestapo. He hopes to be able to remain in this country. You know, once a Gestapo agent, always a Gestapo agent, or something."

Cloudburst Drowns Scores in Jamaica

Kingston, Jamaica, Nov. 19 (AP).—Reports from Jamaica's northeast area tonight said scores of persons perished in a cloudburst that sent flood waters raging over many districts.

The number of dead remained uncounted, according to word reaching this capital over communication lines repaired after the waters had receded following last night's sudden deluge.

One report said many persons who sought refuge in a church in the Portland district had lost their lives. Tonight, the rain was still falling, though the storm had abated.

Men Strike at Steel Plant With Defense Orders

By the Associated Press

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 19.—A strike of workers in the Halcomb plant of the Crucible Steel Co., which an official said, was working on "some" defense orders developed today as several hundred men of the day shift declined to enter the shops.

A company spokesman admitted only 250 men of the normal day complement of 1,100 were on their jobs this morning and attributed the strike to the work of "23 men with no authority from the union to call a strike."

A spokesman for the workers, identifying himself only as a member of the C. I. O. Steel Workers Union, said the walkout affected 95 per cent of the estimated 2,300 plant employes.

He asserted the men were demanding restoration of a 6-cent wage differential between laborers and skilled men, and for elimination of the "stagger week" in favor of a straight five-day week with a 48-hour rest period.

Vultee Plant Still Closed

Downey, Calif., Nov. 19 (AP).—Negotiations went into their twenty-eighth hour of discussions today, still without an agreement in a wage dispute which closed the big Vultee Aircraft, Inc., plant with its $84,000,000 worth of military orders.

Maj. Sidney Simpson, War Department labor adviser, declined to say whether any progress was being made.

The conference was attended by representatives of the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers Union, the vultee company of the Government.

The union is asking a 25-cent-an-hour increase from the basic scale of 50 cents. The present Vultee pay scale in the production department ranges from 50 cents to $1.25 an hour. The plant has been shut down since Friday.

Canadians to Build Fleet for Defense

Naval Chief Says Convoy System Has Proved Its Worth

By P. J. Philip
Copyright by New York Times

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—Establishment of a Canadian naval college and the building of destroyers and perhaps cruisers in Canadian naval yards in the near future were announced today by Navy Minister Angus L. Macdonald as measures necessary in the joint defense scheme with the United States.

As her contribution to the war, he said, Canada has raised her naval strength to a grand total of 13,273 men of all ranks in active service, nearly eight times the prewar number, and has increased the number of war vessels of all categories from 15 to 155. These are engaged in convoy and patrol work and in cooperation with the British navy in European waters.

Emphasizing the importance of convoy work, Macdonald gave these figures:

Since the war began 3,500 ships, carrying 21,000,000 tons of cargo, have sailed from Canadian ports. No single troopship has been lost and, despite enemy claims, the convoy system of merchant shipping works so well that within a single week last month 775 convoyed ships reached British ports and only five convoyed ships were lost—about three-quarters of 1 per cent.

Within a single week last month, 1,129,000 tons of cargo that came by every sea were imported into England.

Macdonald said that it was only right that Canada should have a navy commensurate with her position as a trading nation for the defense of her trade routes. It was with that aim that the cabinet proposed to establish a naval college for the training of naval and merchant service officers.

Canadian shipyards have already, he said, built some of the smaller ships required by the Canadian navy and for the British admiralty and it is hoped that very soon, with the aid at the start of skilled craftsmen from England, work will begin on destroyers and cruisers.

Look Who's In the Army Now . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

SECOND LIEUTENANT HYMAN—Now, comes a soldierette. The Army is getting glamorous. As men were being inducted into the Army yesterday in Boston, 22-year-old Rena Hyman also received her marching orders—to report at West Point as a second lieutenant in the U. S. Army Nursing Corps. She received her commission after volunteering. Pretty Rena is a registered nurse at Quincy (Mass.) City Hospital and thinks it is "wonderful" to be an officer masse last Friday will be completed today.

Failure, in some instances, of officials properly to fill out medical examination forms has resulted in delays, it was reported, that may hold up assembly of data until tomorrow.

Nineteen men are to be covered in the first induction, 32 in the second, November 28. Announcement of names of selectees in the entire quota of 51 will be announced by Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, District Selective Service executive.

Curley, strapping football and basketball player, stands 6 feet 2½ inches—without shoes—and weighs 189 pounds. Officials of the board consider him a perfect specimen of United States soldier material.

He left a temporary position with the population division of the Census Bureau to volunteer, he told the board, because he wanted to get his year's training out of the way before he found a permanent job.

Curley attended St. Vincent's College in Pennsylvania and St. Mary's in California, but participated in athletics, chiefly on Government department teams. He came to Washington from Chicago, where last night he was visiting his parents.

Curley's serial number is 3544, his order number, 893-V.

Weiner, serial No. 4191, order No. 2984-V, decided to volunteer when the board told him it would not be possible to "get into the fight right away" by going to Canada and signing up for the R. A. F.

Weiner, employed by the WPA for five years, weighs 168 pounds, heavy for his 5-foot-6-inch frame. He, too, is spending a few days with his parents in their home in New York City.

20 Per Cent Rejected

Draft Board No. 10 rushed Curley and Weiner through physical examinations by Dr. Worth Daniels on November 9, a day after they were classified in One-A. The board expects to fill its quota by selection of a third volunteer later this week.

The percentage of rejections that may be expected after Army doctors give the prospective trainees a second examination at the induction center, 458 Indiana Avenue Northwest, was indicated yesterday in reports from New ngland that nearly 20 per cent of the area's 253 men had been returned to their homes. Poor teeth and heart ailments were among the chief causes of rejection, the Associated Press reported.

At the same time, national selective service headquarters warned examining physicians that mental ailments which may not interfere seriously with a man's civilian occupation may make him unsuitable for military service.

Not only are the feeble-minded and insane" unsuitable for military purposes, C. A. Dykstra, selective service director, declared, but also are certain of those handicapped people who are doing well in civilian life only because they have found ways of protecting themselves from undue stress, by seclusiveness or by peculiar performances and odd habits of life."

Based on World War Data

"Military and naval experience," Dykstra said, "is in favor of excluding from the armed forces all persons discovered to have mental or personality handicaps of any material degree.

"In the World War, a great many men who were inducted into the Army were not capable of meeting service conditions which aggravated the handicap of some and permanently disabled others who could have been useful had they remained in civilian life."

The War Department yesterday reported that the first day's operation of the draft program Monday passed without a hitch and added that induction of additional trainees is now under way in almost a third of the States.

44 Democrats Help Balk Adjournment

same had all been present.

Whether the House will meet in daily session, or whether a resumption will be asked of the election period's three-day recesses, he said had not been determined.

House Minority Leader Martin, who had coupled an adjournment challenge with his post-election call to Republicans to "continue the fight," smiled his satisfaction at the result.

Wendell Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, had made the issue a campaign battle-cry, and Monday again urged that Congress remain on duty through the crisis.

Martin Hears People's Voice

"The House vote reflected the true sentiment of the country," Martin told reporters. "It is not so much what we do here as that the machinery will be ready if an emergency should arise. If the President felt the crisis was such he couldn't go out of Washington for more than 12 hours, then the people feel we should stay here, too."

Asked how he accounted for the 44 Democrats voting with Republicans, Martin said, "They had heard from the people. A great many campaigned on that issue and were reelected on a promise to stay here."

Some Democrats favoring the adjournment talked of daily House roll calls to show how many of those who voted to remain in Washington will actually stay here, but McCormick indicated there were no leadership plans on that score.

Unless a formal legislative program is placed before Congress, a wholesale exodus is expected next week and leaders may have trouble maintaining a quorum. The vote probably did not reflect the personal wishes of a preponderance of members. Many voted for the record but want to go home.

Told of roll call proposals, Martin replied:

"If anyone wants to start anything, I'll be here. And I don't think anyone will want to start anything they can't finish."

Doesn't Demand Daily Sessions

The minority spokesman said he was not insisting on daily sessions, but thought "the machinery should remain set up to expedite the defense program and do what is necessary in the emergency."

Here is the vote by which the House defeated the adjournment resolution today:

Ramspeck Bill Sent to White House

service standings, including admission to the employe retirement program, through noncompetitive exams.

It authorizes the President to extend the Government pay scales now effective in Washington and parts of the field service to the rest of the field service. This provision may affect the salaries of more than 300,000 employes outside the District, according to the last Civil Service Commission estimates.

It calls for review boards to be set up in all Government departments to go over employe efficiency ratings. These ratings have been a perennial source of employe grievances, and the Ramspeck bill now gives employes representation in reviewing their efficiency reports.

Salaries Boosted

It boosts the salaries of the three Civil Service Commissioners from $8,500 to $10,000 a year, and that of their chief assistant, L. A. Moyer, executive director and chief examiner, from $8,000 to $9,500.

It opens the way for clerks and secretaries in Congress to obtain classified civil service status through noncompetitive examination, after four years' service on Capitol Hill. Their transfer into an administrative job has to be made within a year after they leave the legislative service.

Still out of the bill yesterday was an amendment which would have given Census workers in temporary jobs a chance to obtain civil service status.

Word that the bill had passed spread quickly among Washington employes and brought a rush of telephone inquiries to the office of Congressmen about details of the final action.

Members of the Civil Service Commission, and their aides, without any formal statement, said individually that they were "gratified."

Women Voters Pleased

Mrs. Harris T. Baldwin, first vice president of the National League of Women Voters, which had long urged passage of the Ramspeck bill, said its approval "clears the way for a dynamic public personnel program which will assure trained and qualified persons for Government jobs and genuine opportunity for a career service."

Final passage of the bill in the Senate was gained in about 1 minute, after Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, called up the measure.

In the House, the going was tougher.

Representative Nichols (Democrat) of Oklahoma flew from his home to Washington yesterday to join forces with Republican leaders in fighting passage of the Ramspeck bill.

Nichols, author of an amendment which would have required all State job quotas in the Government service to be filled before employes from any over-quota States could share in the civil service extension, launched his attack in the House before the Senate acted on the bill.

He charged that the House Civil Service conferees the day before had ignored "100 per cent" the instructions given them six weeks ago to insist on having his amendment, stricken out by the Senate, placed back in the bill. In place of his amendment, the conferees agreed on a substitute, requiring that all employes in the District brought into civil service under the Ramspeck bill would be charged against their State quotas, while the jobs of those who failed the noncompetitive tests would be opened to residents of underquota States.

Later, Nichols, with Representatives Rees, of Kansas, and Rogers, of Massachusetts, who led the Republican attack on the bill, joined in urging that the House force compliance with its instructions by sending the bill back to conference. The Republican leaders fought, too, the plan of extending the Civil Service by noncompetitive examination and urged starting all over again to write a "real merit bill" based on open competitive examinations.

Ramspeck told the House the final conference report did not violate the House instructions which, he said, told the conferees not to agree to the Senate amendment striking out the Nichols quota plan. "We did not agree to the Senate amendment," he said.

Nichols Discomfited

Ramspeck debated briefly with Nichols, when the latter asked him to tell what guarantee the bill gave that the Civil Service Commission would enforce the quota provisions.

"Didn't you tell me that you wouldn't vote for the bill, if I let you write it," Ramspeck asked Nichols. "I'll yield if you'll answer."

"You mean you'll yield if I answer the way you want me to," Nichols challenged.

"I'll yield if you answer yes or no," Ramspeck replied.

Nichols answered "No" and sat down.

Common Sense About Constipation

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with constipation is get at its cause. That way you don't have to endure it first and try to "cure" it afterward—you can avoid having it.

Chances are you won't have to look far for the cause if you eat the super-refined foods most people do. Most likely you don't get enough "bulk"! And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this is what you lack, try crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains just the "bulk" you need.

Eat All-Bran often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Britain to Get Less 'Plum Duff,' More Protection for Christmas

By James B. Reston.
Copyright by New York Times

London, Nov. 19.—The British government tonight promised the people of this country more protection from the rigors of bombing this winter, but suggested that they get innoculated for diphtheria and warned them that they may have to do without their Christmas turkeys, ice cream and chocolates.

On the whole everything points toward a pretty grim Christmas in England. An official of the ministry of food said today the supply of all poultry will be reduced at the holiday season. He refused to increase the allowance of cooking fats and sugar for Christmas cakes, while he said the recent reduction in the supply of milk may seriously affect the manufacturers of candy and ice cream.

It is more than a possibility, however, that people who have stood up to the goings on of the last few weeks will be able to do without their "plum duff." What they are essentially interested in is protecting themselves from bombs and disease and what the government had to say about this was a little more encouraging.

At the start of the blitzkrieg 11 weeks ago the minister of health appointed a committee to study the problems of this insanitary subterranean existence. Today the government issued the committee's recommendations, and government officials made it clear that they intend to follow them as far as possible.

These were, first of all, that the government should concentrate on getting women, children, the aged and the infirm away from the danger zones—London, Coventry, Liverpool, Birmingham, Manchester, Glasgow and the other great manufacturing centers.

The disease most likely to strike people banded together all night in cellars and subways, or families cramped in their little steel backyard houses, is diphtheria, the report said, recommending innoculation. Local authorities are receiving instructions to start free service to the public.

A more intelligent supervision of the shelters by trained nurses and doctors, daily inspection, the spraying of shelters by medical officers, all-night first aid staffs in all large shelters, and the use of a simple face mask by people with colds, are all included in the recommendations.

Hoffman Offers Bill To Cut Federal Pay

Representative Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan, introduced legislation yesterday to provide price and wage fixing on Federal contracts, a gross tax on all incomes of more than $1,000, and salary cuts for all Federal employes.

The gross income levy would range from 10 per cent on income between $1,000 and $2,500 to 35 per cent above $10,000. The salary cuts for Federal employes would be at the same rate as the tax.

Business Warned on Hiring Defense Contract 'Insiders'

Robert P. Patterson, acting Secretary of War, cautioned business concerns yesterday against dealings with persons claiming to have influence with the War Department and offering to sell their services.

Patterson

In a statement, Patterson declared:

"There is no truth in representations of this sort, and business concerns are cautioned against having dealings with persons who make such representations or offer such services.

"Notice is directed to the fact that forms of contract to be signed by contractors contain a warranty by the contractor that he has not employed any person to solicit or secure the contract on any agreement for a commission, percentage, brokerage or contingent fee, together with a further provision that breach of this warranty shall give the Government the right either to cancel the contract or to deduct the amount of such commission, percentage, brokerage or contingent fee from payments due the contractor. The department will enforce this provision in all cases that come to its attention."

Rigid Rules Follow Fires at Camp Grant

Camp Grant, Ill., Nov. 19 (AP). Drastic fire regulations were in force here today as the aftermath of two fires Saturday which Army officials investigated as "suspicious."

Camp Fire Marshal George B. Stock announced there would be no smoking permitted on the reservation, either by workers, soldiers or visitors, except in certain designated areas, where employes may smoke during the lunch hour.

Stock said the two fires, one a prairie fire Saturday afternoon and the other in one of the main buildings, had already resulted in banning the military reservation to hunters.

Arrest Follows Offer To Expose Sabotage

Cleveland, Nov. 19 (AP).—A Cleveland municipal laborer who, authorities said, offered to expose a sabotage plot against an airplane products company if paid $7,500, was charged by police tonight with attempting to obtain money under false pretenses.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents said the city water department employe—34-year-old Raymond Panza—was trapped as Nathaniel R. Rogers, in charge of protection at Thompson Products, Inc., handed Panza $500 in marked money at a designated meeting place.

"I needed the money," Wayne L. Listerman, Cleveland FBI special agent, quoted Panza as saying. "I've been reading about all these defense contracts and it gave me a good idea."

Thompson Products is producing defense orders.

Army Stand on Former Convicts Denounced

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 19 (AP).—A former Army man and head of one of the Nation's largest prisons, Warden Frank B. Henderson of Ohio Penitentiary, today criticized a War Department order for rejection of potential draftees on parole or probation or who have been convicted of a felony.

"After a man is released from prison, his rights and privileges are restored to him," said Henderson, a former brigadier general. "The Federal Government by this act is holding over additional punishment which was not prescribed by the courts."

Doctors Need Human Touch, Wilbur Says

The day of the "horse and buggy doctor" is ended but the confidential patient-physician relationship which has endured for centuries must not be abandoned, Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur said yesterday.

Dr. Wilbur, president of Leland Stanford University and Secretary of the Interior in the Hoover Cabinet, said it was vital to retain the family doctor even if the trend toward centralization of medical care continues.

His address yesterday was to medical students of George Washington University. It was sponsored by the Smith-Reed-Russell Society.

Human Element Remains

Medicine has undergone vast changes, socially as well as scientifically, in the last half century, said the Stanford president, once dean of that university's medical school and former president of the American Medical Association.

"And yet the human element remains the supreme element in the care of the sick," he declared. "Let's use science to the best of our ability but let's use our hearts also in medicine today."

Seventy-five per cent of the Nation's hospital beds today are under Government control—Federal, State or local—Dr. Wilbur said. And the hospital, with its modern facilities, is the center of medicine.

"If this (centralization) continues at its present rapid pace, what are the doctors coming to?" he asked. "Is the independent physician gone?"

Fears Epidemics

He warned that starvation and epidemics threatening war-ravaged Europe could not help but have an impact on the United States.

Of the Sino-Japanese war, he said: "It is not impossible to assume that some day in the future, when our progeny have disappeared, that the Chinese might take over this continent?

"They have the two factors so necessary for such biological success—their population increases rapidly and they can exist on less than almost any other people."

Following the medical school lecture, Dr. Wilbur was guest of honor at a Cosmos Club luncheon given by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, and Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, dean of the medical school.

The "basement" of your engine is the oil reservoir. The "attic" is far up the cylinders. The passage-way in between is about as wide as a whisker. When you're hoping to start you can wait for some cold oil below to shove up and crowd through, or by changing to Conoco Germ Processed oil you can automatically give your engine OIL-PLATING—lubricant that knows no waiting!

Before a moving part moves, OIL-PLATING is high "in the attic" already, because OIL-PLATING stays there through all the hours or days you'll park. It's got to—much as if it were magnetized all over your engine's insides. Bankers Criticize Defense Loan Rate

Fear a 1½ to 4% 'Ceiling' May Limit Private Financing

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 19.—The move by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to put a "ceiling" of 1½ to 4 per cent on defense loans may restrict private bank financing of new war industry, informed bankers said today.

A leading banker said the 1½ per cent rate on so-called "facilities loans" involving the pledge of defense contracts as security for repayment of the loans was too low to encourage large-scale private credits.

The arrangement worked out by bankers to extend credits to armament contractors through the pledge of defense contracts, he said, was not actually a Government guarantee of repayment and should carry interest rates allowing for the risk.

Bankers, he explained, were planning such loans at rate of 2½ to 3 per cent.

Might Put Burden on RFC

Borrowers of the highest credit standing, it was said, probably would be able to arrange loans as low as 1½ per cent from commercial banks. Otherwise, it was held, the effect of the defense credits policy announced by Jesse H. Jones, Federal loan administrator, might be to throw a larger share of the defense financing upon the RFC.

The 4 per cent top on loans without the security of the "facilities" contracts, bankers suggested, might be too low in regions where interest rates were relatively high.

However, it was said, New York and other financial centers probably would arrange considerable credit for purchase of materials, financing pay rolls and other short-term needs to companies working on defense contracts in the ordinary category of "business loans."

Commercial loans of Federal Reserve member banks have increased steadily in recent weeks to the highest figures since 1937.

A veteran banker said credit losses on World War loans to arms producers would tend to make lenders wary about risking depositors' money again without sufficient margin in the interest rate to cover risks.

Urges Coordinated Financing

Chicago, Nov. 19 (AP).—Emmett F. Connely, of Detroit, president of the Investment Bankers Association of America, proposed tonight that Congress authorize an independent commission of experts to coordinate the efforts of industry and finance in defense preparations.

In an address before the Illinois Manufacturers Costs Association, he suggested that a nonpartisan commission of business experts should be assigned these duties:

"First, to determine the best method of promoting and financing national defense so that the objective will be accomplished with a minimum strain on our national financial resources, while at the same time throwing every possible protection around the system of free enterprise.

"Second, to make an exhaustive study of how our economy can best be adjusted to peace-time activities when the emergency is over."

John L. Vandegrift, reporting for the group solicitation unit, drew attention to improved business and income levels here.

"We are still plugging at the $2,000,000 goal, which is the same as last year's and that of the year before. We ought to be honest and ask for more. The present figure is pitifully small to take care of the charity needs in a town like this."

ber 14, was likewise exonerated. The board said "that no evidence has been adduced in this investigation which places responsibility upon Dunn for any part of the shortage. It is expected Dunn will be repaid for time lost since his suspension and be reinstated by the Commissioners.

Meanwhile, the report has been turned over to Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech, who will take legal steps to secure the shortage from the bonding companies.

Despite the shortage, the survey board said neither Miss Vass nor Dunn, "profited by or took unto their own use one dollar thereof."

The board, headed by Byers M. Bachman, deputy tax assessor, consists of Lumpkins and Maj. Beverley C. Snow, assistant Engineer Commissioner. The shortage, the report stated, was "accumulated over a period of years."

The board sharply criticized past procedures in handling of the tax receipts at the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, and concluded: "That if proper supervision had been maintained by the collector of taxes over this detached and isolated collection agency, and if the office of the auditor had been empowered by Commissioners' order to audit funds not deposited by this cashier with the collector of taxes, the shortage would not have occurred."

It was pointed out that at times the cashier permitted a large amount of cash (once $76,000) to accumulate without making a deposit with the collector of taxes. The board recommended two full-time cashiers be stationed at the vehicles department, each operating in separate cages and each independently responsible.

These cashiers would be placed under the complete jurisdiction of the director of vehicles and traffic and bonded to him, the report recommends. Cash collected would be deposited with the collector of taxes on the day received. Other recommendations made by the board follow:

That the use of hand stamps be discontinued, all receipts to be recorded by mechanical devices.

That the auditor be provided with the auditor's key to the cash registers and empowered with authority to examine the registers and make cash audits at any time.

That the cashing of personal checks be prohibited.

That a system be devised, whereby checks tendered in payment of taxes may be identified with coupons.

That a method of providing coupons for titles be established.

That an analysis be made of the entire system pertaining to levying and collection of revenues in the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, including a comparison with and a study of similar operations of traffic departments in other jurisdictions.

More Power to Thrift—more Thrift from Power

We think most people would rather own a bigger, solider, steadier, roomier, better automobile. Most of them would be willing to spend a little extra for what Buick has to offer—style, size, room, steadiness, durability—if part of that extra could be paid back through lower operating costs.

Especially they would like really satisfying performance—quick take-off, easy hill-climbing, sure power, fast response—if they could have it in a car that's stingy with gasoline.

That's what we've given them—through the extra power in this 1941 Buick.

The added wallop of FIREBALL engine design and Compound Carburetion lets us use more thrifty gear ratios, saving money without complicating extra gears or mechanisms.

And the tremendous reserve-power in these Buick engines—at 40, for instance, you have as much as 85% of your power "on call"—still permits the flashing get-away, the swooping hill-climb, the sure lift out of pinches you once had to buy with heavy gasoline consumption.

So we say—more power to thrift—it helps put Buick thrill and comfort within easy reach.

And the reason is—more thrift from power—from abler engines.

It all adds up to the sensation of the year—the car you ought to see first—the brilliant, able beauty your Buick dealer has waiting for you.

HERE'S MODERN ECONOMY—

Soldier Held Guilty In Suicide Pact

D. C. Woman's Death Leads to 2d Degree Murder Conviction

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Nov. 19.—George F. Williams, Fort George G. Meade Army private, was found guilty of second-degree murder today in connection with a suicide pact and was given a five-year suspended sentence by Circuit Court Judge Ridgely P. Melvin.

Williams had been charged with first-degree murder as the result of the death of Mrs. Ella Carroll, Washington, from carbon-monoxide poisoning in Williams' automobile last June, near the Army fort.

Williams testified he entered into a suicide pact with the woman but regained consciousness in his closed car, into which exhaust fumes poured through a rubber hose connected with the exhaust pipe. He said he found Mrs. Carroll unconscious.

Wilbur R. Dulin and Edward G. Chaney, defense counsel, contended Williams was innocent of any crime on the grounds that suicide was not a crime under Maryland law. Judge Melvin cited authorities which held that if two persons encourage each other to commit suicide jointly and one succeeds and the other fails in the attempt upon himself, the survivor is the principal in the murder of the other.

"The only phase of the subject about which there can be any doubt," Judge Melvin declared, "is the degree of murder . . . In Maryland it is the accepted rule that every intentional killing is presumed to be murder in the second-degree and that presumption holds unless and until the State proves such circumstances as raise the degree to murder in the first-degree."

Joseph E. Davies Named Chairman for Inauguration

Former Ambassador Will Resign As Special State Department Aide To Head Plan-Making for Event

Joseph E. Davies, former Ambassador to Russia and Belgium, will be chairman of arrangements for the third-term inauguration on January 20, President Roosevelt announced at his press conference yesterday.

To take the chairmanship Davies will resign as special assistant to the Secretary of State, the President said. He thas had the latter assignment since last January, shortly after relinquishing his ambassadorial duties in Brussels.

The chairman-designate was in New York City when his appointment was announced and information as to the selection of subcommittee chairman and preparation of other plans for the inauguration was not available.

President Acts Early

In naming the man who will have charge of arrangements for the parade, seating and other details, the President acted three weeks earlier than he did in 1936. His choice then was the late Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, who had supervised arrangements for Mr. Roosevelt's first inauguration in 1933.

In his letter of resignation to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, dated yesterday, Davies asked that he be relieved as of January 2. The communication did not mention the inaugural chairmanship, the writer explaining simply that he found it necessary to leave public service in order to devote attention to personal affairs.

Replying, Secretary Hull commended Davies' State Department record since he entered the service in 1936 as Ambassador to Russia.

"I am glad to know, however . . . that you will be available for further service in the event of need," Secretary Hull wrote.

Unity Display Expected

The fact that President Roosevelt appointed the inaugural chairman three weeks earlier than in 1936, combined with the circumstance of Davies' resignation from the State Department to assume the new responsibility, was viewed as lending credence to reports the third-term inauguration will consist of something more than the traditional oath-taking and parade.

According to persons who assisted in the 1933 and 1937 inaugurations, the White House is examining the idea of making the 1941 event the occasion for a national demonstration of preparedness and political unity.

Population of U. S., Possessions Set At 150,362,326

The Census Bureau yesterday placed the population of the United States, its territories and possessions at 150,362,326.

This represented an increase of 11,923,257, or 8.6 per cent over the 1930 census, on the basis of preliminary figures.

The continental United States population previously had been placed at 131,409,681, an increase of 7 per cent. The population of territories and possessions, excluding the Philippine Islands, was placed at 2,596,445, a gain of 445,422, or 20.7 per cent.

The Philippine Islands count, an estimate based on censuses taken in January, 1939, and December, 1918, was 16,356,000, an increase of 2,843,000, or 21 per cent.

Legion's Membership Estimated at 608,579

Indianapolis, Nov. 19 (AP).—The American Legion's annual telegraphic roll call, today showed an advance membership for 1941 of 608,579, an increase of more than 7,000 from a year ago. A year ago the advance membership was 601,200. The total membership for 1940 was 1,076,000.

Chinese Hear Japan Prepares To Take Saigon

Decoux Has Referred Demands to Vichy, Hongkong Reports

Copyright by New York Times

Hongkong, Nov. 19.—Reports from Indo-China persist that Japanese warships and transports recently arrived off Saigon and that the Japanese have demanded the right to occupy Saigon.

It is reported that Vice Admiral Jean Decoux, governor-general of Indo-China has referred the demand to Vichy.

Passengers arriving here from Haiphong today confirm that the Japanese have removed a quantity of guns and equipment from there southward.

Indo-China Border Closed

Kunming, Yunnan Province, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—The Chinese government today closed the Indo-China border, prohibiting all traffic between Chinese and French territory.

Issuance of passport visas was suspended and it was announced that the blockade affects "passenger traffic, mails, telegraph communications and trade."

The move was believed designed to cut off foodstuffs and other supplies which have been reaching Japanese-controlled North Indo-China from Chinese sources.

Kung Tells Peace Terms

Chungking, China, Nov. 19 (AP).—Dr. H. H. Kung, China's vice premier and finance minister, declared today "Japan can have peace any time she wants it by withdrawing all troops from China."

"The Japanese government probably would like to talk with Chungking, but China is not interested in words, but deeds," Dr. Kung said in commenting on unofficial Tokyo reports that Japan would seek by direct negotiations with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to end the 40-month-old war.

Planes in Philippines

New York, Nov. 19 (AP).—Domei, Japanese news service, in a dispatch broadcast by the Tokyo radio, declared tonight that approximately 200 United States airmen passed through Shanghai en route to the Philippines.

Domei said persons from Manila reported numerous air bases are under construction in the Philippines.

It said quarters close to the United States military circles look upon construction of air bases in the Philippines as part of a British-United States plan for a chain of bases from the Philippines via Borneo and the Malayan Peninsula to Thailand for the protection of India and Australia.

Red Caps Pay Terminal Co. $32,000 Profit

New Dime-a-Bag Setup a Bonanza For Employers

The Washington Terminal Co. is profiting at the rate of $32,000 a year under the dime-a-bag charge for red cap service installed April 14, a wage-hour division investigation revealed yesterday.

The investigation, which was undertaken at the request of Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, showed that the company made no profit under the tipping system in effect before the adoption of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Many Earn Less

A Post survey last June indicated that many red caps were earning less under the dime-a-parcel system than they had under the tipping system. A company official estimated that "30 per cent of the red caps are dissatisfied with the new set-up."

Under the first 18 months of the Wage-Hour Act's operation, from October 24, 1938, to April 14, 1940, redcaps were forced to report their tips, and the company made up the difference between tips collected and the legal minimum wage. In the 18 months the company paid a total of $584 to more than 200 porters.

Under this system, the Wage-Hour report stated, "minimum wage violations appear to have occurred" since the terminal company "unlawfully deducted" from porters' wages the cost of a uniform, about $50.

Confronted with a Texas court decision, now under appeal, which ruled that tips are not wages and ordered a Dallas Terminal Co. to pay its porders $77,000 in back wages, most terminal companies last spring instituted the dime-a-parcel system.

Wage Increase Refused

Under this set-up porters are paid regular wages of 30 cents an hour the legal minimum, but they must collect 10 cents for each bag carried and turn this in to the company.

Tips were not prohibited, but red caps complained to The Post last June that the 10-cent charge made tips meager. They presented a joint demand for a 39-cent-an-hour wage, but this was refused by the company.

Bankers Criticize Defense Loan Rate

Fear a 1½ to 4% 'Ceiling' May Limit Private Financing

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 19.—The move by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to put a "ceiling" of 1½ to 4 per cent on defense loans may restrict private bank financing of new war industry, informed bankers said today.

A leading banker said the 1½ per cent rate on so-called "facilities loans" involving the pledge of defense contracts as security for repayment of the loans was too low to encourage large-scale private credits.

The arrangement worked out by bankers to extend credits to armament contractors through the pledge of defense contracts, he said, was not actually a Government guarantee of repayment and should carry interest rates allowing for the risk.

Bankers, he explained, were planning such loans at rate of 2½ to 3 per cent.

Might Put Burden on RFC

Borrowers of the highest credit standing, it was said, probably would be able to arrange loans as low as 1½ per cent from commercial banks. Otherwise, it was held, the effect of the defense credits policy announced by Jesse H. Jones, federal loan administrator, might be to throw a larger share of the defense financing upon the RFC.

The 4 per cent top on loans without the security of the "facilities" contracts, bankers suggested, might be too low in regions where interest rates were relatively high.

However, it was said, New York and other financial centers probably would arrange considerable credit for purchase of materials, financing pay rolls and other short-term needs to companies working on defense contracts in the ordinary category of "business loans."

Commercial loans of Federal Reserve member banks have increased steadily in recent weeks to the highest figures since 1937.

A veteran banker said credit losses on World War loans to arms producers would tend to make lenders wary about risking depositors' money again without sufficient margin in the interest rate to cover risks.

Urges Coordinated Financing

Chicago, Nov. 19 (AP).—Emmett F. Connely, of Detroit, president of the Investment Bankers Association of America, proposed tonight that Congress authorize an independent commission of experts to coordinate the efforts of industry and finance in defense preparations.

In an address before the Illinois Manufacturers Costs Association, he suggested that a nonpartisan commission of business experts should be assigned these duties:

"First, to determine the best method of promoting and financing national defense so that the objective will be accomplished with a minimum strain on our national financial resources, while at the same time throwing every possible protection around the system of free enterprise.

"Second, to make an exhaustive study of how our economy can best be adjusted to peace-time activities when the emergency is over."

brought him into contact with workers of all Chest agencies, "a group of people of whom I am proud."

John L. Vandegrift, reporting for the group solicitation unit, drew attention to improved business and income levels here.

"Everything has gone up," he asserted. "And I know that charity needs have increased.

"We are still plugging at the $2,000,000 goal, which is the same as last year's and that of the year before. We ought to be honest and ask for more. The present figure is pitifully small to take care of the charity needs in a town like this."

Vandegrift concluded that "we have a good product in the Chest and a good organization, but we must sell it to the public and that will take work if we are to reach the goal."

Best reports were from the G. B. Macke Co., $400, or 101 per cent increase; Manhattan Laundry, $2,330, or 16 per cent increase, and Raleigh Haberdasher, $1,925, or 10 per cent increase.

Unit reports were Government, 62,574 pledges for $402,417, or 47.34 per cent; group solicitation, 11,920 pledges for $352,938, or 52.68 per cent, and Capital, 531 pledges for $3,268, or 38.44 per cent.

At the head table were Harold G. Dotter, James W. Garber, Wesley Zane, G. C. Emerson, C. Eder Reed, John L. McGrew, Frank L. Luchs, Paul D. Sleeper, Mrs. Horace Pakt, Arthur Hellen, Frank Waldrop, E. Tax Office Faces Major Shake-up

ber 14, was likewise exonerated. The board said "that no evidence has been adduced in this investigation which places responsibility upon Dunn for any part of the shortage. It is expected Dunn will be repaid for time lost since his suspension and be reinstated by the Commissioners.

Meanwhile, the report has been turned over to Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech, who will take legal steps to secure the shortage from the bonding companies.

Despite the shortage, the survey board said neither Miss Vass nor Dunn, "profited by or took unto their own use one dollar thereof."

The board, headed by Byers M. Bachman, deputy tax assessor, consists of Lumpkins and Maj. Beverley C. Snow, assistant Engineer Commissioner. The shortage, the report stated, was "accumulated over a period of years."

The board sharply criticized past procedures in handling of the tax receipts at the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, and concluded: "That if proper supervision had been maintained by the collector of taxes over this detached and isolated collection agency, and if the office of the auditor had been empowered by Commissioners' order to audit funds not deposited by this cashier with the collector of taxes, the shortage would not have occurred."

It was pointed out that at times the cashier permitted a large amount of cash (once $76,000) to accumulate without making a deposit with the collector of taxes. The board recommended two full-time cashiers be stationed at the vehicles department, each operating in separate cages and each independently responsible.

These cashiers would be placed under the complete jurisdiction of the director of vehicles and traffic and bonded to him, the report recommends. Cash collected would be deposited with the collector of taxes on the day received. Other recommendations made by the board follow:

That the use of hand stamps be discontinued, all receipts to be recorded by mechanical devices.

That the auditor be provided with the auditor's key to the cash registers and empowered with authority to examine the registers and make cash audits at any time.

That the cashing of personal checks be prohibited.

That a system be devised, whereby checks tendered in payment of taxes may be identified with coupons.

That a method of providing coupons for titles be established.

That an analysis be made of the entire system pertaining to levying and collection of revenues in the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, including a comparison with and a study of similar operations of traffic departments in other jurisdictions.

Teacher Fined $10 After Pupil Tells Of Being Struck

Arnold Bethke, of 2033 Thirty-eighth Street Southeast, mechanical arts teacher at the Lyndon Hill Elementary School, Seat Pleasant, Md., was fined $10 and costs by Police Magistrate Alan Bowie in Marlboro yesterday on a charge of assaulting Fred McGhee, a pupil October 4.

Bethke, it was testified by McGhee and eight of his fellow pupils, hit the 15-year-old boy with a board, knocking him down, and seized him by the hair to bang his head upon the floor when the pupil refused to do some carpentry work in the manner prescribed by the teacher.

More Power to Thrift— more Thrift from Power

We think most people would rather own a bigger, solider, steadier, roomier, better automobile. Most of them would be willing to spend a little extra for what Buick has to offer—style, size, room, steadiness, durability—if part of that extra could be paid back through lower operating costs.

Especially they would like really satisfying performance — quick take-off, easy hill-climbing, sure power, fast response—if they could have it in a car that's stingy with gasoline.

That's what we've given them—through the extra power in this 1941 Buick.

The added wallop of FIREBALL engine design and Compound Carburetion lets us use more thrifty gear ratios, saving money without complicating extra gears or mechanisms.

And the tremendous reserve-power in these Buick engines—at 40, for instance, you have as much as 85% of your power "on call"—still permits the flashing get-away, the swooping hill-climb, the sure lift out of pinches you once had to buy with heavy gasoline consumption.

So we say—more power to thrift—it helps put Buick thrill and comfort within easy reach.

And the reason is—more thrift from power—from abler engines.

It all adds up to the sensation of the year—the car you ought to see first—the brilliant, able beauty your Buick dealer has waiting for you.

HERE'S MODERN ECONOMY—

You can see how Compound Carburetion steps up miles-per-gallon in this chart. It shows the mileage at 50 miles an hour for our 1937 SPECIAL, our 1939 SPECIAL and the 1941 SPECIAL with Compound Carburetion.

Annapolis, Nov. 19.—George F. Williams, Fort George G. Meade Army private, was found guilty of second-degree murder today in connection with a suicide pact and was given a five-year suspended sentence by Circuit Court Judge Ridgely P. Melvin.

Williams had been charged with first-degree murder as the result of the death of Mrs. Ella Carroll, Washington, from carbon-monoxide poisoning in Williams' automobile last June, near the Army fort.

Williams testified he entered into a suicide pact with the woman but regained consciousness in his closed car, into which exhaust fumes poured through a rubber hose connected with the exhaust pipe. He said he found Mrs. Carroll unconscious.

Wilbur R. Dulin and Edward G. Chaney, defense counsel, contended Williams was innocent of any crime on the grounds that suicide was not a crime under Maryland law. Judge Melvin cited authorities which held that if two persons encourage each other to commit suicide jointly and one succeeds and the other fails in the attempt upon himself, the survivor is the principal in the murder of the other.

"The only phase of the subject about which there can be any doubt," Judge Melvin declared, "is the degree of murder . . . In Maryland it is the accepted rule that every intentional killing is presumed to be murder in the second-degree and that presumption holds unless and until the State proves such circumstances as raise the degree to murder in the first-degree."

Chinese Hear Japan Prepares To Take Saigon

Decoux Has Referred Demands to Vichy, Hongkong Reports

Copyright by New York Times

Hongkong, Nov. 19.—Reports from Indo-China persist that Japanese warships and transports recently arrived off Saigon and that the Japanese have demanded the right to occupy Saigon.

It is reported that Vice Admiral Jean Decoux, governor general of Indo-China has referred the demand to Vichy.

Passengers arriving here from Haiphong today confirm that the Japanese have removed a quantity of guns and equipment from there southward.

Indo-China Border Closed

Kunming, Yunnan Province, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—The Chinese government today closed the Indo-China border, prohibiting all traffic between Chinese and French territory.

Issuance of passport visas was suspended and it was announced that the blockade affects "passenger traffic, mails, telegraph communications and trade."

The move was believed designed to cut off foodstuffs and other supplies which have been reaching Japanese-controlled North Indo-China from Chinese sources.

Kung Tells Peace Terms

Chungking, China, Nov. 19 (AP).—Dr. H. H. Kung, China's vice premier and finance minister, declared today "Japan can have peace any time she wants it by withdrawing all troops from China."

"The Japanese government probably would like to talk with Chungking, but China is not interested in words, but deeds," Dr. Kung said in commenting on unofficial Tokyo reports that Japan would seek by direct negotiations with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to end the 40-month-old war.

Planes in Philippines

New York, Nov. 19 (AP).—Domei, Japanese news service, in a dispatch broadcast by the Tokyo radio, declared tonight that approximately 200 United States airmen passed through Shanghai en route to the Philippines.

Domei said persons from Manila reported numerous air bases are under construction in the Philippines.

It said quarters close to the United States military circles look upon construction of air bases in the Philippines as part of a British-United States plan for a chain of bases from the Philippines via Borneo and the Malayan Peninsula to Thailand for the protection of India and Australia.

New Dime-a-Bag Setup a Bonanza For Employers

The Washington Terminal Co. is profiting at the rate of $32,000 a year under the dime-a-bag charge for red cap service installed April 14, a wage-hour division investigation revealed yesterday.

The investigation, which was undertaken at the request of Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, showed that the company made no profit under the tipping system in effect before the adoption of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Many Earn Less

A Post survey last June indicated that many red caps were earning less under the dime-a-parcel system than they had under the tipping system. A company official estimated that "30 per cent of the red caps are dissatisfied with the new set-up."

Under the first 18 months of the Wage-Hour Act's operation, from October 24, 1938, to April 14, 1940, redcaps were forced to report their tips, and the company made up the difference between tips collected and the legal minimum wage. In the 18 months the company paid a total of $584 to more than 200 porters.

Under this system, the Wage-Hour report stated, "minimum wage violations appear to have occurred" since the terminal company "unlawfully deducted" from porters' wages the cost of a uniform, about $50.

Confronted with a Texas court decision, now under appeal, which ruled that tips are not wages and ordered a Dallas Terminal Co. to pay its porters $77,000 in back wages, most terminal companies last spring instituted the dime-a-parcel system.

Wage Increase Refused

Under this set-up porters are paid regular wages of 30 cents an hour the legal minimum, but they must collect 10 cents for each bag carried and turn this in to the company.

Tips were not prohibited, but red caps complained to The Post last June that the 10-cent charge made tips meager. They presented a joint demand for a 39-cent-an-hour wage, but this was refused by the company.

North Carolina State Dance to Be Nov. 30

Miss Harriet Elliott, member of the National Defense Commission and dean of women at North Carolina University, will speak briefly before members of the North Carolina State Society Saturday night, November 30, at the Shoreham Hotel.

Comptroller General Lindsey C. Warren will be among honored guests from the State. A dance will follow the meeting. The Post yesterday erroneously reported that the dance was scheduled for this Friday.

No Goodwill Employe Need Eat Turkey Alone

No employes of the Goodwill Industries of Washington need eat his turkey in solitude, W. Harold Snape, director, announced yesterday.

A Thanksgiving Day dinner will be served at Goodwill, 1218 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest, at 1 p. m., followed by games and singing, for all employes who might otherwise have to celebrate the holiday alone.

Wagner Will Seek Security Extension

Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, said yesterday that he would reintroduce in the new Congress, which meets in January, legislation to extend the Social Security Act to an estimated 10,000,000 persons not now receiving benefits.

"The recent elections have established the objectives and principles of the Social Security Act more firmly in American life than ever before," Wagner said. "Congress should now press forward without delay in the essential task of extending this act to the millions not now protected by its terms."

Council to Meet On Housing New Defense Workers

The National Defense Council of the District will meet today at 3 p. m. in the office of Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, highway director.

The group will discuss housing of persons coming to the Capital for the defense program. Committee heads on the council are also expected to submit names of committee members for recommendation to the Commissioners.

On the council are the three Commissioners; Health Officer George C. Ruhland, Robert E. Bondy, welfare director; Guy W. Pearson, chief clerk of the engineering department; Police Chief Ernest W. Brown; John Blake Gordon, director of sanitary engineering; P. Y. K. Howat, of the Board of Trade.

Joseph E. Davies Named Chairman for Inauguration

Former Ambassador Will Resign As Special State Department Aide To Head Plan-Making for Event

Joseph E. Davies, former Ambassador to Russia and Belgium, will be chairman of arrangements for the third-term inauguration on January 20, President Roosevelt announced at his press conference yesterday.

To take the chairmanship Davies will resign as special assistant to the Secretary of State, the President said. He thas had the latter assignment since last January, shortly after relinquishing his ambassadorial duties in Brussels.

The chairman-designate was in New York City when his appointment was announced and information as to the selection of subcommittee chairman and preparation of other plans for the inauguration was not available.

President Acts Early

In naming the man who will have charge of arrangements for the parade, seating and other details, the President acted three weeks earlier than he did in 1936. His choice then was the late Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, who had supervised arrangements for Mr. Roosevelt's first inauguration in 1933.

In his letter of resignation to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, dated yesterday, Davies asked that he be relieved as of January 2. The communication did not mention the inaugural chairmanship, the writer explaining simply that he found it necessary to leave public service in order to devote attention to personal affairs.

Replying, Secretary Hull commended Davies' State Department record since he entered the service in 1936 as Ambassador to Russia.

"I am glad to know, however . . . that you will be available for further service in the event of need," Secretary Hull wrote.

Unity Display Expected

The fact that President Roosevelt appointed the inaugural chairman three weeks earlier than in 1936, combined with the circumstance of Davies' resignation from the State Department to assume the new responsibility, was viewed as lending credence to reports the third-term inauguration will consist of something more than the traditional oath-taking and parade.

According to persons who assisted in the 1933 and 1937 inaugurations, the White House is examining the idea of making the 1941 event the occasion for a national demonstration of preparedness and political unity.

Population of U. S., Possessions Set At 150,362,326

The Census Bureau yesterday placed the population of the United States, its territories and possessions at 150,362,326.

This represented an increase of 11,923,257, or 8.6 per cent over the 1930 census, on the basis of preliminary figures.

The continental United States population previously had been placed at 131,409,881, an increase of 7 per cent. The population of territories and possessions, excluding the Philippine Islands, was placed at 2,596,445, a gain of 443,422, or 20.7 per cent.

The Philippine Islands count, an estimate based on censuses taken in January, 1939, and December, 1918, was 16,356,000, an increase of 2,843,000, or 21 per cent.

Swiss Dissolve Totalitarian Organization

Stern Decree Answers 'Ultimatum' To the Government

By the Associated Press

Bern, Switzerland, Nov. 19.—The Swiss government tonight ordered the dissolution of the totalitarian group known as the National Movement.

This was the government's answer to the movement's "request" for recognition as "standard bearer of new political and social ideas."

Der Bund of Bern, an organ which frequently expresses the Swiss government's views, recently called the movement "a true copy of Germany's Nationalist Socialist Party."

On November 15, the organization had offered what some commentators called an ultimatum, demanding immediate permission for its press to resume publication, freedom for imprisoned members of the National Circle, and restitution for the "moral and economic damage" done to the circle's members.

The order of the Federal Council, announced over the Nation-wide radio in Switzerland's three national languages, said that the movement "and all its subsidiaries" were dissolved. The dissolution is effective tomorrow.

The "subsidiaries" include the organization's newspaper.

A communique of the Federal Council said:

"The National Movement tried recently to transform by illegal procedure Swiss institutions and to compromise public order and create conflict."

The official communique, detailing the illegal means by which it was said the totalitarian organization planned the overthrow of the Government, said they included:

Issuance of secret instructions; the establishment of secret cells of party members; the creation of semimilitary strongarm squads for youth.

Antidraft Writer Asks to Test Law's Constitutionality

Mattoon, Ill., Nov. 19 (AP).—Waldo E. Upton, 30-year-old bottling plant foreman, said today that he was the author of circulars seeking members for the "National Antidraft Association," reported in Cleveland yesterday.

Upton said he wanted to make a court test of the draft law, because he believed it violated the thirteenth (involuntary servitude) amendment to the Constitution. He said he had asked for a $1 membership fee in an effort to finance his proposed test.

He registered, he said, and was given No. 52 as his local board call number. So far, Upton said, he was the sole member of the association, although he had received several inquiries.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

THANKSGIVING EVE is a fine "rise and shine night" for merry-making. And the night spots are all ready for big crowds . . . The "Thanksgiving Party" in the Wardman Metronome Room will have all the trimmin's and reservations have piled in from as far away as Baltimore, Hagerstown and Winchester. Sonny James' band drew the biggest crowd of the season to Metronome last Saturday and tonight's party will probably crack another record . . . Del Rio will also toss a Thanksgiving fiesta tonight with plenty of to-do and gala. This will be your last chance to hear George Beatty's too-exciting songs. For a new Del Rio revue opens tomorrow, headed by Steve Evans (recently headlined at the Capitol Theater) and the dancing Statler Twins.

St. Clair and Day, the polished dancers who have enchained attention at the Shoreham for months, have just been signed by Earl Carroll to appear in his Hollywood theater-restaurant. They will close in the Shoreham Blue Room on December 7 after a full 20 weeks, leave Washington on December 15, open in Hollywood on December 26. This gives you only a short time longer to enjoy these superb artists.

REGINE COVO, whose lively voice will be heard in the new picture, "Song of Life," opens at the Troika this evening. She's been in the United States only five months, but already made the Hollywood grade. Though born in Russia, Mme. Covo is of French descent, was educated in China and France. Paris' Maisonette Russe was the scene of her singing debut. She'll warble at Troika in Spanish, French, Russian and prettily broken English.

CHAIN OF FOXES. The smart Silver Fox cocktail lounge in Chevy Chase is a younger sister of the Red Fox Tavern out near Hyattsville where you get those scrumptuous chicken dinners. Busy Fred Johansen owns and operates both places.

THE CHINESE ARE COMING! Lotus will really go Chinese next week. A troupe of seven brilliant Chinese vaudeville performers will head the new revue, opening on Monday. There'll also be a line-up of eight dancers, other novelty acts. Recent big shows at Lotus have been so successful that manager Dick Lam seems set to continue the policy . . . Monday's luncheon session was enlivened by Maestro "Tiny" Meeker and the big party of the Columbia Ladies' Club in honor of their new president, Mrs. Harry Neff

Most unique car around town is the British Standard sports auto in light gray with red leather upholstery just purchased by Manager Frank Swadley, of the Carlton. The plant where it was made was recently bombed.

FOOD 'N' GEOGRAPHY. Gene Archer, of the Neptune Room, vows that he can cook Italian as well as sing Italian. We're waiting for a fine mess of meatballs and spaghetti compounded by Archer . . . Madrillon's pollo en cazuela a la Catalana is one of the rarest of Spanish dishes. It's spring chicken glorified with Spanish seasoning and all manner of vegetables . . . The new Bravarian does remarkably savory things to calf's liver, cooked Bavarian style . . . Dick's Grill specializes in shrimp dressed up in the Creole manner which combines Spanish and French cuisine . . . Loads of people dote on the Virginia-style fried chicken diners served at River Bend. Quantity and quality, too . . . And you can bet that the All-American roast turkey at the Harrington Tavern tomorrow will be pretty swell, too.

WANTED, A NAME. Rodd Rafell wrote the luring Nightingale theme song in 15 minutes. But 15 weeks have gone by and he hasn't been able to figure a title or lyrics to suit him. If you've a knack for catchy phrases, please pass 'em along to Maestro Rodd so that the Nightingalers can sing as well as play their theme song.

PROPHETIC SPIRITS. Leo of the Mayfair has been giving the stars another going over—tells us that President Roosevelt will take the rackets out of labor, finish his third term in the White House, but that the Republicans will be due for a real break in 1944 . . . A prophet of parts, too, is Guido who's just arrived in the Anchor Room. He foretold Huey Long's violent death, Joan Crowford's divorce, Sonja Henje's contract troubles, Bette Davis' rise to the top rank of movie stars.

Rae Marsh, luscious warbler, discovered and sponsored by Harry Richman, opens in Paul Young's Romany Room tonight. She's strictly a 1941 model canary. And don't miss the new team, Marvin and White, in their impression of Hyattsvilleickies. They do Hyattsville proud.

TELLING 'EM OFF. Lounge Riviera. "So he says he's 32. Why, he held up Schumann-Heink for McKinley to kiss" . . . Rainbow Room. "That schemer tried to get me tight." "Didn't have much trouble, did he?" . . . Mayflower Lounge. "There's a guy who never loses a friend or gets into an argument. He wore Roosevelt buttons under one coat lapel all summer and Willkie buttons under the other."

EVE'S BACK. Golden-haired Eve Knight, former star of the Kinn Cole Room, will do some verra pretty radio dramatics in next Sunday's "Washington Calling" we heard from Radio Live Wire George Gunn. On December 2 she'll open a singing engagement in a Washington club.

OF THE MUSICMAKERS. Jean Cathon sings in La Salle Versailles of evenings but every afternoon you'll find him on the side-lines at Burt's Trans-Lux, zinging low to Beverly Stull's accordion . . . If Felix Zimmer, of the Casino Royal, would only look stern he'd be Karloff's twin . . . Bert Bernath's Orchestra in the Pall Mall Room probably plays more kinds of dance music than any other band in town. They do mazurkas, schottisches and old fashioned waltzes every eve as part of the Arthur Murray program . . . Eileen George of the Anchor Room is singing the cleverest version of "Ain't It a Shame About Mame" that you'll hear outside of the Crosby picture. . . The Hi Hat's Jimmy Summerville swallowed a toothpick on Monday, still has his health—we think.

2 Ships Will Leave Shanghai Today With 502 Americans

By the Associated Press

Shanghai (Wednesday), Nov. 20.—The American Liners Washington and President Taft prepared to sail this afternoon with 502 Americans leaving the Orient at the prompting of the State Department.

The Washington expected to pick up possibly 700 additional Americans at Manila and the President Taft will pick up at least 140 at Kobe and Yokohama.

Approximately 2,500 Americans still remain here, including 1,000 women, children and men who face the possibility of being stranded in the event of a crisis in Japanese-American relations.

An estimated 3,000 Americans will have been evacuated from all China by January 1, officials estimated. That will leave between 4,000 and 5,000 Americans to carry on business or missionary work.

300 Evacuees Arrive

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, Nov. 19.—Navy wives, missionaries, authors and more than 80 children arrived today from the war-torn Orient.

They brought varying emotions—thankfulness for escape, loneliness for relatives left behind and fears for the future of their faraway homes.

Some slept in lounges and smoking rooms on the long trip, so crowded was the President Pierce, with its more than 300 passengers—most of whom were classed as evacuees.

The passenger with the most dire prediction was Harrison Foreman, New York author and lecturer. He said his recent stay in the Orient led him to believe "Japan has the nerve to risk national suicide, now. She tasted white blood in French Indo-China, and found it surprisingly easy. She'll move into the Dutch East Indies by spring, despite our warnings, and we'll be at war unless we back down."

Amos Burg, of Portland, Ore., explorer and writer, said he was in 25 bombing raids and saw the Chinese capital, Chungking, leveled last August.

"The Chinese started building immediately. Their spirit will be hard to beat," he asserted.

Mrs. Jo Ageton, wife of Lieut. Comdr. A. A. Ageton of the United States Navy at Shanghai, and other 2-year-old daughter, Mary Jo, were en route to Coronado, Calif.

"I'm really an American flag-waver, I'll tell you," Mrs. Ageton commented, "and I'm glad to be out of the Orient—as most of us are."

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Detroit, Nov. 19 (INS).—Y. Frank Freeman announced today that Paramount will poll 150 top book critics in a nation-wide check on their casting suggestions for "For Whom the Bell Tolls." If the literary gentlemen aren't too completely bowled over by this sudden attention from Hollywood, they will play a big part in picking not only the hero and heroine, but other big roles including the Amazonian pilar Pablo and the gypsy Raphael.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Gary Cooper and Clark Gable have both been mentioned for the Robert Jordon role. Paulette Goddard has been rumored for the torrid heroine, Maria and, at least she is under contract to Para, which is more than can be said for the disputed Gary and M-G-M's Mr. Gable.

Carmen Miranda, who arrived in Hollywood Sunday, has notified Twentieth that she must be finished in "Road To Rio" in five weeks and that's final. She's due in New York to start rehearsals on the new Shubert show New Year's week. I happen to know Darryl Zanuck has another South American story lined up for the chanting songstress, but even the temptation of Hollywood gold can't lure her to change her mind about Broadway. "Perhaps I come back later," she sighed, "but I know I am good on the stage. I do not know about the movies—yet!"

Snapshots of Hollywood and Detroit collected at random: Deanna Durbin's brand new nephew's name is Richard Durbin Heckman; Orson Welles waited two hours at the airport to meet Dolores Del Rio's plane; Jack Kriendler wires that Luisa Dumont de Chassart got her divorce Monday and they will be married Wednesday. Never knew anyone so in love as the genial host of "21;" Jean Arthur was the big surprise of the "Arizona" did a right about face and entertained at a cocktail party on the train, made five public appearances, did two radio broadcasts, posed for photographers and knocked the boys for a loop.

Snow in Detroit sent us all to buy galoshes. Brenda Joyce was like a small child and Bill Orr was just as excited over the real winter weather; the sound man at the Fox-Theater, Earl McGlennen, took Robert Cummings and me across the street to an Elk's benefit, where we spoke briefly; June Preisser, who used to entertain at the Detroit Athletic Club, gave us a fine party there after Saturday's show. Charles Hughes, secretary of the club, told of June's great success in Detroit—and I can believe it. What a little show woman she is! Detroit has never seen anyone like Virginia O'Brien who was brought back for six curtain calls.

Julanne Johnstone, Douglas Fairbanks, sr.'s, former leading lady, is married to David Rust, one of Detroit's well known young men. I received flowers from her and a note saying she was coming to see our show.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Leaders Ask Defense Jobs For Colored

Petition to Roosevelt Says Discrimination Is Being Practiced

A committee of six colored leaders called at the White House yesterday to urge the removal of discrimination against their race in defense industries and ask the appointment of a colored citizen to the next Supreme Court vacancy.

They did not get to see the President, but White House Secretary Stephen Early received them and immediately granted one of the requests on their 10-point program—the admission of colored correspondents to White House press conferences.

The petition they presented was drawn up at last week-end's conference of the National Negro Council here. It urged the setting up of training facilities for colored aviators by the Army and Navy, an increase in the professional training facilities at Howard University, more aid for Negro land grant colleges, and the appointment of Negro officers to command Negro regiments in the regular Army.

The committee was led by Edgar G. Brown, president of the United Government Employes and chairman of the National Negro Council.

Dam Workers Riot in Carolinas to Oust 'Yankee' Workers

Nantahala, N. C., Nov. 19 (U.P.)—Gov. Clyde R. Hoey tonight dispatched a detachment of six highway patrolmen to the scene of the $6,500,000 Nantahala Dam project to prevent further rioting, and ordered other detachments to stand by for emergencies.

Construction work on the 270-foot dam project, an important link in President Roosevelt's plans for a series of power projects to aid in the national defense, was halted after a series of fist fights between workers from New York and workers from the South and West who ordered the "Yankees" out to make more employment for natives.

B. R. Putman, construction superintendent for the Utah Construction Co., which is building the dam, appealed for protection for the Northern workers after six of them were thrown into a creek and nearly 100 drew their pay and left with their families. Most of the men being forced out, he said, were skilled workmen who could not be replaced from among the native workers.

Gov. Hoey, in Raleigh, said after telephone conferences with Putman and Sheriff A. B. Slagle of Macon County that he feared there might be more trouble at the dam. Putman said the "place is virtually under mob rule and we can't operate with a setup like that." Slagle already had augmented a force of deputy sheriffs at the scene.

Nearly 700 men were employed on the project, with about 100 of them skilled tunnel workers described by Putman as "key men." Fights broke out again today with workers picketing various parts of the dam project to prevent the Northerners from going to their jobs.

No serious injuries were reported in the rioting.

The construction company a month ago settled a labor strike at the dam, which is being built for the Nantahala Power & Light Co., a subsidiary of the Aluminum Co. of America which has plants at nearby Badin, N. C., and Alcoa, Tenn. The dam is being built to serve those plants. A similar dam project in Jackson County is almost completed.

Federal Workers President to Resign

Jacob Baker, president of the United Federal Workers of America, announced yesterday he soon would resign in accord with an agreement between that organization and the Congress of Industrial Organizations. A successor, it was said, will be named by the C. I. O. after its convention, now being held in Atlantic City.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

A Snooping Easterner Lamps a 'Super-Western'

Mr. Galanty Wires His Report on 'Arizona;' 'Bitter Sweet' an Exquisite Color Job; This, That and the Other About the Theater

TRUE TO HIS WORD, that high-strung, wild-and-woolly drugstore cowboy, Sam Galanty, Mideast Division manager for Columbia Pictures, wires from the back of his bucking broncho in Tucson, Ariz., that "Arizona" is a whale of a picture. To place responsibility for the estimate squarely where it belongs, we might as well quote Mr. Western Union: "A great motion picture telling a great story. Loaded with every element of emotion. Played by an inspired cast. Epic in its magnitude—that's 'Arizona.' Regards."

BELL

From occasional postcards mailed on location by costars Jean Arthur and William Holden during production, and the fulminations of Eddie Rosenbaum and the other members of the "'Arizona' Flying Squadron" of high-pressure pufflicists, we somehow gathered long ago that this would be a top-drawer "Western." Directed by Wesley Ruggles, the maker of the memorable "Cimarron," it ought to be.

The cast is something to conjure with. Headed by the two already mentioned, it also includes Porter Hall, Warren William, Regis Toomey—and where has he been hiding?—Paul Harvey, Rita Hayworth, Glenn Ford, Paul Lukas, Jack Holt, Johnnie Mack Brown—and where has he been ditto-ing?—Fay Wray, Guy Kibbee, Florence Rice and Charlie Ruggles. If Director Ruggles—Charlie's brother, by the way—couldn't wheedle something important out of that roster of talent, he ought to be spoken to sharply by someone with a macerating voice.

And if it ain't so, Master Galanty will be doing all right for himself by remaining on the West Coast, where he is getting in the way of people at work in the studio.

Tickets for tonight's public preview of "Bitter Sweet"—without stage show—now are on sale at four locations in addition to the box offices at Loew's Capitol, where the midnight showing will be held: Loew's Palace and the Columbia. These convenient spots are the information desk at Murphy's F Street store; the Albany Pharmacy, Seventeenth and H Streets; the Southern Drug Co., Fifteenth and Streets, and Carl and Dave's Restaurant, 1700 Connecticut Avenue all Northwest. Western Union, furthermore, will deliver tickets at nominal fee to any address in the District of Columbia. All tickets are priced at 66 cents. Doors will open at 11:45, with the picture going on at midnight. So now you know.

Director Woody S. Van Dyke II, has turned in a ne plus ultra Technicolor job in "Bitter Sweet" and Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy sing the Noel Coward score in their best Sunday voices. Even the presumably hard-berled guys and gals of the press "oh'd" and "ah'd" at some of the color effects revealed upon the screen at yesterday's unwinding for the drayma desks. When "Zigeuner" is unfurled as the picture's opulent finale, it is projected against a background of white and autumnal browns that is as lovely a thing as any screen-gazing eye ever has seen. For heavier tones and bizarre color combinations, there is Schlick's cafe in Vienna. Schlick's must have been quite a spot! In the hands of Woody Van Dyke, Noel, in short, has out-Viennaed the Viennese—an extremely neat trick for an Englishman.

If you are still listening, the Red Book Magazine's selection for its "picture of the month," in the December issue, is "The Letter," starring Bette Davis and opening on the Earle screen tomorrow morning. We already have told you about this one—with more to come, you'll be sorry to hear.

In case you couldn't get out to that hair-raiser in Griffith Stadium last Sabbath, motion pictures of the Washington Redskins-Chicago Bears professional football game will be shown on the screens of all the Sidney Lust theaters in and around the National Capital, beginning today. The films comprise the entire footage of a Paramount News Special and show most of the thrilling plays in the game, including many closeups of the action—and we mean action.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Nov. 19.

DORIS DUKE: Senator Barbour, who defeated your husband, Jimmy Cromwell, for the United States Senatorship from New Jersey, may face a protest against his being seated in the Senate—on a charge of excessive campaign expenditures . . . H. G. WELLS: This is the shape of things to come: Wells Lewis, son of Sinclair Lewis—and who was named after you—will quit his newspaper job on January 1 to go into the Army . . . HAROLD ICKES: Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau wanted to follow your lead in submitting his resignation—but the President would have none of it . . . JULES ROMAINS: Your two esteemed colleagues, Giradoux and Antoine de Saint Exupery—who wrote "Wind, Sand and Stars"—will arrive in this country shortly, for good-will.

HARRY HOPKINS: A new cornerstone had to be prepared at the ceremonies for the new Weather Bureau building in Washington last Friday. The old cornerstone had your name on it instead of that of your successor, Jesse Jones. . . . Up until the last moment the Weather Bureau officials were in a quandry—wondering whether the ceremonies dedicating their new building should be held indoors or out . . . because they weren't quite sure whether it would rain. But luck was with them. The rain started only a few minutes after the ceremonies were over.

ALFRED LANDON: The pay envelopes of all Borden employes on November 15 carried a message from Theodore G. Montague, president of the company, urging national unity . . . BILLY ROSE: When Eleanor Holm learned that a Boston museum was going to exhibit some of the masterpieces you own, she said: "Anything can happen in this world—when a carnival guy and a backstroke swimmer have Titians to lend to a museum in Boston" . . . STEPHEN EARLY: Some of the White House correspondents have written letters to Time magazine protesting against the report of your policeman-kneeing incident, as carried in its special election issue.

SONNY WHITNEY: Joe Fejer, the Hungarian violinist whose orchestra played at many of the Whitney and Vanderbilt functions for a number of years, now is a wine and liquor salesman. He played three solos at the Copacabana Sunday night. When asked to do an encore, he said: "That's enough—for two cases of whisky" . . . TOMMY CORCORAN: Ben Cohen expects to remain with the Administration even though you'll go into private practice . . . AGVA: Fred Allen and Jack Benny, who have refused $25,000 a week for a joint personal appearance, will go to Miami at the premiere of their picture in that city—and appear there gratis.

WALTER WANGER: You're responsible, in part, for the exhibition by the students of Kansas City Art Institute at the Associated American Art Galleries in New York—the first time such an event has occurred. When Reeves Lewenthal, director of Associated American Art Galleries, went to Hollywood for you, he stopped at Kansas City to dine with Thomas Benton. Benton invited 15 of his pupils, all under 30, and challenged Lewenthal to match the technical excellence of these young artists. And so the New York exhibit was arranged, with canvases and their sales prices selected by Benton . . . RUBY KEELER: The Al Jolson show, "Hold on to Your Hats"—which you quit before its New York premiere—already has paid off its investment.

In Hollywood

Hollywood, Nov. 19.

"Bitter Sweet" is certainly sweet for Jeanette MacDonald and Adrian. Boy! What a combination! Every scene is bathed in beauty, and without using any harsh colors. Have you ever noticed that Jeanette has the prettiest mouth and teeth on the screen? The picture's a little bitter for Nelson Eddy. Unless my eyesight's failing, he isn't what I'd call a dashing romantic Viennese. Fay Holden and Jane Beecher in their short scenes gave the picture such a quality of dignity. Diana Lewis (Mrs. Bill Powell) advanced her career no end by playing a lisping little Victorian gold-digger.

HOPPER

The superb dance number at the finish is not only breath-taking—it's subtle, sophisticated, gay. Each couple was a picture. "The Ziegfeld Girl" will have a hard time topping that number. A low salaam, please, to Ernest Matray who produced it.

"Thank You, Columbus," which opened last week at the Hollywood Playhouse, is a 50,000 gesture of gratitude from Producers G. V. Gontard and Curt Bois for the chance to produce their musical based on American history. Gontard, who boasts a Ph.D. from two universities, Berlin and Southern California, once published an anti-Nazi magazine, before the Nazis ever came into power in Germany.

Immediately on coming to power, the Gestapo sought him out and he escaped by posing as his own brother, a famous big game hunter, and they got off his trail long enough for him to escape to America, where his grandfather, Adolphus Busch, had founded one of the world's largest breweries, Anheuser-Busch. He's put a small fortune into "Thank You, Columbus" and opens with a cast of unknowns.

If the masses of our people who have come to take their American liberties for granted, took a page out of the books of these two naturalized citizens, Gontard and Bois, we'd have no worries about our national unity.

Clarence Brown, after doing a delicate scene between Hedy Lamarr and Jimmy Stewart six times, said "Print it—it's perfect." The sound man said, "Huh-uh — someone talked." Brown said, "Well, I'll be—" Then it was discovered he had done the talking.

Film Veteran

Although born in England and by heredity Greek, George Zucco, who today is appearing with Claudette Colbert and Ray Milland in "Arise My Love," is truly a veteran of American films, for he worked in his first American production, "Three Weeks," in 1912.

Holiday Screen Attractions Open Tomorrow; 'DuBarry Was a Lady,' at National, Monday

"DUBARRY WAS A LADY," the B. G. DeSylva musical comedy starring Bert Lahr opens a road tour at the National Theater Monday evening after a New York engagement of 30 weeks. Frances Williams, seen here last season in "Three After Three," has the title role in this rowdy frolic of a men's washroom attendant in the Club Petite who takes a Micky Finn in error and fancies that he is Louis the Fifteenth. Husky-voiced Comedienne Miss Williams is the leading lady of the club's floor show who becomes Dubarry to Lahr's monarch. Cole Porter wrote the music and DeSylva and Herbert Fields the book. Ruth Bond, Benny Baker, Oscar Ragland and Ronald Graham head the supporting cast of 50. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Palace

"ESCAPE." Norma Shearer, Robert Taylor and Alla Nazimova have the pivotal roles in this picturization of last season's sensational fiction triumph—the story of an actress-mother's escape from the grasp of the Nazis. Written by a celebrated, though unknown author under the nom de plume of Ethel Vance, the story further employs Conrad Veidt, Felix Bressart, Albert Basserman, Philip Dorn, Bonita Granville, Blanche Yurka, Elsa Basserman and Edgar Barrier. Mervyn LeRoy directed the thriller. Opens tomorrow morning.

Earle

"THE LETTER." Bette Davis plays W. Somerset Maugham's heroine—the wife of a Singapore plantation owner whose murder of a young man appears justified until a letter is found which places her in grave danger. Herbert Marshall plays the husband. James Stephenson, her lawyer, and the supporting company includes Frieda Inescourt, Gale Sondergaard, Bruce Lester, Elizabeth Earl and Willie Fung. Ken Murray's humor tops the stage revue which further offers Wynn Murray's song-shouting, Betty Atkinson's dancing and Park and Clifford. The Roxyettes also are on hand with new routines. Opens tomorrow morning.

RKO-Keith's

"YOU'LL FIND OUT." Kay Kyser's successor to his daft screen debut, "That's Right, You're Wrong," employs the orchestra leader's radio associates as well as three bad men of the screen—Peter Lorre, Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi. The story takes place in an heiress's mansion wherein the horror trio attempts to murder the girl for her fortune. Helen Parrish, Dennis O'Keefe, Alma Kruger, Ginny Simms, Harry Babbitt, Ish Kabibble and Sully Mason are featured. The new "March of Time," "Arms and the Men—U. S. A." also is on the bill. Opens tomorrow morning.

Capitol

"BITTER SWEET." Noel Coward's tuneful operetta comes to the screen with Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy teamed again in the leads. The musical has been photographed in technicolor and includes in its score "I'll See You Again," "Zigeuner" and "What is Love." W. S. Van Dyke II directed and George Sanders, Ian Hunter, Diana Lewis, Lynne Carver and Felix Bressart are in the cast. On the stage, Fague Springman and a chorus of 40 sing the "Ballad for Americans" and Lela Moore, Carlton Emmy and his Mad Wags, the Arnolds, Renna and Company and Earlin King are featured. Complete bill opens tomorrow morning. Preview of "Bitter Sweet" at midnight tonight.

Metropolitan

"TUGBOAT ANNIE SAILS AGAIN." Marjorie Rambeau, whose latest success was as the mother in "The Primrose Path," revives the role of the lady captain made famous by the late Marie Dressler. Alan Hale plays Capt. Bullwinkle, Annie's "pet hate" and the supporting company includes Ronald Reagan, Jane Wyman, Clarence Kolb, Charles Halton, Paul Hurst, Victor Kilian and Dana Dale. Opens tomorrow morning.

Columbia

"THE GREAT DICTATOR." After two weeks at the Palace, the Charlie Chaplin satire moves down F Street for a continuation of its current policy, continuous showings at advanced prices: matinees, 75 cents, and evenings, $1.10. The story concerns a barber of the Ghetto who resembles Hynkle, dictator of Tumania. A case of mistaken identity brings the barber to power after a war has been arranged by Hynkle and Napolini, a rival dictator, for the occupation of a neighboring country. Paulette Goddard and Jack Oakie are featured. Opens tomorrow morning.

Riverside Stadium

"ICE FOLLIES OF 1940." The spectacular revue on ice is in its last four nights here, but will offer matinees tomorrow and Saturday afternoons. A company of 70 Olympic skaters headed by Evelyn Chandler, Roy and Eddie Shipstad, Bess Earhardt, Frick and Frack and Bruce Mapes appears in a full two-act revue of comedy, songs and dances.

"THE BAKER'S WIFE." The remarkable French film begins its sixth week at the Ninth Street cinema this morning, breaking the house record. Raimu is the star, playing the role of the simple baker who cannot work because his wife has run off with the marquis' shepherd. John Erskine wrote the English subtitles.

Trans-Lux

"WAY OF THE WILD." A two-reel camera study filmed in the tree-tops of the African jungle of its inhabitants is the principal short subject of the news-reel center for the coming week. Two short comedies, Our Gang in "All About Hash" and Popeye in "Poop Deck Pappy," also supplement the news clips. Opens Friday morning.

Children's Theater

"THE SECRET GARDEN. Next to "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "The Secret Garden" is Frances Hodgson Burnett's best-loved work and will be the season's second production of the Children's Theater of New York. The performance will be given Saturday morning at 10:30 in the National Theater and tickets are available only at the office of the Children's Theater, 1734 F Street.

Gayety

"GIRLS, GIRLS, AHOY!" The incoming burlesque production at the Gayety Theater will open Sunday afternoon with Rose La Rose in the starring position. The display artiste will be supported by a cast familiar to local burlesque-followers—Bob Furguson, Max Coleman, Mary Murray and Winnie Garrett. Ann Cario, this week's star, will terminate her engagement at the midnight performance Saturday.

Robert Taylor Is Real Flying Fan

Robert Taylor has thousands of fans who would go miles to catch a glimpse of him. But he himself is a complete fan when he gets around an airport. The other day he went through the United Airport at Burbank and the first person he asked to meet was Jimmy Madden, the 'round-the-world flier, who is now a Government test pilot. It was Madden who flew James Stewart on a nonstop flight about a year ago.

Taylor asked Madden if he would have his picture taken with him. Maybe Madden might have been interested in the film business, but he didn't get a chance to ask Taylor about it, Bob was so busy talking airplanes. It was the same way with the other pilots who, when they talked to him, found he was as "down to earth" as themselves about the flying game.

Need For Planning

The necessity of careful planning has been demonstrated in connection with the Navy Department's new office building to be erected near Arlington Ridge Road and Columbia Pike. Location of the building in Virginia may avert some added congestion in Washington, but it is feared that a housing problem will arise just the same. For the area chosen for the project is one of small homes, and there is some doubt whether it can accomodate the 5,000 workers. The relief to the District would not be complete if a large proportion of the employes had to find lodgings here and travel to Virginia over routes not yet adjusted to heavy traffic.

Since the site for the Navy Department's building has been decided upon, it would be idle to speculate on whether a better one could have been chosen in this case. But, wherever time permits careful consideration, it would be well to follow the method used in placing the Social Security Building. After determining the predominant type of worker in such a building, the Park and Planning Commission and the Social Security Board looked for the greatest concentration of housing within the workers' means and requirements. Only then was the site in Southwest Washington selected.

In this new instance the survey is to follow the choice of a site. But there still is much need for the study, which is being conducted jointly by the Washington planners and the Virginia State Planning Board. Street improvements and changes in zoning, which may be necessary, should not be haphazard. If there is to be added residential construction, contractors and public agencies must know how much is wanted and of what types. Finally, the planners must see to it that any related undertakings are so controlled as to produce a minimum of dislocation if the emergency building should be abandoned or converted into a warehouse after the emergency is over.

Tin Leads The Way

A short time ago there was serious discussion of plans for using the resources of the enlarged Export-Import Bank to buy up South American surpluses no longer salable abroad. The emphasis, fortunately, has since shifted to more realistic proposals for the purchase of products that we either do not produce at all or produce in quantities not sufficient to cover domestic requirements. Take, for example, tin. We are almost completely dependent upon Far Eastern sources of supply, and these might be cut off at any time. Arrangements, therefore, have been completed by an RFC subsidiary, the Metals Reserve Corporation, for the purchase from Bolivia of this very essential commodity. While the amount to be delivered yearly over a five-year period constitutes only a small proportion of normal consumption, the arrangement may lead to more direct shipments of ore to this country after facilities for smelting it have been provided, as is planned.

At present all the tin entering the United States has previously been smelted, and in the main by smelters in Britain. For there are difficulties connected with the utilization of Bolivian ore, as it requires special smelting methods, which have been developed by the British. Undoubtedly the cost of operating tin smelters in this country would be higher, too. But in this instance national defense needs amply justify the necessary capital expenditures. The tin agreement, in fact, provides an illuminating example of the way in which we should set about strengthening the economic defenses of this hemisphere. Buying up suspluses indiscriminately would only bring temporary relief to the countries aided, and would pile up troubles for the future. But by selective cultivation of trade in commodities that are useful or essential to national defense, we can develop trade with our Latin-American neighbors upon a sound and enduring foundation, and buttress their resistance to the aggressive bargaining policies of totalitarian governments.

Congress Remains

No doubt a great majority of the Congressmen who reassembled in Washington yesterday would like to go home and remain there until the new session begins on January 3. Congress has been continuously in session for ten and a half months, with only brief recesses for the national political conventions and the election. In that period many legislators have worked hard and are now weary, in addition to being eager to renew their contacts with their constituents at home, particularly at this festive season. Yet the majority have decided to remain in Washington.

The vote on adjournment in the House yesterday reveals a proper sense of obligation. Before the election it was said that many Congressmen remained at the Capital because they feared criticism if they returned home. With the election over, legislators are naturally much less sensitive to criticism of that sort. Presumably the majority voted to stay on the job because the Nation needs their services. Having voted to mobilize part of the country's man power and having called on many groups to be prepared for sacrifices, the House obviously concluded that it, too, should place national interests above the personal wishes of its members.

Opponents of adjournment were surprised at the size of the vote—191 to 148—to keep Congress in session. The majority group included 44 Democrats and the entire bloc of Republicans. And the Senate having accepted this decision, Congress will probably continue in session for several weeks, and there may be no adjournment until the Seventy-sixth Congress expires.

This was all very creditable. But there were other encouraging indications, too. Congress intends to work while it is standing by for possible emergency action. Both houses yesterday approved the conference report on the Ramspeck bill, and sent that measure to the President. This represents the greatest achievement in the field of personnel legislation during recent years, and such action alone would fully justify the resumption of legislative duties, even if there were no emergency to keep Congress on the job.

Other bills of importance await action in the Senate. That body now has a good opportunity to proceed with such measures as the Walter-Logan bill, the Smith Committee amendments to the National Labor Relations Act, and the District reorganization bill. It could greatly facilitate the work of the new Congress by disposing of these issues while there is no pressure for enactment of appropriation bills or special emergency legislation.

Japan's Maneuvers

One of the mysteries in the Far East today is what Japan intends to do with the troops she has withdrawn from Kwangtung and Kwangsi provinces in South China.

The explanation which Tokyo offers for these withdrawals is that the troops were sent to South China originally to cut the supply lines between that area and the outside world running via French Indo-China. Now that Japan has acquired control of valuable military and air bases in that colony, it is explained, there is no longer any need of keeping Japanese troops in Kwangtung and Kwangsi. The Chinese, however, insist that the withdrawals were not voluntary, but came as the inevitable result of a succession of defeats inflicted on Japanese garrisons in the southeast by Chinese guerrillas.

Each of these explanations may be partly true. The occupation of Indo-China has given Japan a great strategic advantage, but, at the same time, her lines in China have been dangerously over-extended, thus exposing her garrisons in certain parts of the occupied area to constant attack. Yet it is doubtful if Japan would have relinquished an inch of conquered territory had it not been, first, that the strain of 40 months of war is beginning to tell, and, secondly, that the war in Europe, and particularly the Nazi victory in Holland and the collapse of France, has given Japan an opportunity to extend her empire to the southeast. In this latter connection the withdrawal of the Japanese troops from Kwangsi and Kwangtung makes it possible for Japan to use these troops for adventures in other areas. Large numbers of them are reported to have been concentrated on Hainan Island, a possible jumping-off point for an attack on Saigon, the French naval base on the southern coast of Indo-China, or the Dutch East Indies.

It may be that the agreement recently concluded between the Dutch East Indies' authorities and Tokyo whereby Japan is to receive a far greater supply of oil from the Dutch East Indies than heretofore may result in a postponement of any plans of conquest the Japanese have entertained regarding the immensely valuable Dutch colony. It is doubtful, however, whether the oil agreement alone will lead to any permanent abandonment of such plans. The British, apparently, do not think so. They have recently given indications of strengthening their garrison at Singapore, and even of increasing their naval force based on that great port. And in view of the not inconsiderable defenses which the Dutch have built up in the East Indies, an act of aggression by Japan would have to be carefully prepared if it is to have any likelihood of quick success. In the circumstances the rumors of a Japanese thrust in the direction of Saigon, which is within striking distance of Borneo, are not to be discounted.

These rumors, furthermore, fit in with the reports that a "last" peace offer is to be made to Chiang Kai-shek by Japan. The Japanese realize that, as long as they are compelled to fight in China, any adventure in the southeast would mean waging a war on two fronts. Could Chiang be persuaded to make peace the "new order" in East Asia would be far easier of accomplishment. There are no indications, however, that the Chungking government has any desire to make peace with Japan except on terms which the Tokyo government could hardly accept. China is determined to fight on. Nevertheless, if China is to fight on effectively she needs far greater aid in money, supplies and airplanes than she has thus far received. The defense of Eastern Asia against further Japanese aggression still begins in China.

Appeal To Patriotism

Powerful reinforcement of the move to heal what John L. Lewis calls the "damnable bickering" in the labor movement is furnished in Mr. Roosevelt's message to the American Federation of Labor convention at New Orleans. It is by no means the first request to come from the White House. But the plea this time contains a new note—an appeal to patriotism. The President asks that "an unselfish, a far-sighted and patriotic effort be made to bring about a just and honorable peace."

These grounds the delegates both at Atlantic City, where the Congress of Industrial Organizations is holding its convention, and at New Orleans may well ponder. We are creating a defense against the spread of an antidemocratic revolution which over vast areas has already deprived labor of any rights except the right to work in slave states. That defense can be built in time only by the "uninterrupted flow of production," as the President puts it. Time was when redistribution was the dominant motif of the Administration's economic policy—redistribution mainly in the interests of labor. Now the stress of policy is upon production—production in the interests of the Nation. And yet the equipment we need cannot be made with speed and efficiency unless the factors of production act as if the times were abnormal. For, as the President said, "sacrifice may be necessary in the future for everyone."

What is being asked of the labor movement is not anything like what is being asked of capital and management. From these latter partners in industry the Administration is expecting risks to be taken in building and using plants which might become idle and profitless after the emergency. From labor, harmony only is asked—harmony that is in their selfish interests as well as in the national weal. The manner in which the labor house is divided against itself has been the greatest factor in interrupting the flow of production.

Basically the strife in the labor movement arises from the quarrel over jurisdictional disputes. The American labor movement has long been founded upon the principle of exclusive jurisdiction—that is, only one union has been permitted in a given field. The principle came into vogue with the A. F. of L., which was anxious to keep the craft unions from being absorbed by the Knights of Labor. Now the C. I. O. of late years has been trying in turn to swallow the craft unions. It is, therefore, clear that exclusive jurisdiction, which is rejected in the Wagner Act, must go if peace—permanent peace—is to be attained.

The effort once more to sink the intra-labor feud after five years of a war that has been wasting alike to labor and the Nation may this time make more headway. But, as Mr. Roosevelt recognizes, unity cannot come overnight. Perhaps the most that one can expect is a truce, if not a Missouri compromise; but the Nation will be back of the President in insisting that the call of patriotism should compel the renewal of conversations. It is now up to the C. I. O. to accept the A. F. of L. offer to meet "any time, any place."

A Pretty Pass, Cornell

The Dartmouth-Cornell game last Saturday wasn't won even when it was over. At the end of the game the scoreboard showed Cornell in front by a 7-3 count. Referee Friesell later saw in the motion pictures of the plays that he had made a mistake in giving the ball to Cornell on a fifth down. What to do? Nominally he had no jurisdiction after the game, but, being a conscientious man, he advised Cornell of his later finding. Cornell, though secure under the law in its victory, wired Dartmouth, nevertheless, that the victory was theirs, 3-0. If this is the "moral equivalent of war," as William James called sport, then let's have more of it.

Governmental aid to farmers is probably handled more efficiently now, but we can recall the time when a farmer planted a package of cucumber seeds, supplied free by the Government, and grew therefrom a wagonload of gourds.

An American is a person who thinks nothing is too expensive for him to buy if he can scrape up enough money to make the down payment on it.

Bases in Ireland

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of November 15, Mr. John N. Quinn advises Eire to give Britain the use of her ports as bases and thereby presumably invite an air war from Germany. Mr. Dooley on one occasion, answering Mr. Hennessy's boast that he was the man behind the gun, said "yes, 3,000 miles behind it." Mr. Quinn, 3,000 miles behind the gun, advises Ireland to invite destruction.

The Irish having successfully resisted all efforts at the hands of one power to exterminate them should now court such extermination at the hands of another.

He says a little Gestapo treatment might make the Irish regret their present attitude. He should know that the Irish are not unfamiliar with the Gestapo method. If he had been in Ireland in 1916-21 he would have seen plenty of it. Today if he visits any of the six northern counties he will witness a treatment not very unlike that of the Gestapo being meted out to 430,000 Irish in their own land, and this at the hands of a power which is fighting for democracy.

It is true that Eire sends 70 per cent of her food exports to England and of course the English buy this food because the Irish have beautiful blue eyes.

All parties in Eire, pro-British, anti-British and the vast majority who are merely pro-Irish are united on the policy of neutrality. This policy has the support of all political parties and of 99 per cent of the people. They are not going to be dragged into this war which was not of their own making. Indeed they are going to resist any attempt on the part of any power to drag them in.

The General's Hat

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read in the newspapers some weeks ago where Gen. Hugh S. Johnson was quoted as having said that he would "eat his newspaper column," if President Roosevelt were reelected, and I have been wondering when and where the General is to carry out his promise of self-destruction, and whether the happy event will take place publicly or privately?

If the General's columns are as poisonous as his speeches, I am sure he is in for a slow and painful demise. I have never suffered myself to read one of Gen. Johnson's columns, but, due to circumstances over which I had no control, I was forced to listen to one of his campaign speeches, and it came very near killing me.

Paging Mr. Hoover

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the interesting statistical letter "Swing of the Pendulum," M. F. Cunningham commits a rather serious omission—he does not include the administration of Herbert Hoover in the list of Republican or anti-Democratic administrations. He does make his figures balance, so that he accounts for the Hoover four years, however. Is it possible that he thought the Hoover depression era of 1929-1933 should be forgotten and unnamed? C. W.

Functioning Of Democracy Here

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Sinclair Lewis, in "It Can't Happen Here," sketched a plan for the Nazification of America. In the unfolding of his plot it was apparent that the means employed and the slogans used followed an American pattern. One sees in the practices and recent utterances of the third term New Dealers adherence to much of his imagined revolutionary plan.

The establishment of totalitarian government in every country has been accomplished according to the traditional concepts of the population in that country, and slogans were evolved to give expression to the people's controlling characteristics. In Russia—a country accustomed to tyranny—the Communists came to power as "the dictatorship of the proletariat"; in Germany—a country accustomed to discipline and strong paternalistic rule—as the establishment of National Socialism. In the United States, the germ of totalitarianism is being established for "the defense of democracy."

If our people would stop worrying about foreign "isms" and devote their serious thought to this country, they would, I submit, find encouragement for the belief that democracy in the United States does not need to be "saved." And in any case it cannot possibly be saved by totalitarian methods.

The recent political campaign was a clear demonstration of the vigor and strength of democracy in America. The very sincerity of Wendell Willkie and his followers was an evidence of the health of the traditional American system. Yet those who look abroad saw in it only a threat to our institutions and spoke of the movement as "fascism."

It is the New Dealers who are the fascists. Every single practical expression of their theory of government is in the direction of concentration of power in the regime, the increase in the economic security of the individual at the expense of his political freedom, and the dependence on an indispensable man—called here "the chief," instead of the fuehrer or the duce. Only in their own protestations are the New Dealers democrats; by their theories and by their acts they are totalitarians.

And now having gained an election success at the polls, the New Dealers seek to rivet their power by a call for "unity" in the face of a threat from abroad, and some of their principal spokesmen have even gone to the length of challenging the two-party system. Dorothy Thompson, though apparently a recent convert, is fashioning the ideological basis for the new order. In The Post of November 15 she said in her column:

> The essence of democracy is not the two-party system or any party system at all.

This is said, I believe, honestly but misguidedly, in the effort to save this country from the threat of dictatorship from abroad. One is reminded of Adolf Hitler's use of the threat of communism to establish his power in Germany.

Democracy in America does not need to be "saved" by the destruction of our traditions. It is still a living force; and the present loyal opposition may one day become the loyal Government of the United States, if its members will refuse to be frightened by foreign dangers which have absolutely no application to the functioning of the American system. "Glory That Is Greece"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I sincerely believe that time should be taken out to show my appreciation as well as that of other thousands of Greeks, for the consoling, yet complimentary words used in your editorials about Greece.

I have been reading your editorials, particularly the one of November 15 titled "Glory That Is Greece." I was born in the United States, of Greek parents and as a Greek I wish to thank you; on the other hand as an American to compliment you on viewpoints of this world crisis. Merely to read these articles a Greek is enlivened by the feeling that Greece is not forgotten.

Greece is a peace-loving country but will defend its name and tradition even if the last man dies in doing so.

Recall one great hero of Greece, Regas Fereos. Many have heard of him and many have not, but I am sure that every Greek has. He was the Greek hero that said: "We would rather have one hour of free life than 40 years of slavery and imprisonment."

The feeling behind this saying still lingers in every Greek's heart and mind. As proof of this I would like to quote from a letter received from my brother in Greece. He wrote: "We would rather die fighting than have our country taken over and ruled by the enemy."

MICHAEL NISOS.
Washington, Nov. 15.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "Glory That Is Greece," not only honors Greece, that brave little nation that has again electrified the liberty-loving peoples of the world by her heroic efforts and achievements, but it does credit to the American press and the public opinion it represents; for it takes great souls to appreciate great deeds, and it takes a master pen to express that appreciation so eloquently.

In the struggle of humanity for liberty it is indeed most fitting that Greece should be the champion striking the most effective blow which, as you have pointed out, may prove to be as far reaching as the stroke of Marathon. M. B. S.

Willkie A Statesman

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I listened with profound respect and interest to the Armistice Day address by Wendell Willkie. It gave evidence of real statesmanship—was the finest address I've heard over the air in many months. If Mr. Willkie had delivered that address before the election—in that pleasing voice, vibrant with feeling and sincerity—and in the spirit of great heartedness which it revealed—it is my judgment he might have been elected President. It was a masterly presentation of "the American way of life"—delivered in a masterly way.

America seems to have muffed it in not taking a man of such insight and ability and power—when the taking was good.

Anyway—from the husky-voiced, fighting, political, amateur, campaigner—now emerges—Willkie, the statesman.

The Post Impressionist

Uncle Harry

UNCLE HARRY never lied in order to swell his own importance, but always for the purpose of delighting his hearers. The effect, indeed, was rather to diminish his identity, for the older you got and the more of Uncle Harry's exploits you had discovered, the vaguer became the line between the actual man and the man that according to his exploits he would have to have been. Of course, we knew that, in the main, he never had done the things he told us about. Grandma saw to that.

"Never," said grandma, "believe a single word that he says."

For example, his stories about the Boxer Rebellion, and the even racier ones he told about the War of 1812, when he was in the Navy. There weren't very many about the Civil War, or the War of 1848. Just why I don't know, because he was a comparatively young fellow in the early part of this century, and therefore would still have had considerably vitality at the time of the Civil War, in spite of having fought in the naval difference with England some half a century before.

There was a sort of dent in the top of his head surrounded by a considerable area of baldness that fascinated me the first time that I met Uncle Harry. I was about 11 at the time, and he would have had to be—I now realize—about 124; although he didn't look as though he had passed 40. And it was typical of his keen vision and constant alertness, so he later told me, that he noticed my interest at once.

"Do you want to know how I got that wound, sonny?" he asked, and smiled with sudden radiance as he realized that I wanted nothing in the world more than just that, at the moment.

"Well, you see, it was this way . . ." he began, as he drew me onto his knee. "The Indians were circling around our wagon train, howling most blood-thirstily, because they had just caught a detachment of our men who had gone down to a water hole, and scalped most of them. Their appetite was whetted, that's what it was. And they had come on to the camp to get me and the rest of the boys. But we heard them first. Those Indians never could keep from yelling after they'd lifted a few scalps.

"So we had the wagons all around in a circle, and ready to take pot shots at them as they went into their usual act of riding around and around and shooting arrows at us. And it would have been quite all right, if we hadn't had a number of such fights in the weeks before, so that we were rather short of ammunition. In fact, before the riding had gone on very long, and before we had killed more than 200 or 300 Indians, our bullets all ran out, and there was a pretty state of affairs . . ."

At this point Uncle Harry put me down from his knees and started to roll a cigarette, which was in itself an interesting procedure, for he had only one thumb. But at the climax of a story like this it was merely an interruption, although it did heighten the effect, as no doubt he intended it should. Finally I would get too impatient.

"What did you do then, Uncle Harry?"

"Well, sonny," he resumed. "That was when I got this crease in my head. You see, the Indians were riding around and around and shooting fast, and I figured that if I would pop up quick just when one Indian was in front of me and one behind, I could duck down just as he shot and he would hit the Indian behind me on the other side of the circle. And that's just how it worked out."

"But how did you get the hole in your head?"

"Oh, that? Why you see, finally there was one Indian left, and I had to bounce his arrow off my head so that he would have time to ride around to the other side of the circle and get hit by it. And just one edge of the arrowhead grazed the bone, and the hole's been there ever since."

I thought that was very wonderful, and ingenious, and heroic; although I can remember just as distinctly how upset and disappointed I was in grandma when she insisted that night that Uncle Harry got the hole in his head because he fell off the driver's seat of a hansom cab one night when it was rainy and his horse slipped and fell.

There were other stories about the hole in Uncle Harry's head, but these are the two chief explanations that I remember.

The one about his missing thumb varied, too, and there are now, I realize, quite a range of possibilities to consider in getting at the right one. But I have always had my favorite. It was the one about the Sultan's treasure.

It seems that Uncle Harry once passed through Turkey on his way to some war or other, and paid a friendly call on a Sultan, but the Sultan had to leave him alone for a little while in the living room, and when he got back he said something awful had happened. Some stranger had broken in and stolen some of his treasure, and he thought it was Uncle Harry.

"I told him he could hang me up by my thumb if he wanted, to prove that I hadn't taken his treasure," my uncle said. "And the crazy heathen took me at my word. What's more, he left me hanging there when he went to bed.

"So what was I to do?" Uncle Harry asked, "except to take out my jackknife, open it up and cut off my thumb and run away? Which, sonny, is exactly what I did . . . and to prove it you can just take a look at my hand!"

I would always look, and sure enough the thumb was always still missing. EUGENE PHARO.

Labor Conventions

AN ANALYSIS OF THE election returns shows that John L. Lewis not only failed to influence the rank and file of C. I. O. membership but also failed to carry his own mine workers out of the Roosevelt fold.

Pennsylvania is traditionally a G. O. P. stronghold. The first time it went Democratic in more than half a century was in 1936, when Roosevelt carried the State by 683,000 votes over Landon.

In 1938, the State returned to the G. O. P. fold, and chose a Republican administration in the election for Governor. That year the Republicans had a majority of about a quarter of a million.

The tremendous Roosevelt majority in 1936 was more than cut in half in 1940—from 683,000 to 283,000. But the mining districts showed no such relative defection from the Roosevelt ranks. And it is in these districts, of course, that the United Mine Workers have most of their 240,000 Pennsylvania members. They live for the most part in the counties of Allegheny, Beaver, Cambria, Fayette, Washington, Westmoreland, Carbon, Lackawanna, Northumberland, Luzerne and Schuylkill. All of these regions were carried by substantial majorities for Roosevelt, and in several districts these majorities approached the record-breaking figures of 1936.

For instance, in Luzerne, in the heart of the anthracite district, Roosevelt's lead over Willkie was 22,550 as compared to 23,137 over Landon in 1936; and Allegheny County repeated 1936 history in giving Roosevelt a majority of more than 100,000 votes.

IN MR. LEWIS' famous campaign speech, he said he would interpret a failure to follow him as a vote of "no confidence." The returns in Pennsylvania indicate that his own United Mine Workers returned a vote of no confidence. If he is consistent he therefore ought to resign not only as president of the C. I. O. but as president of the United Mine Workers.

In fact, the only factions of labor that he can claim to lead fully are the Communist-dominated unions who sprang to his side when he made his campaign announcement, and who again stood by him in Atlantic City in a "draft Lewis" movement.

The statement advanced by William Green in New Orleans that the A. F. of L. is determined never to share with any rebel group the right to speak for American men and women may have been largely rhetorical. That the C. I. O. will all flock back into the A. F. of L. is exceedingly unlikely.

Harper Leach, the Chicago Daily News correspondent in Atlantic City, says: "The C. I. O. is here to stay. Not since the Knights of Labor brought union membership to its highest record of density in proportion to both employment and population in 1886 has this country ever seen anything like the organization which this convention represents." With a discerning eye Mr. Leach points out that the delegates even look different. "A bunch of A. F. of L. boys always reminds me of the boys in the back room—good fellows who have arrived, citified fellows, politically connected fellows. Not these C. I. O. delegates. They are mostly long, lean, eager men—a wholesome lot, and the American accent is strong. The country school teacher type is prominent among local leaders.

BUT THE C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. can and must agree on a division of functions and industries in order to eliminate friction and waste of man power during the war and defense crisis. And they may even make a permanent Federal compact but hardly a thoroughgoing merger.

The C. I. O. has what the A. F. of L. has not—a youthful, modern less bureaucratized and vital spirit. Its "Communist factions" have been a nuisance to it, because they introduce an ideologically alien spirit. The C. I. O. as a whole is as American as apple pie and its radicalism does not derive from Karl Marx, but from Jefferson and Lincoln. It is a thoroughly democratic radicalism that aims to make political and economic democracy meet each other at some point. In the rank and file there is an intense enthusiasm and idealism, and in many of the local leaders a simplicity and purity of motive that has long been lacking in the more rigid and stratified ranks of the A. F. of L.

It is the difference in the spirit rather than in the original bases of separation—industrial union versus craft—that now holds the two apart. For actually the two organizations have tended to become more and more alike structurally.

But that some arrangement which will end jurisdictional conflict should be arrived at is of primary importance to the production efficiency of the United States.

IT WOULD SEEM that the strike at the Vultee plant, which is conducted by the United Automobile Workers, a C. I. O. union, is partly owing to the desire of the union to match the wage scale obtained by the A. F. of L. in the Boeing plant in Seattle. It would also appear that the Southern California Manufacturers and Merchants Association plays an indirect role in the dispute. This association has fought organized labor consistently, and has tried to keep the Southern California wage scale down. The Vultee strike is, therefore, to some extent a test case both for the C. I. O. and for the whole of Southern California.

By and large, there is likely to be less labor trouble during the present defense program than there was in 1917 and 1918, simply because labor is much more thoroughly organized now than it was then. The effort during the last war took place in the midst of an organizing drive. This one takes place when the most intense organizational activity is already over and has succeeded. The Vultee workers have not shown intransigence, and it is more than likely that the strike will be settled by negotiation.

1898 War Veterans Will Meet Today

More than 100 District veterans who once fought together will have a reunion dinner today when surviving members of the first Washington volunteer division in the Spanish-American War will gather here from all parts of the country.

Of the 1,000 volunteers from the District in 1898, probably 250 are still alive. Veteran William Hickey said yesterday. Of these, 100 are expected to attend the Harrington Hotel banquet, with Maj. William S. Hodges presiding.

Word has been received from ex-service men from San Francisco, New York, Cleveland and other points who will attend, Hickey reported.

Cumming Heads Gorgas Institute

Dr Hugh S. Cumming, director of the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, was elected president of the Gorgas Memorial Institute yesterday at the annual meeting in the Pan-American Union Building.

Dr. Bowman C. Crowell, of Chicago, was named vice president; Maj. Gen. M. W. Ireland, secretary, and A. M. Nevius, treasurer.

NLRB Record

THE NAMING of Harry A. Millis as chairman of the National Labor Relations Board should go a long way toward restoring confidence in that agency. A teacher of economics by profession, he has had practical experience extending over more than 20 years with the adjustment of industrial disputes. At present he is umpire of disputes between General Motors and the United Automobile Workers. During 1934 and 1935 he was a member of the National Labor Relations Board—the second board, under the NRA, which preceded the present board.

In speaking highly of Millis it is not necessary, however, to disparage the work of his predecessor, J. Warren Madden. As chairman of the present NLRB from its formation in 1935, Madden achieved great things. He undertook the enforcement of an act which was opposed by immensely powerful groups in this country. He had to build from the bottom up a Nation-wide organization, for service in which few men were fitted by experience.

On one side, Madden had to face employers to whom real collective bargaining was revolutionary in practice, if not in theory. Some of them simply did not know how to go about it; others were determined to fight to the end to prevent their employes from joining bona fide labor unions. Eminent legal authorities solemnly proclaimed that the act itself was unconstitutional, and almost two years elapsed before the Supreme Court emphatically reversed them and a beginning could be made on real enforcement of the law.

ON THE OTHER SIDE, the passage of the NLRA, the emergence of the C. I. O., and the 1936 election gave great impetus to the union movement. This helped to swamp the NLRB with complaints. In some industries both the new union leaders and the rank and file had had no experience with collective bargaining and seemed to lack a sense of responsibility. The civil war between the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. further aggravated the difficulties of the NLRB under Madden.

The obstacles to the effective enforcement of the NLRA were so formidable that they could have broken the heart and will of almost any man. Madden carried on with a steadfastness which can be found only in men who care more about doing what they believe to be right than about public applause or condemnation. His patience was immense. I doubt that any public official had to make more frequent and more detailed accountings in a hostile atmosphere to committees of Congress. Given time to explain, he destroyed 95 per cent of the specific criticisms of the board.

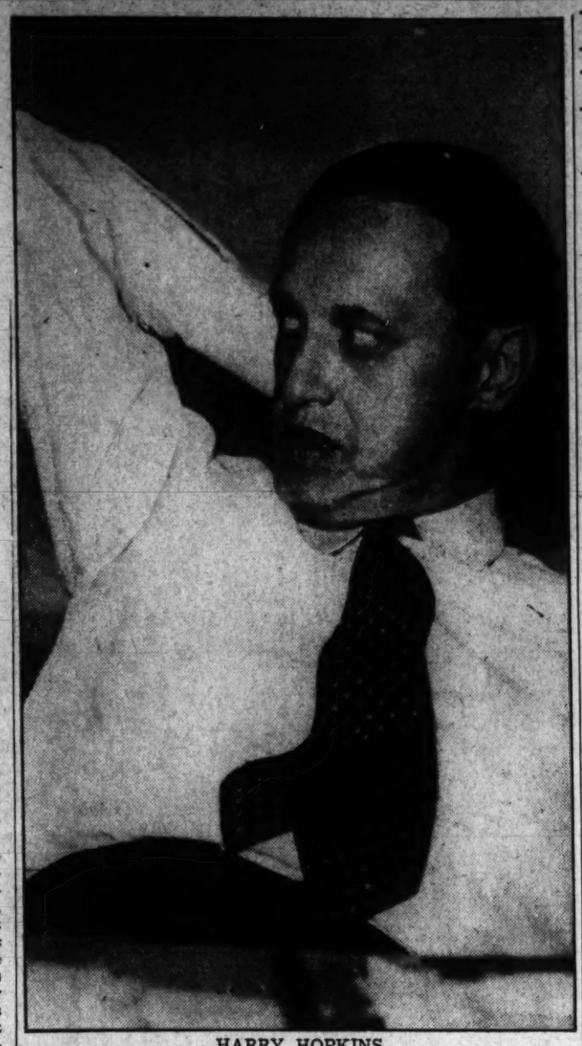
His legal capacity is indicated by the remarkable record which the NLRB has made before the courts. Up to its present term, the Supreme Court had granted enforcement of 18 NLRB orders (four with modifications) and had denied enforcement in only two cases. It had given six other decisions favorable to the board. In the Circuit Court of Appeals the board had obtained 108 decisions enforcing its orders (45 with modification), and had been overruled 24 times. However, 383 consent decrees enforcing board orders had been entered. The Circuit Courts record includes all the earlier decisions before unfavorable courts, which since then have had to change their tunes to harmonize with the Supreme Court.

MADDEN DESERVES not only the major credit for building up an able legal staff, but for directing the strategy which gave real life to an act which might easily have become a dead letter. He is too able a man to be sidetracked on the Court of Claims.

Madden lacked the political skill to convince "the public"—at least the nonlabor part of it—that the NLRB was fair. Given the power of the opposition to the law, it is doubtful if anyone could have succeeded in doing that. A year and a half ago the President drafted William S. Leiserson from the National Mediation Board to straighten out the NLRB. Leiserson is a practical conciliator with a low opinion of the legal profession. Since then Leiserson has been trying, with only partial success, to get control of the NLRB organization. He helped to bring about several improvements, but some of his demands seemed to Madden to be unfair to men who were doing fine, conscientious work.

MADDEN WOULD have been reappointed to the NLRB, however, if Edwin S. Smith, the third member, had resigned. Smith's term has a year to run. He has been the proindustrial - union member and the intellectual leader of the leftish group in the NLRB organization. But Smith wouldn't step out.

With Millis at the head and Leiserson at his side, control of the NLRB passes from the legal profession to the practical labor relations men. They should be able to trim off what is left of stiff-necked extremism and to create a new sense of confidence in the NLRB in all quarters which are now ready to accept collective bargaining.



HARRY HOPKINS

General, Corporal And Private

IN VIEW of the President's responsiveness to the men around him, the change of human decoration at the White House has real significance. It is a big change. Few of the old habitues—the New Dealers—are any longer to be seen darting busily through the back entrance to the White House offices. The widely celebrated palace guard appears to be reduced to a corps of one, in which Harry L. Hopkins is general, colonel, adjutant, corporal and private all at once.

Hopkins has been the President's most constant companion ever since his recovery last winter from his long illness. He has directly participated in many important matters, sitting in on the White House conferences at which the present national defense setup was devised, running many of the errands that used to be intrusted to Thomas G. Corcoran, and otherwise making himself useful. During the campaign, although he stayed in the background for political reasons, he regularly joined the President's veteran amanuensis, Judge Samuel Rosenman, of New York, and the President's secretary, Stephen Early, in their work on campaign speeches. He also accompanied the President on campaign trips, and was with him on his vacation cruise on the Potomac.

Being a man of small means, Hopkins cannot remain forever at leisure. But whether he is given a sinecure at the Roosevelt Memorial Library at Hyde Park, or is offered a small annuity by some of the President's friends, or takes a part-time private position, his real job will probably continue to be with his chief at the White House. And although he was once a leading New Dealer himself, his very presence there will militate against any return of the former predominance of the New Deal group.

THE TRUTH IS, Hopkins was always on a different footing from the other New Dealers. Where the group chiefly functioned as a hotbed of ideas and policies, Hopkins himself was content that his relationship to the President should be primarily personal rather than political. Other New Dealers often tell the story of the time when Hopkins was roused to a frenzy of crusading enthusiasm and sent to sell the President on a grand point of policy, only to return an hour later ready to crusade equally zealously for precisely the opposite view. In short, he tends less to influence Roosevelt than to be influenced by him.

Furthermore, besides having an ancient very bitter feud with Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, Hopkins is now also at odds with Tom Corcoran. As soon as Hopkins was installed as a regular White House inmate, Corcoran's White House visits began to grow less frequent. During the campaign, instead of serving as the President's leading speech-writer, as he did in 1936, Corcoran was assigned to labor in a much more remote vineyard, as vice chairman of the independent voters for Roosevelt. Now there is no indication that he will be restored to his former status, and he is seriously considering going into private law practice in New York.

CORCORAN WAS the catalyst and coordinator of the New Dealers. Without him, the group itself can hardly retain the coherence and unity which used to give it such power. Many changes are already apparent in it. Defense Commissioner Leon Henderson has broken with his old friends. The status of Harold Ickes has been affected by Hopkins' return. Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, though still close to the President, appears to be less and less interested in general policy, and more and more preoccupied with his department. He is expected to be named to the first Supreme Court vacancy, just as SEC Chairman Jerome N. Frank, already far less conspicuous than in the past, is also thought to be slated for a place on the Federal bench. In fact, the New Deal group, as a group, is in a fairly advanced stage of dissolution. Before long, unless the trend changes the only remaining traces of the group will be the innumerable young men faithful to its ideas for whom Corcoran and other New Dealers found subordinate Government posts.

ESSENTIALLY, the campaign is the key to this change in the Washington scene. The New Dealers ruled the roost for the years following the 1936 campaign, as Ray Moley, Rex Tugwell and the brain trusters did in the years after 1932. Both crowds began as the President's campaign assistants.

In 1940, the men who worked most closely with the President during the campaign were the trio, Hopkins, Early and Rosenman. Ambassador to France William C. Bullitt contributed to the President's speeches. For example. Stalin was the "European dictator" mentioned by Roosevelt as not caring to undertake the Presidency, and the story originated in Bullitt's celebrated first interview with the Soviet despot. Then Corcoran's partner, Benjamin V. Cohen, who has always kept his distance from the White House and has thus avoided the conflicts of personality there, headed the small research staff got together for the last three weeks of intensive campaigning.

There were also others, but taken all together, the men of 1940 are too miscellaneous to provide anything but a negative indication for the future. This indication is that no one group will predominate at the White House, as in the past. Instead the President seems more likely to rely increasingly on the regular officials of the State, War and Navy Departments, the Defense Commission and the other agencies directly involved in the work which almost wholly preoccupies him—the formulation of foreign policy and the organization of national defense.

A Vested Right?

THIS IS THE WEEK of the big wind, when two great rival groups of professional unioneers are doing their best to howl down certain fundamental facts and establish a great power over the people of the United States and much of their property. Many of these unioneers are downright, incorrigible rascals with no discount. Many are Communists who hate the American system and the American Nation and strive constantly to run the country. Most of them are dictators in their respective spheres and many are foreigners who have complied with the legal formalities of naturalization but are not Americans and never will be.

Two great conventions are now in progress. The American Federation of Labor is meeting in New Orleans and the C. I. O. in Atlantic City. There is much talk of a reconciliation between them and the creation of a combined organization. The National Government is urging the rivals to unite, and public opinion, which can err, also favors a big, unified labor movement.

THE DANGER to the people's liberty lies in the fact that both of these big unions take it for granted that they have a vested right to govern millions of citizens, to persecute, to destroy property by violence and to slander and damage or wipe out the lawful business of good American citizens, all in flagrant, brutal disregard of the rights of the victims.

I am not particularly concerned at the moment with racketeering in the A. F. of L. or Communist conspiracies in the C. I. O. I am dealing with the fundamental fact that these private organizations should be considered as they are and not as tradition and sentiment represent them.

If I should form a club of 25 or 50 members in a given neighborhood and call it a labor union, would you then grant me the right to bar other Americans from their occupations, to sell licenses to work, to tax the members and use their money for private or political purposes according to my own judgment and, whether by my own whim or by vote of the members, to inflict economic damage ruin on the owner of a lawful business?

REDUCED TO SIMPLE form, that is what some unions are, and these are things which unions do.

The National Government, with the passive consent of the public, has taken the position that the two big unions are national institutions, having some vague but strong rights of government. Their bigness doesn't alter the absolute wrongness of their conduct.

A union has a right to persuade citizens by peaceful means to join its ranks and to bargain collectively on their behalf. Failing to reach a bargain with the employer, a union has a right to call out its members and to picket the premises peacefully. It has no right to use violence or other coercion to obtain new members or to exclude from membership individuals who meet the qualifications and apply for admission.

GOVERNMENT AUTHORITY and a powerful but mistaken popular tradition assist unions in unjust conduct against the rights of individual citizens on the employing side. The issue represented by a picket line almost invariably is one which calls for a careful examination of the facts. The union may be and very often is not merely wrong, but dishonest. Nevertheless, the public is expected to pass snap judgment on complicated disputes of which it has no knowledge and to assist the union and harm the employer by joining a boycott against the business.

The whole concept of unionism needs revision, and the talk which is filling the air and the papers this week ignores this fact and starts with an assumption that certain powers are now established by custom which should be challenged and disallowed.

Duce's Dilemma

By Barnet Nover

Hitler To The Rescue

MUSSOLINI always gives himself away in his speeches. But never before did he give himself away so clarly and so completely as in his address to the Fascist hierarchy last Monday.

It was the speech of a bully and also the speech of a lickspittle. Talking of Greece, which has just administered the Fascist army the worst licking it has received since Guadalajara, Mussolini was his old ferocious self, a sword-clanking condottiere, the invincible son of the she-wolf.

"We shall break Greece's back," he said. "Whether in two months or 12 months it little matters. The war has barely begun. We have enough men and means to annihilate all Greek resistance."

But when the Duce talked of Germany he climbed down from his chariot to grovel in the mud. He spoke of the Fuehrer in the most glowing terms. He told how he begged Hitler to permit Italians to participate directly in the battle against Great Britain although, he admitted, "Germany had no need for our aid." "I am grateful to the Fuehrer for having accepted my offer," he said. The man who once had nothing but contempt for his Teutonic pupil has learned well his role as gauleiter.

MUSSOLINI would have the world believe that Italy has played a glorious role in this war. Actually her role has been nothing but ingnominious. She entered the war when France was on her last legs. In five months the only victories which Italy has gained have been those in British Somaliland, where the British were outnumbered at least three to one in what Mussolini calls "the lightning-like occupation of Sidi Barrani."

These victories are scant compensation to the Italian people for the miseries from which they have to suffer as a result of Mussolini's monstrous betrayal of their interests and the greater miseries which, he warns them, they must yet anticipate. Their towns have been bombed, their meager rations reduced, the toll of dead and wounded and missing steadily mounts.

And all for what? All for the benefit of a nation which the Italians fear and detest. Italy lost the war the day she entered it. A victory of the Axis would, at most, permit her to play the part of prison trusty in Hitler's continental jail.

GIVEN TIME and the resources which even a half-hearted and unwilling Italy can put into the field against the tiny Balkan kingdom will tell in the scales. The solemn warning which the Greek press minister has issued to his people not to be misled by current Greek successes in the field is worth heeding. The example of Findland shows that valor is no substitute for numbers. But whether Hitler will permit Mussolini to take all the time he needs to bring an end to Greek resistance is not so clear. He cannot afford to have the prestige of the Axis lowered any further as a result of his partner's bungling.

During these three and a half weeks since the Italo-Greek War began Hitler has remained on the sidelines. He could hardly have been pleased by Italy's miserable showing. Yet because of it he is now in a position to make Mussolini more dependent upon him than ever. For what Italy alone has been unable to do and what Italy alone might take months to do Italy and Germany together may be able to accomplish in a relatively short time.

THE POSSIBILITY of Germany's immediate entry into the Greek struggle looms large. The diplomatic difficulties that stood in the way may have been eliminated as a result of the visits to Berlin of Premier Molotoff of Russia and King Boris of Bulgaria. The finishing touches in the way of diplomatic preparations may be applied at the forthcoming Vienna parley.

Mussolini took the hard road into Greece, the road via Albania. Hitler is in a position to take the much easier path, via Bulgaria. A large number of German troops have been brought into Rumania during recent weeks. The earthquake may have impeded their preparations and hampered transportations facilities. It is doubtful whether the results of the temblors in Rumania have been such as to make it impossible for Germany to move toward the Aegean provided, of course, that the Sofia government consents to the use of Bulgaria as a pathway and Russia acts to restrain Turkey which has threatened to intervene on Greece's side if Bulgaria attacks the former. And should Spain, at the same time, agree to join the Axis in an attack on Gibraltar the division of British forces which that development would compel may make it difficult for Great Britain to give Greece even the aid she has thus far rendered that plucky country.

So Mussolini may sooner or later be able to claim that his boast of breaking Greece's back has been fulfilled. It will be an empty boast, empty alike of content of honor and of decency.

Food Chains Net 1.7% on Sales

By the Associated Press

The Securities Commission reported yesterday that 13 chain grocery and food store companies had a combined net profit last year of $17,652,000, equal to 1.7 per cent of sales. This compared with a profit of $12,000,000 in 1938.

The figures, compiled in the commission's supplement to its survey of American listed corporations, showed that the 13 companies did a combined business volume of $1,049,000,000 last year, an increase of $54,000,000 over the previous year.

Clear skies and warmer temperatures were predicted for the Washington area today by the Weather Bureau here, but a five-day forecast brought notice of impending rain Thursday and occasional rains through Saturday.

Partly cloudy and somewhat warmer, with a high temperature of 65 and a low of 37 was the prediction issued for today. The long-range forecast for Middle Atlantic States, which includes the District, showed that above normal temperatures would accompany the rain. The maximum yesterday was 53 degrees at 3:15 p. m., and lowest was 32 at 6:45 a. m.

Fire Reduces Cabin John Home to Charred Ruins as Firemen Cry for Water . . .

By Howard Wentworth
Post Staff Writer

Roaring flames, unchecked for nearly two hours because no water was available, yesterday destroyed the seven-room log home of Albert T. Clark, Internal Revenue attorney, and threatened to wipe out a community of five other houses at Cabin John, Md.

ALBERT CLARK
His Home Razed

Nestled among towering trees about a quarter of a mile south of Conduit Road, the Clark home was reduced to ruins while firemen, friends and neighbors stood helplessly by. With the exception of those in two downstairs rooms, contents of the house—furniture and personal belongings—were lost. Total damage was estimated at $20,000.

Not until fire companies from Bethesda and Chevy Chase had arrived and strung hose for a mile and a quarter from the nearest conduit opening was the blaze brought under control. The Cabin John Park volunteer fire unit, located less than a block from the scene, was powerless because of inadequate equipment and lack of water.

The conduit—for which Conduit Road is named—runs from Great Falls and connects with the Washington water system at the District Line. Firemen pointed out that only three manholes open into the conduit for the entire distance—and the nearest one to the fire was locked with an iron brace to prevent tampering by passersby.

The community in which the Clark home was located is not serviced by regular Cabin John fire prevention facilities because of its isolated position along the C. & O. Canal banks, fire authorities explained. Usually, firemen depend on the canal waters in emergencies, but the channel had been drained Saturday for inspection, they added.

There were no fireplugs within easy access and the Potomac River, about 500 yards away, was inaccessible to pumper engines. Hose, furnished by both the Bethesda and Chevy Chase companies, was finally laid along Conduit Road from what is known as No. 3 Bridge on the conduit.

MRS. CLARK
As She Watched Fire

When the Cabin John volunteers arrived the Clark home was in flames that leaped 50 feet in the air. A garden hose, chemical equipment carried on the trucks and buckets of water were brought into play as the firefighters sought to save the adjacent home of Roscoe Wood, noted architect.

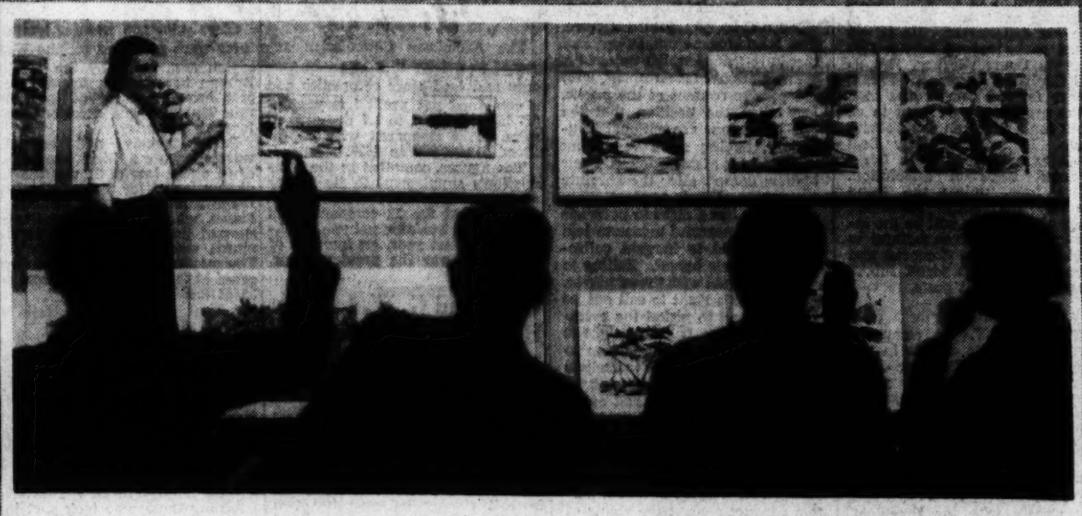
So intense was the heat from the blazing Clark house that the Woods' roof began to smolder and threatened at any moment to burst into flames. Timely arival of the Bethesda and Chevy Chase units was credited with saving not only the Wood house but all others in the little community.

Faulty electric wiring in the Clark home was blamed for the conflagration. Mrs. Clark was visiting neighbors when the blaze was discovered. Apparently originating in the attic, the flames quickly spread through the all-wood, two-story building and Mrs. Clark, aided by several neighbors, barely had time to save personal belongings and furnishings from the two downstairs rooms.

Clark, an attorney in the income tax division of Internal Revenue, has traveled extensively and his home had been filled with priceless objects collected from all parts of the world. A large portion of his collection—ivory and brass curios—was saved.

The Clark house was designed and built by Wood, next-door neighbor, the logs having been imported from Pennsylvania. The interior was paneled in walnut. It was the show-place of the community, residents agreed.

"WATER!" WAS THE CRY—Firemen J. O. Bolanz, O. Kumfert and Max Arnold couldn't get welded manhole cover loose and had to go 1½ miles for water



"I LIKE IT." The upraised arms of Juror Buk Ulreich means one favorable vote for the water color being shown. It took two hands, though, for an entry to stay in the running. Other judges: Charles Burchfield, Elliot O'Hara and John Marin

Government Asks Artists To Judge 9,572 Water Colors

By Gerald G. Gross

Milady who has just an excruciating time selecting a picture to hang over the sofa may obtain consolation by considering the task confronting four men who toiled here yesterday.

Ranked among America's leading painters, the quartet wearily passed the half-way mark in judging 9,572 water colors submitted in a Federal competition. Their job is to boil these 9,572 down to the 300 which will be bought, at a uniform price of $30 each, to be hung in the government leprosarium at Carville, La., and in 26 marine hospitals throughout the country.

The jury consists of John Marin, of Cliffside, N. J.; Charles Burchfield, of Gardenville, N. Y.; Buk Ulreich, of New York City, and Elliot O'Hara, of Washington.

Judge 300 an Hour

From 8:30 a. m. yesterday until nightfall, with time out for lunch, they sat in a room in the Procurement Division Building, viewing picture after picture.

Ten paintings would be set up against the backboard at a time. The jurors sat, side by side, about 12 feet distant. Joel Black, of the Government's section of Fine Arts, would place his hand on one picture at a time, looking at the judges for their decision.

If two hands or more went up, the water color was accepted for the final eliminations. The "assembly line" moved at the rate of about 300 pictures an hour by this method.

To Complete Task Tonight

Although this particular competition was not anonymous, unlike others conducted by the Fine Arts Section, it was anonymous for all practical purposes since the jury could not see the artists' signatures from the distance.

The vast majority of the 2,500 artists who entered the contest are "unknowns." On the other hand the quartet judging their work are well known.

Marin commands up to $5,000 for some of his water colors. Burchfield is prominent for his introduction of satire and humor into this medium of painting. Ulreich is a noted muralist and O'Hara has a wide reputation as a water color painter and teacher.

They began their judging Monday and hope to complete the herculean task tonight. In addition to the 300 which will be bought for hanging in Government hospitals, about 600 will be chosen by the jury for public exhibition beginning November 27 in the Procurement Division Building. These will be placed on sale at the same price of $30 each.

HSA Relies on Chest Funds To Continue Medical Aid

By Barry Sullivan

To get medical care with the least red-tape or running from pillar to post, the best place to go is the Health Security Administration at 1823 L Street Northwest.

For ill people in Washington, Executive Ross Garrett has found, the main problem is knowing where to go to be treated. This information the HSA is equipped to give.

"After ascertaining what care is needed," he explains, "we make all the arrangements. All the patient has to do is receive treatment."

For the Community Chest, the HSA acts as an agent in certifying clients to hospitals and last year it arranged for $392,673 worth of hospitalization. It obtained approximately $3,500,000 in services from physicians for patients unable to pay doctors, answered 60,000 queries and made arrangements for treatment of 20,280 cases in which costs were borne by the patients.

DEACONESS HILDA DITERLY, of Episcopal Hospital, tests treatment of Jimmy's "wandering eye," finds it is coming along fine

Speed is an essential in the organization's system. Recently a young man was qualified for work as a hotel food-handler six hours after he was offered the job. Within that time he received his medical examination and health certificate through efforts of the HSA.

Although its work with individuals in need of financial assistance for medical care is a basic part of its function, the HSA also acts as a go-between for persons able to buy services but lacking knowledge of where to get them.

Organizations, willing to bear the costs in individual cases, call on the organization for advice. A professional club several months ago deputized HSA to arrange a home and medical care for one of its members. The club paid the bills for services and facilities arranged by HSA.

Not least among HSA's activities is its medico-social counselling service. An Army colonel who expected to be transferred from the city called on HSA to name an organization which would look after his ill sister. He was ready to pay the costs, but needed direction to a responsible agency.

This same service acts as a safety valve for Washingtonians who feel their problems are more than they can handle. Many clients confer with counselors on means of budgeting income so they can handle costs of sickness. Others seek advice on eligibility for hospitalization or sickness benefits from public or private funds. Three out of five persons seeking help at HSA are known to the organization through previous contacts with the individual or other members of his family.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Self-Supporting 20-Year-Old Boy Wonders if He Has Right to Run His Own Life; Bossy Relatives Have Goaded Him to State of Confused Desperation

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The search for an education brought me to this community a few years ago. Feeling the need of further financial security before continuing my studies, I left a school nearby and entered the Government service. I have scarcely any future in my present job, as I was not trained for the work I am now doing, and promotions come very slowly in our division. For a long time, I have simply tried to hold on to my sanity,—and this job, which is my livelihood.

I have been considered a potential concert pianist by several accomplished music teachers, although never at any time did I really want to make music my career,—unless it were possible for me to follow some other skilled occupation (preferably electrical engineering) simultaneously. However, I did some advanced piano studying and tried some "performing," only to find that the more I strove, the more somebody kicked me in the pants and exhorted me to greater effort.

Tell me this,—is a 20-year-old boy (or man, as you prefer) entitled to any voice regarding his thoughts and actions, when living in a household of relatives, none of whom are his parents or guardians; and to whom he is in no way indebted, having paid his way as he went along?

My well meaning, ambitious but unworldly relatives practically forced me (some time back), to live in a colony of homosexualists, in the interests of that musical "career" they were hell-bent on my following. For one year these strange people were my classroom associates as well as my social companions, insofar as my rebellious nature permitted. The upshot was that I had a nervous collapse, nearly "went off the bat" completely, and was abandoned to my own resources at this critical stage by my bossy relatives, who accused me of being lazy, indifferent and unappreciative.

The final blow came when I found myself hopelessly alienated from my old acquaintances, interests and pursuits. Now the possibility of becoming an electrical engineer seems too remote to consider. I am past the age of most beginners in that field, and music, which I had once loathed, has become, ironically, an integral part of my life and thought, so that I don't want to give it up altogether.

I am living at present with a married brother and his large family, the members of which feel free to take an unwarranted interest in my every move. This is almost unbearable, but I am reluctant to leave, as my brother needs financial help from time to time, which I am able to give him.

While it seems unwise, if not impossible, to go on living in such circumstances—"pushed around" at home and stymied at the office,—I know of no remedy. Unless you can point the way for me. If you have a suggestion, I will take it. Once again, for the millionth time. I'll "do as I'm told." And I hope you will spare the rod (much as you may be inclined to use it), long enough to give me a steer in the right direction. LARRY.

Boy Should Strike Out for Himself

DEAR LARRY: You are a sorely confused young man, but I don't think your "bossy relatives" are entirely to blame for that. I imagine you have always been at once too timid and too listless to strike out for yourself, or to resist family pressure. You are one of those "gentle souls" who would have profited, early and immeasurably, by the expert guidance of a wise head and strong hand—someone who understood your potentialities and life's challenges and requirements, far better than you do, as yet. But such providential guidance is given to few.

Even those who love us best, and wish us well from the bottom of their hearts, seldom are able to disengage their minds from personal interests long enough to study us and know us for what we really are,—and help us harness our particular talents to suitable objectives. So they show their genuine interest in sporadic volleys of impromptu, impatient, irrelevant suggestions and violent pushes,—that are more often indicative of their aspirations and frustrations than related to our gifts or legitimate ambitions.

But the fact that such pressure is applied certainly doesn't mean that one must yield to it. There is nothing admirable in suffering one's self to be pushed in the direction one knows to be wrong,—for one's self. Strong character is developed by living up to one's deepest convictions, concerning what is right,—for one's self.

As an entirely self-supporting youth of 20, you are fully entitled to name and follow your own vocation or profession. This is particularly true in view of the fact that you are completely emancipated, I gather, from your parents' control. If you are letting yourself be pushed around and spied upon by brothers or sisters, uncles or aunts, cousins, nieces or nephews—why, you are asking for it. You would rather undergo this kind of punishment than march bravely forth to face life's music entirely on your own. And this suggests that your real trouble may be summed up in the term, "psychological immaturity."

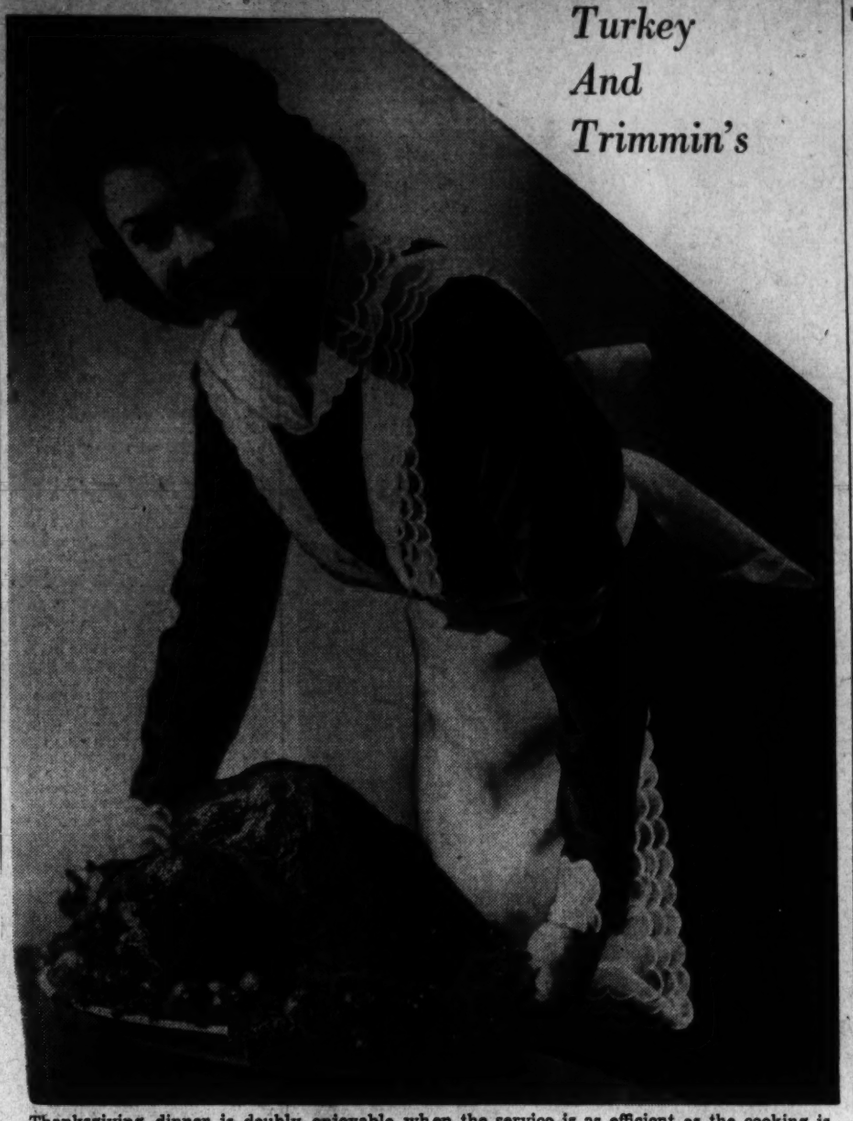
At heart you are still a timorous small boy,—uncertain, apologetic, defensive and still emotionally retarded to the point where you may be latently susceptible to homosexual influencing. As you may not know, heterosexuality is concomitant with emotional maturity. It is a preadolescent phenomenon for persons of either sex to be sentimentally preoccupied only with members of their own sex.

You need scientific guidance in growing up, emotionally; in getting an adult, enlightened perspective on yourself in relation to life. Given this perspective, you will lose or put aside your fears, establish full self-confidence, objectively assess your special talents and chart a life-plan that will allow them most constructive expression, and yourself the greatest satisfaction. In brief, your essential manhood will assert itself, and your considerable intelligence will begin to exercise the bold, independent play that it craves, but has been consistently denied, thus far.

The "steer in the right direction" for you is toward a psychiatrist;—possibly one of the staff psychiatrists at the Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene, at 1464 Columbia Road Northwest, ADams 1033. Another step in the right direction consists in following the profession you have always wanted to follow—namely, electrical engineering; even if it means starting a little later in life than the majority of your fellow students. A little age really is an asset to the serious student.

A third step consists in cutting completely loose from all your relatives—no matter how unfeasible, at the moment, that move may seem to you to be. According to a Chinese proverb, "the journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step,"—and it's up to you to get going on your life's journey, on your own power, without another day's delay. Nobody and nothing is holding you back—except your timid indecisiveness. And that will fade as the journey advances. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.



Turkey And Trimmin's

Thanksgiving dinner is doubly enjoyable when the service is as efficient as the cooking is flavorsome. When a maid dons a taffeta uniform finished with crisp scallop collar and cuffs and a matching organdy apron, as shown here, she will do her utmost to have precision of service

Table Service Key to Dinner Success

By Martha Ellyn

The Post Food Editor

PLAN carefully the serving of the Thanksgiving dinner, if you want it to go along smoothly. The last minute flurry must be devoted to the cooking of the meal and not to the matter of sharp knives, and an attractive uniform for the maid. So look to your cutlery and your maid's attire.

Martha Ellyn

If you want your maid to play her part to perfection, have her wear a uniform of fine quality, correct in style and pleasing in color. The serving uniform may be a rich wine color, blue, gray, green or black. Many uniforms are truly good looking and not conspicuous.

The shops are showing maid's uniforms made of interesting materials such as celanese moire, luana cloth acetate faille, acetate sharkskin, slub broadcloth and rayon flat crepe. Others are made of washable celanese taffeta, washable rayon alpaca and washable rayon crepe.

Next, the Carving Set

After you have looked to the appearance of a maid, look to the carving set. Good carving depends upon two essentials, a knowledge of the anatomy of the meat to be carved and the quality of the tools with which to work. The best knives today are made of the finest quality of high carbon steel, especially hardened and tempered and hand honed to assure a lasting edge. Highly polished and chrome surfaces assure resistance against staining. And such knives come in several sizes for carving various kinds of meat.

Modern cutlery is easily kept bright and shining, with no more attention than the usual wash and rinse. Handles are now made resistant to water, grease and heat through the use of durable materials, and are fitted snugly onto the steel. Knives should be kept in a rack when not in use instead of in a general cutlery drawer, where their sharp points are likely to be bent and edges dulled.

A good carving set, or at least a sharp knife with a long, narrow, pliable blade and a two-tined fork, are essential for expert carving. It is useless to attempt the carving at the table if a sharp knife is not available. A service spoon is needed for removing the stuffing. The platter on which the bird is served should be generously large so that the carver's performance is not restricted. If the platter does not provide space to accommodate the joints—wings and legs—as they are removed, a small side platter or plate should be provided. Ample space is most important for handling these parts which are further carved for serving (leg, second joint and sometimes the wing). The whole object in carving is to serve light and dark meat and dressing in proper or desired proportions.

Use Garnish Sparingly

Good judgment in serving means that little garnish will be used on the platter. Usually anything more than a bit of cress or parsley is a hindrance. A bird roasted to a flavorsome brown needs little adornment. Water or calla lilies, radish roses or tulips and tomato roses may be very esthetic touches, but they are not appreciated by the one doing the carving. The garnish should be transferred to the side platter and a bit of it served on each plate. Paper frills over the drumstick ends help the carver in grasping the leg when it is removed. In lieu of paper frills, a folded paper napkin may be provided to facilitate the first step in the carving.

To stand or sit while carving is a matter for the one at the "helm" to decide, according to his own convenience. But one thing should be remembered, to place the bird before the carver so that the breast is at the carver's left.

The Gentler Sex

The Cooks

"Are you all ready for your dinner tomorrow?"

"Yes! I have a 15-pound turkey——"

"We have an 18-pound one!"

"Well, of course, last year we had a 20-pound one."

"Say, you know at home we used to always have at least a 25-pound one!"

"Listen! We had a 28-pound one one year."

"Well, of course it's not all in poundage. Now this turkey we got is a very unusual one. The farmer said it had never been allowed to touch anything but peanuts and sweet milk."

"The butcher said our turkey was certified Grade A No. 1 something or other. Anyway it was guaranteed by the Government or somebody. And its legs were tied together with a blue string.

"Well, of course the really important part of the turkey is the stuffing. Now I——"

"Yes, the trouble with most people is they simply can't make stuffing. Now I——"

"I always soak my chestnuts in rum."

"I wouldn't have chestnuts. I use Brazil nuts. They're richer."

"Well I always use chestnuts AND pecans AND truffles AND celery, and a dash of onion——"

"George is allergic to onions. But I always use a lot of sage."

"Sage! I wouldn't use ordinary sage. I get a special kind. It's from the Dutch East Indies or somewhere."

"Well, the whole thing is the way you make stuffing. So many people just throw it together. Now I wasn't brought up that way."

"Neither was I."

"Another thing I always do is to strain my cranberries and make them into a jelly——"

"I always make mine into a sauce just like my mother used to——"

"My mother always made the jelly. She wouldn't allow a cranberry on the table with its skin on."

"My mother always said the sauce was more healthful. And then it looks so pretty."

"Well, of course I always make my jelly into fancy molds and garnish it with endives and things."

"Well, of course my mother was very particular about everything. She was a wonderful cook. Why every giblet in the gravy had to be a uniform size."

"Yes, and our gravy had to be just the right thickness. Now some people make their gravy too thick. You take Maude Rush——"

"Yes, and another thing Maude does is to use canned apricots in her fruit cups."

"Say, do you know something? Not one woman in a million can make a decent fruit cup. Now I——"

"Oh let me tell you how I make mine"

"I suppose you're having pumpkin pie."

"Yes, with whipped cream."

"I'm having nuts and whipped cream on top of mine."

"Well, of course, I always make my pies so rich anyway. I never use less than four eggs to a pie——"

"Say I use six—and hardly any pumpkin."

"Well I'm very particular about my pumpkin. I go out in the country and pick them out."

"I won't have anything but milk-fed pumpkin in my pies."

"Milk-fed pumpkin."

"Yes, you know they inject the milk through the stem by a hypodermic to take away the pumpkin flavor."

"Well I use a lot of cream with my pumpkin that is REAL cream."

"I always use butter in making my crusts—REAL butter—cow's butter."

"Well of course in making pumpkin pies it's chiefly HOW you make them. Now I don't pretend to be any cook but——"

"Oh I dont' either—that is, a REAL cook, but——"

Soft Forsting

If you are looking for a soft frosting for a cake to be used up within a few hours after it is baked, try this. Soften a cup of sliced bananas with a fork, add two tablespoons orange juice and a speck of salt. Beat and spread over the cake and sprinkle with coconut. Keep in a cold place until serving time.

When the conversation turns to career mothers, Mrs. Josephus Daniels likes to tell the story about the clergyman's call. The father, proud of his home's Christian atmosphere, asked his young son to tell the minister what they did at night just before retiring. The child should have replied "Pray," of course; but the answer which came forth was, "Put the key under the mat for mother."

LABOR NOTE—Here's a woman who has a positive point of view on the subject of pickets. A friend called her one day when she was ill and, in the course of the conversation mentioned that the Such-and-Such Hotel was being picketed. "Meet me there for dinner," the patient said with new vitality, and despite doctor's orders she left her sickbed to cross the picket line.

A Woman's Washington

CHRISTMAS shoppers who want to "buy American" can't go wrong at the rural arts exhibit in connection with the National Art Week show starting Monday in the Departmental Auditorium. What could be more native than cloth woven in an Appalachian Mountain home and dyed with spinach from the weaver's garden patch? There will also be pewterware, wood carvings, rugs and pottery on exhibit—and on sale, says Mrs. Lenore B. Fuller, extension agent in home industries for the Department of Agriculture extension service. "We encourage people to take up all-but-forgotten arts, like weaving, to make their homes livable; when they develop skill, we urge them to add to their income. It's hard to believe, but in 1922 about $20,000 worth of handicraft was sold by rural people in the United States; last year one State alone sold nearly $2,000,000."

Mrs. Fuller (sister of Senator Byrnes of South Carolina) is securing the materials for the exhibit; the actual presentation is in the hands of Mary LaFollette (sister of the Wisconsin Senator). When they sent out a call for rustic decorations a man in Connecticut offered them a 200-pound pumpkin. "We could put the whole exhibit in it and eat pumpkin pie all winter," says Mrs. Fuller, but she turned it down.

Capital to Eat and Talk Turkey Tomorrow

Parties to Continue for Rest of Week And Some Residents Will Celebrate Thanksgiving on Traditional Date

By Hope Ridings Miller

CAPITALITES WILL EAT turkey—and talk it—at many a topflight table, not only tomorrow but right on until the end of the week. Parties large and small, formal and informal, for visitors and for homefolk are crowding the calendar down to the final hour of Thanksgiving, and there are any number of Washingtonians who are wondering whether they will be able to survive the whirl.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER

There are a few residents, of course, who cling to the old custom of celebrating the traditional season and refuse "to give thanks on Frank's;" but a glimpse of the forthcoming calendar indicates that Capital society for the most part will be making merry this week instead of next.

Arriving in Washington this afternoon to visit Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dewey will be the latter's stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Frelinghuysen, of New York, who will be widely feted during their visit. Incidentally, although Mrs. Dewey is a comparative newcomer to the Capital, she already has made many friends here and is well on the way toward becoming one of the town's most popular hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Frelinghuysen will hardly have time to get their bags unpacked before they are plunged into a whirl of parties. This evening they will be feted at a dinner given by the Deweys at Uplands, the house they have leased from Mrs. J. Borden Harriman for the season. Guests will include Mrs. Edward Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Rodman Wanamaker, Mr. and Mrs. C. Matthews Dick, Marquis and Marquise de Jaucourt, Mr. and Mrs. Snowden Fahnestock, Mrs. S. Kent Legare, Mrs. Athur Woods, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Krock, the British Military Attache, Col. R. V. Read; Myron Hofer, and Pendleton Turner.

Mrs. Arthur Woods will entertain at a luncheon for the Frelinghuysens tomorrow, and Mr. and Mrs. Dick will give a dinner for them tomorrow night.

SOCIETY-GO-ROUND: The Solicitor General and Mrs. Francis Biddle will eat their Thanksgiving turkey in Philadelphia, and will leave for there this afternoon . . . They'll be back in town the following day, however, in time to entertain at a tea in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Piscator . . . The party will take place in the Biddle's apartment at 2101 Connecticut Avenue from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Also leaving town today will be the Federal Security Administrator and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt and their daughter, Louise, who are off to Indiana for Thanksgiving . . . Although they have spent much time away from Indianapolis the last two years, the McNutts have continued to maintain an apartment there . . . After this holiday "back home," however, they plan to move their household effects to their apartment at the Shoreham.

The Swiss Minister and Mme. Bruggmann will wait until next week to eat their Thanksgiving turkey, and they will have it then with Mme. Bruggmann's mother, Mrs. Henry Wallace in Des Moines, Iowa . . . The Iowa Thanksgiving, as you probably know, goes on the boards November 28 . . . Meanwhile, the Minister and Mme. Bruggmann have traveling plans on tap, and they will leave either today or tomorrow for the Middle West, where they will visit several Swiss colonies . . . The envoy and Mme. Bruggmann entertained informally at dinner last night in their Wardman Park apartment.

CAPITAL CALENDAR: The Netherlands Second Secretary and Mme. Boon will entertain at a cocktail party Friday. . . . Mr. and Mrs. W. S. B. Lacy are planning a dinner for November 28. . . . The President of the Export-Import Bank and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson will give a reception Friday afternoon in their Shoreham apartment in honor of Dr. Paul Prebisch, who is in Washington with a special commission from Argentina, and Senora de Prebisch. . . . And that reminds me of another bit of news—Mrs. Pierson is scheduled to christen the Good Neighbor liner, Rio Hudson, at Chester, Pa., November 27. She and Mr. Pierson will take with them a party of official friends who will watch the ceremony and attend the luncheon afterward. . . . Patricia Hill's party for Debutantes Marion and Theresa Norris Friday afternoon at the Sulgrave Club is to be an all-feminine affair. Eighty-two debs and postdebs have been invited to the tea, which really is to be a tea and not a cocktail party, and among the guests there will be several attractive out-of-towners, including Margaret Clark, of Honolulu, Patricia's former roommate at Goucher College; Barbara Manton and Nancy McDermott, of Toledo, Ohio, and Rita Singstad, of New York.

Huntingtons, Burkes to Give Party for Debs

Mr. and Mrs. William Chapin Huntington and Dr. and Mrs. John Woolfolk Burke have issued invitations to a dinner and small dance on Friday, December 27, at the Chevy Chase Club.

Guests of honor will be their debutante daughters, Miss Edith Chapin Huntington and Miss Margaret Mayo Burke, and the company will include only close friends of the debutantes. A number will come from out of town.

Miss Huntington, who is a freshman at Smith College, and Miss Burke, a freshman at Vassar, will not be home for Thanksgiving but they will arrive in plenty of time to enjoy the whirl of parties in the Christmas season.

White House Shift Reception Dates

The White House has received its program of state receptions.

Originally arranged so that the parties would all be given by the end of January, the current schedule provides for two changes in the calendar announced several days ago.

The Congressional reception will take place on Tuesday, February 3, instead of on January 16, and the Army and Navy reception is set for Tuesday, February 11, instead of January 23.

The judicial reception still is scheduled for December 17, and the reception for department officials will take place on January 7, as announced originally.

Mutos Feted

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Chiswell entertained at dinner last night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Muto, who were celebrating their seventh wedding anniversary.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

LOVELY, BLONDE MARIAN KIRK has completed plans for her marriage to Dr. John Appel, of Philadelphia. The wedding ceremony will take place on January 4 in historic St. John's Church. A small reception for the wedding party and members of the family will follow at the home of Mr. and Mr. Richard Wilmer, after which the bride and groom will leave for a honeymoon in Mexico. Upon their return the couple will live in Philadelphia, where Dr. Appel has his practice.

If all goes well the bride will be given away by her father, Capt. Alan G. Kirk, who is now stationed at the United States Embassy in London as Naval Attache, but who is due to come home on leave in December.

Mrs. Kirk asked a few friends in for tea the other day at her house in Georgetown to meet Mrs. Vinton Chapin. Mrs. Chapin, whose husband is also at the United States Embassy in London, is house guest of still another "refugee wife," Mrs. Theodore Achilles.

• • • •

ANOTHER MRS. CHAPIN was entertained on the same day when Maj. and Mrs. David Barry gave a cocktail party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Selden Chapin. The Chapins will soon be leaving for Mr. Chapin's new diplomatic post in South America.

Mrs. Barry was aided in receiving by the eldest daughter of the house, post-deb Alice Barry, the two looking exactly like sisters with their dark hair and brown eyes. Mrs. Barry was very smart in black worn with stunning gold bracelets and necklace, while Alice brightened her black frock with orchids.

The guest of honor was gowned in a becoming shade of soft green which seemed to give the autumn note followed by many of the ladies present in their frocks. Most typical of autumn was the hat of Mrs. Lewis Clark which was causing delighted comments on all sides. Though it may sound a bit fantastic in description, be assured that it is extremely smart—a small hat trimmed across the front with oak leaves and acorns.

MRS. EMMONS SMITH was in black, topped by a chic, little red hat, and blonde Mrs. Cortlandt Parker was attractive in brown. Also present were Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacCracken who are very much pleased over the prospect of spending this week-end in New Haven.

Other guests of the Barrys were Mr. and Mrs. Corrin Strong, Mrs. Wallach Merriam, Mr. and Mrs. Armistead Peter 3d, Mrs. Edward R. Finkenstaedt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Southgate and a number of others.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE RUBLEE had friends dining informally with them the other night at the house which they have leased in Rock Creek Park. The house, which belongs to former Senator Gore, father of Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, is built high on a hill and is surrounded by woods. Mrs. Rublee has put her own stamp on the furnishings with the addition of bright-colored tapestries and lovely objets d'art which she has collected in her travels.

Dining with the Rublees were Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Wilmerding, jr., she in a flame-colored evening gown; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pell and Raymond H. Geist. Mr. Geist has been for some time Consul and First Secretary at the United States Embassy in Berlin.

• • • •

MRS. JOUETT SHOUSE has returned from a short trip to Harrisburg, Pa., where she went to take two of her Boxers for exhibition at the dog show. She is as pleased as can be with the result of her trip for both Boxers won recognition, a blue ribbon for one and a red ribbon for the other.

The Second Secretary of the Brazilian Embassy and Mrs. Gouthier will give a small dinner before the George Garretts' dance for Elaine Darlington.

Mrs. Higginson Rogers has returned to her attractive house in Georgetown after two months spent in New England.

Navy Notables Among 450 Guests At Sulgrave Club

A Navy belle was launched with appropriate fanfare yesterday afternoon when Miss Suzanne Slingluff, attractive daughter of Commander and Mrs. Frank Slingluff, made her bow to society at a large tea at the Sulgrave Club.

A distinguished company, nicely accented with Navy notables, called from 5 to 7 o'clock to enjoy the party which chalked up honors as one of the most successful debut fetes of the season.

Mrs. Slingluff and her daughter received the long line of guests—around 450 in all—at the door of the drawing room. Huge baskets of roses, chrysanthemums and gladioli and smaller bouquets of gardenias and orchids were attractively arranged around the reception hall and the drawing room, and similar floral displays lined the walls of the ballroom, where dancing was the order of the day.

Prominent Group Assists Hostess

Looking as if she had stepped out of a picturebook, the debutante wore a bouffant frock of white faille, fashioned with a bodice arranged jacket-effect over the billowing skirt. Puffed sleeves and a sweetheart neckline edged in rhinestone to match the slim border around the bodice further accented the pretty frock, and she carried a lace-like fan of flowers.

Mrs. Slingluff appeared in aquamarine crepe, made with elbow-length sleeves and a flowing skirt, and worn with a corsage of orchids.

Pink roses and tall tapers decorated the long tea table centering the dining room. Among those who took their turns at pouring were Mrs. Harold Stark, Mrs. David Sellers, Mrs. Roland Brainard, Mrs. Walter Anderson, Mrs. Wallach Merriam, Mrs. Elliott Nixon, Mrs. Ralph Alexander, Mrs. Franklin Ellis, Mrs. Oscar Badger, Mrs. John Barriger, Mrs. Wallace Gearing and Mrs. Richard Buchanan.

Debs Dance The Rumba

Assisting Miss Slingluff were several of her contemporaries, including Kitty Claude, Mary Ann Ferrandou, Audrey Cowan, Elaine Darlington, Elizabeth Stewart-Richardson, Ann Buchanan, Beatrice Recinos, Nany Strong, Isabelle Badger, Margaret Gearing and the Misses Marion and Mary Theresa Norris.

As the afternoon wore on and the ballroom cleared a bit, the orchestra stepped up the music into a rumba, followed by the Conga. First a hardy couple or two tried the intricate steps, then, followed by enthusiastic encouragement, many of the debs and their partners swung onto the dance floor in the "South American Way." There they put on such a graceful dance that many guests found it a veritable floor show.

Noted among the guests during the afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grant Meem and their daughter, Miss Eleanor Meem; Mrs. Harry Cootes, widow of Col. Cootes; Miss Edith Pearson, stunning in a purple crepe frock with an interesting antique gold "conversation-piece" at the neckline; Admiral Bland Brainard, Capt. and Mrs. Harry A. Baldridge, who came up from Annapolis, where he is curator of the Naval Academy Museum; Capt. and Mrs. Allen Reed, Capt. and Mrs. Abram Claude, Frank Holcomb, son of the Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb, and many more.

Yesterday's party was but one of a number planned in honor of Miss Slingluff this season. One of the outstanding fetes on her forthcoming calendar is the dance to be given for her by her parents on December 28. The event will take place at the Sulgrave Club.

Mrs. Whitten Visits Her New Home

Mrs. Francis Whitten is spending a few days in White Sulphur Springs, where she is making a last-minute inspection of her new home, which overlooks the Anthonys Creek section of the town.

The house is nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy early in the spring. While in White Sulphur, Mrs. Whitten is staying at the Greenbrier Hotel. Other Washingtonians arriving there recently include Mrs. Harry S. Black, who will be there for several days, and George B. Armstrong.

Children's Theater Tickets Go Fast

As many youngsters seem to be coming to Washington for the Thanksgiving holidays and are going away—at least judging from the number of visiting cousins and friends for whom subscribers to the Children's Theater of New York plays at the National Theater are trying to get additional tickets to "The Secret Garden" coming on Saturday morning, November 23.

"The Secret Garden" is an inspirational play, adapted by Mrs. Clara Tree Major, director of the Children's Theater, from Frances Hodgson Burnett's book of the same name.

Great plans are under way for the special afternoon performance of the Children's Theater Christmas play. This play, "The Seven Wishes," was written especially for these popular players by Maurice Maeterlinck, famous author of "The Blue Bird." It will be presented in the morning and the afternoon of December 27. The second performance is under the sponsorship of the Washington Wellesley Club and is a benefit for child refugee relief.

Mmes. Daniel and Pratt To Get 'Welcome Dawn'

Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel and Mrs. Frederick Lyman Pratt have issued invitations for a tea on Sunday, November 24, from 3 to 6 o'clock. The party will take place at Mrs. Pratt's home, 7324 Piney Branch Road, Takoma Park, Md.

Guest of honor will be Mrs. Grace Kiess Swiggert, who is to be feted on her publication of "Welcome Dawn."

Miss Harris, T. L. Terbush Married Here

Couple to Make Home At 1660 Lanier Place After Wedding Trip

White chrysanthemums and palms formed the setting for the wedding last night at 8:30 of Miss Virginia Bales Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harris, of Arlington, Va., to Theron LeRoy Terbush, son of James L. Terbush, of Oklahoma. The ceremony took place at the Western Presbyterian Church in Washington, the Rev. J. Harve Dunham officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Stewart B. Shaw, wore ivory satin made on simple lines with a high neck and long train. Her net veil fell from a headdress trimmed with pearl orange blossoms and she carried white roses and valley lilies.

Miss Shirley Harris was maid of honor for her sister. She was dressed in deep pink velvet with a matching headdress trimmed with flowers and pink net. She carried yellow roses. The bridesmaids were the Misses Eva Engel, Ruth Shankle, Helen Herfwith and Betty Wood, and serving as flower girls were Mary Anna and Martha James Parham. The bridesmaids wore aqua blue satin and carried orchid mums to match the clusters in their hair. The flower girls wore pink taffeta with bonnets of the same shade.

Prof. Arthur Hamilton, of Maryland University, was best man and the ushers were Sam Allison, Paul James, Hunter Pritchard and Harry Hedlund.

A reception at the Harris home followed. After a honeymoon, the couple will live at 1660 Lanier Place. Out of town guests included Mrs. Robert Bales, Miss Hallene Bales, Robert Bales, jr., Mrs. L. S. Sloat and Mrs. Forest Noe, all of Morristown, Tenn.

The bride was graduated last June from Wilson Teachers College and is a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma Sorority. Mr. Terbush was graduated in 1936 from the University of Maryland and received his law degree this year from George Washington University. He is doing graduate work at the Brookings Institute of Economics.

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

NOTE TO real estate agents: Mrs. J. Borden Harriman is looking for a house in Washington this winter. Reports have it that our able Minister to Norway is not going to join the exiled government in London. If she is here, no doubt those famous Sunday night suppers, where she mixes everyone, from Tories to labor leaders, will be resumed.

DUDLEY HARMON

Mrs. Harriman came down from New York to attend the dinner given the other night for Crown Princess Martha of Norway. Hosts were the Danish Minister and Mme. de Kaufmann. The Princess is going to no big parties, but occasionally attends a small dinner.

Uplands, the home of Mrs. Harriman, on Foxhall Road, is rented this year to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dewey. One of the most attractive houses in Washington, it has had a succession of tenants since the owner left it to go to Oslo.

Mrs. Harriman has returned to New York, where before November 5 she worked for the reelection of President Roosevelt.

IF THERE'S a big gap in Washington officialdom next week, it's because many of them are off to Mexico for the inauguration of President Camancho. Leading the Parade are the Vice President-elect and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, who will go by motor. House Minority Leader Joe Martin got back on Monday to Washington and had just opened his invitation yesterday, so hasn't quite decided. Whether he goes will depend somewhat on the plans of Congress.

Representative Sol Bloom—the only other member of the House invited—Mrs. Bloom and Miss Vera Bloom will go by train. At the border the passengers will be met by a special train sent by the Mexican government. Latin Americans are famous for lavish entertaining, so the stay in Mexico City will probably be one big dinner and luncheon after another.

AMONG THE out-of-towners coming here for the George Garrett dance November 30 will be that jovial bachelor, Arthur Bradley Campbell. He is spending the autumn in New York at the Ambassador Hotel. His nieces, Marjorie and Isabell Meuser, who made their debuts here last season, are out West . . . With so many temporarily widowed women flocking to Washington this winter, any extra man is news. One who will be widely welcomed is Walter Prendergast, formerly with the State Department and now here on a Government appointment. Mr. Prendergast, who is staying at the Metropolitan Club, was among the guests at Mrs. David Barry's cocktail party for the Selden Chapins. Most of the others present were State Department colleagues of Mr. Chapin. With his wife, the latter will sail in two weeks for their new post at Montevideo.

Mr. and Mrs. Livingston Hartley have cards out for a cocktail party on Sunday for Mr. and Mrs. Harry Villard. Mr. Hartley heads the Washington office of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies.

Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford University and former Secretary of the Interior, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given yesterday at the Cosmos Club by Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of the George Washington University, and Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, dean of the George Washington University School of Medicine.

The luncheon followed a meeting of the Smith-Reed-Russell Society at the George Washington medical school at which Dr. Wilbur delivered the principel address. His subject was "Medicine in the Modern World."

Guests at the luncheon included Admiral Edward R. Stitt, Admiral Harold W. Smith, Admiral Ross T. McIntire, Gen. James C. Magee, Gen. Raymond F. Berle and Alfaro Stress Americas' Rising Unity

Assistant Secretary of State and Former Panama President Speak in the Fourth Of Series of Lectures on Hemisphere

B Jessie Ash Arndt

The Post Club Editor.

The closer union growing up among the republics of the Western Hemisphere as the dangers of the European conflict increase, was stressed yesterday both by Adolph A. Berle, jr., Assistant Secretary of State and Dr. Ricardo Alfaro, former President of Panama, speakers at the fourth in the series of Latin-American lectures, at the Shoreham. Their subject was "Resume of the Pan American Conferences."

In 1933, the year that President Roosevelt outlined the Good Neighbor policy, Hitler rose to absolute power, Dr. Alfaro pointed out, and since then there have been the closest relations in history among the nations of the Western Hemisphere.

He reviewed briefly the Buenos Aires, Lima, Panama and Havana conferences and their result, a stronger solidarity among the American republics as the European conflagration has increased."

"Pan American," he said, "is evolving from a purely moral union into a real commonwealth of nations, united by effective political ties. We also see that the American republics continue to work for peace, but in the face of dangers resulting from war and the new ideologies of force and aggression, they are working for peace and keeping in mind the old Latin adage: "Si vis pacem para bellum" (if you want peace, prepare for war).

"They are praying God that war should never involve the New World, but at the same time the peoples of the free Americas, as represented by the overwhelming majority of their public opinion, continue to love their freedom, maintain their faith in democracy, and are animated by an unflinching determination to fight rather that submit tamely to any form of imposition or slavery," he asserted.

Mr. Berle said that "rarely in the history of international relations have continuing conferences produced results as far-reaching and as pragmatic as those which have flowed from the inter-American system. This is partly because the progress of the inter-American family has proceeded not from the top down but from the bottom up.

"We are midway in this combined program of military, political and economic cooperation now," he said. "I believe that we are doing something more than merely taking care of an emergeny. I think we are forging the pattern for a new method of handling world affair.

"In the American Continent we have the conception of peace without empire—the cooperative peace which arises from understanding and willingness to cooperate. It may well be that we are forging the outlines for a system of world peace which will prove to be the pattern of the next century."

Stanley K. Hornbeck, of the State Department, presided during the program and Mrs. Barnet Nover was chairman of the day, with Mrs. Tomas Cajigas vice chairman.

Following the lecture, a luncheon was given in the Blue Room honoring religious organizations. Representing the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish groups were Dr. Edwin Ryan, of Catholic University; Bishop James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington; Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, of the Hebrew Temple, Mrs. Elizabeth Sullivan was chairman of the Catholic women's group, Mrs. Frank A. Linzel in charge of the Protestant group and Mrs. Edward Sonneborn in charge of the Jewish women's group for the day. Mrs. Henry A. Wallace was the official hostess, assisted by Mrs. William O. Douglas, Mrs. Linzel, president of the Council of Church Women, was toastmistress. Mrs. Thomas Burke introduced the Right Rev. David Rubio, representative of the Latin-American clergy.

Gisela Warburg Tells Hadassah Of Children Taken to Palestine

1,197 Were Transported From Europe In Last Year by Youth Alyiah Movement, Zionist Organization Hears

The Youth Alyiah Movement has transported 1,197 children from Europe to the safety of Palestine within the last year, Miss Gisela Warburg informed the Washington Chapter of Hadassah, Women's Zionist Organization, yesterday.

Miss Warburg, who came to the United States last fall from Europe, where she was carrying on the work of moving the children out of Germany, was guest of honor at a tea given by the chapter at the Jewish Community Center. She has been touring this country as chairman of the National Youth Alyiah Fund-Raising Committee, which is now the sole agency financing the transfer of these refugee children from the war areas.

There are 200 children now in Lithuania who soon will be started on their way to Palestine through Russia, Turkey and Syria, she said. Arrangements are in progress for their journey but dependent, of course, on any shift in the international picture, she said. Efforts are never given up, she added.

If the Mediterranean is closed, they go by land to the East. The committees are familiar with obstacles and with ways to surmount them. The journey of one group included, after training in agricultural camps in Germany, going to Poland, afoot out of Poland to Lithuania before the Germans—and the rest of the journey by way of Sweden and Holland by train, plane and ship. This was more than a year ago.

Since the Youth Aliyah movement was started about six years ago, 6,200 children have been established in communities in Palestine, she said. All have been trained in agriculture and some in other trades also, but 76 per cent of the 2,000 who have finished their course have chosen to remain on the land and prepare it for other settlers, said Miss Warburg.

After two years of training, part study and part practical work, financed by Hadassah, the young people work a year without pay for a farmer. The fourth and fifth years they go out as labor groups, working for pay and saving their money as a group so as to start a new settlement at the end of the time.

Hadassah will allot $80,000 as a revolving fund, to help these groups to establish their colonies, it was announced yesterday. The fund will be named for Miss Henrietta Szold, founder of the movement, honoring her eightieth anniversary next month. She is now in Palestine, directing the work from that end. The program will be broadened to include other young Jewish refugees or children of poor families not yet well established who were not transferred there by Hadassah funds. These will be put in the colonies established for European children who cannot now be sent over in as large numbers as before.

Mrs. Henry Segal, program chairman of the Washington Chapter, introduced Miss Warburg. Mrs. Moe Offenburg, the president, presided and introduced Mrs. Louis Brandeis, who was also an honor guest. She also announced the appointment of Mrs. Raphael Tourover, a past president, as a member of the national board.

Tea was served following the program and several hundred members and guests attended. Mrs. Louis Janof, who was chairman of the tea and who also heads the Youth Aliyah Committee of Washington, entertained in honor of Miss Warburg last night at dinner. Guests were members of her committee, officers of Hadassah and of the business and professional women's division of the organization.

MONDAY and Tuesday of next week, from 9 to 5, Mrs. H. L. Wyman, president of the Washington branch of the Needlework Guild of America, with other officers and directors will be at Covenant-First Presbyterian Church for the annual ingathering and distribution of garments.

This year the annual meeting, with a guest speaker, has been dispensed with, but guild members and the general public are invited to stop at the church any time either day to see the workers assembling and classifying the new garments—about 4,000 of them—and packing them for distribution. Anyone who desires to contribute to the work is invited to bring two new warm garments of the same kind for a man, woman or child of any age, to be added to those the guild is preparing for local charities. There are 2 charities on the list of those to which the clothing goes.

Miss Walters Calls English Morale Good

Never in the history of England has there been the spirit of unity and dedication to a cause that there is today, Miss Marjorie Walters, holder of the Rose Sidgwick Memorial Fellowship of the British and American Associtaions of University Women, told the Women's National Press Club yesterday.

Speaking at the club's weekly luncheon on the program with Maria Ley Piscator, supervisor of production for the Washington Repertory Theater, Miss Walters described the war work of English women in the civilian defense organizations.

The first thing they realized, she said, was that it would be a long war and that "life as we know it must go on with modifications." The women welcome opportunity to do their part in the defense of England beside the men, she said. "Fascism means a slavery the British women are not prepared to accept."

Small, with clear gray eyes, strong, finely chiseled features and a delightful sense of humor, she seemed to typify the sturdy determination of the English people to maintain the ideals they cherish.

She was presented by the club president, Mrs. J. Fred Essary, following Mme. Piscator. The latter outlined the plans of the Repertory Theater not only for its first production, "D. C. Melody," but also for a "National Theater" in the Capital to be established as a home for drama in the Nation.

Mme. Piscator said she believed this was one means of fighting for real values and perpetuating them. "D. C. Melody," although remote from Shakespeare, Anderson and O'Neill, represents a beginning for the theater project and has revealed much heretofore hidden talent in Washington, she said. Broadway could improve itself by importing some of Washington's singers and dancers.

Explorer Tells Of Housekeeping In the Jungle

"Wherever we live, we have the problem of keeping house, but where we live determines how we do it," Mrs. Matthew W. Stirling told members of the Washington Club yesterday speaking on the subject, "Housekeeping in the Jungle in Mexico."

Mrs. Stirling described her experiences while accompanying her husband on two field trips to the states of Veracruz and Tabasco for the National Geographic Society and the Smithsonian Institution.

In Tres Zapotes, natives built the Stirling's thatched house, cutting all the materials from the jungle. Instead of nails they used bejuca (vine) for tying and binding.

"The camp personnel," said the speaker, "consisted of a cook, Maria, a handy girl and a handy man. Maria's mother agreed to let her come to cook for us if we hired another girl to act as chaperone and assistant cook."

D. C. Soroptimist Club Stages A Founder's Day of Symbolism

The local Soroptimist Club last night celebrated its Founder's Day at the Willard Hotel. It was founded in 1922 and is a clasified club of executive women in business and in the professions.

A buffet dinner was followed by a pageant called "The March of Time." Mrs. Florence Meara represented the "March of Time," and Mrs. Cynthia Warner, dressed as "The Town Crier" with her bell, announced the passing events.

A hospital scene, with Dr. Elizabeth Sohon carrying her medicine case, and hurrying to deliver the new-born Soroptimist Club represented Founder's Day. Next was a student with books which represented the scholarships given by the club.

Mrs. Laura Waters, dressed in uniform, represented the support and the aid given by the local club to the deceased president, Mrs. Mina Van Winkle, in her work of establishing the Police Women's Bureau.

Mrs. Katherine Morris, dressed in the garb of a little old lady, represented the contributions made by the club to the Blue Plains Institution; Mrs. Augusta Uhl, in a Red Cross uniform, the contributions of the club to the Red Cross, and Mrs. Edna Huffman, the part the club took in the restoration of Wakefield.

Miss Grace Goodpasture represented Baltimore, the first new Soroptimist Club formed by the Washington Club in the South-Atlantic region of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs.

Miss Ruth Baker portrayed the achievements of the club during the presidency of the late Mrs. Martin Hysong, one of them a contributing membership in the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club.

Mrs. Cynthia Warner depicted the support given by the club to the National Symphony Orchestra.

A cartload of books wheeled on the stage represented the six libraries installed by the club in various institutions in the District, and the flag of the Community Chest told the story of the club's contributions to this cause.

A miniature log cabin represented the work done by the club at Camp Bennett of the Central Union Mission.

Dr. Elizabeth Sohon led in her pet, "Laddie," on his back a sign reading, "I am pinch-hitting for the Seeing Eye Dog given by the Soroptimist Club to a blind man."

Miss Ella Werner, carrying a microphone, represented the interest taken in the Criminal Justice Association; Mrs. Marie Pierce, the club's project of giving Soroptimist dolls to sick children in the hospital; Mrs. Zada Daniels, carrying a doctor's kit, the numerous contributions by the club to the Children's Hospital.

Miss Gertrude Sullivan, carrying a small bed, represented two outstanding features of Miss Mary Bourke's administration, the raising of a fund of $1,000 to endow a room for cardiac patients at the Children's Convalescent Home and the contribution of $50 to the Children's Emergency Home.

Miss Bourke represented the Venture Club of Washington, an organization of women between the ages of 19 and 26, who are sponsored by the Soroptimist Club which Miss Bourke started.

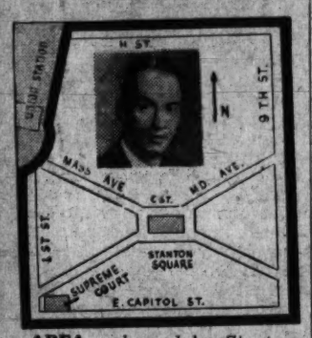
Stanton Park Group Marking Its 20th Year



AREA embraced by Stanton Park Citizens Association, headed by William J. Bartle (inset)

This is the fifty-second article in a series about citizens' associations in the District and their efforts to make the community a better place in which to live.

Serving an area just east of the Capitol, the Stanton Park Citizens Association is celebrating its twentieth anniversary this year.

The sector is named after Stanton Square, which takes its name from Lincoln's Secretary of War. In the center of the square is a large equestrian statue—not of Edward M. Stanton—but of Nathaniel Greene, Revolutionary War hero.

Since 1920, the association has succeeded in securing better lighting, streets and police and fire protection for the area, according to William J. Bartle, president. It also cooperated in obtaining the Northeast Branch Public Library, Seventh Street and Maryland Avenue Northeast, and in having interstate trucks rerouted off of Maryland avenue, he added.

The association was one of the first exponents of suffrage for the District, the president continued, many of its members being enthusiastic workers in suffrage organizations.

Harry N. Stull, now serving his second term as president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, is a delegate from the Stanton Park unit. The association's other representative, A. H. Gregory, was treasurer of the federation for many years.

One of the main problems facing the citizens is in "keeping Stanton Park as it is," officers say. The area is now a high-class residential section, with good transportation in all directions and adequate parks, educational and playground facilities. And it is within a few blocks of the largest library in the world—the Congressional.

A few apartment houses have been erected in the sector lately, but they have gone up with the association's consent, replacing as a rule the more dilapidated dwellings in the neighborhood.

Meetings of the body usually feature discussions of current problems of city-wide as well as local interest. They are held on the second Tuesday of each month from September to June in the Peabody School, Fifth and C Streets Northeast.

Current officers, besides Bartle, include Vernon Cooper, vice president; Mrs. W. H. Smith, second vice president; Dorothy Pyle, secretary, and A. M. Panzer, treasurer.

Sen. Townsend's Son Seriously Hurt When Auto Skids

Paul L. Townsend, 35-year-old son of Senator Townsend (Republican), of Delaware, suffered a fractured back yesterday when his car skidded off the road and overturned three times near Snow Hill, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

Shortly after the accident, Senator Townsend left Washington to be at his son's bedside in the Peninsular General Hospital at Salisbury, Md. The younger Townsend was his father's secretary.

Misfortune has beset the younger Townsend twice in recent years. His son, Paul, jr., 5, was injured fatally in a 20-foot fall from the roof of the Townsend home at 1344 Thirtieth Street Northwest. Townsend now lives at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Townsend was driving alone in a heavy rain, en route from Washington to his brother's lodge near Salisbury, where he was to have gone duck hunting. Devereau Carmean, of Philadelphia, witness to the accident, said the car plunged through a fence and into a field after skidding off the slipery road.

67 Auto Parking Tickets Quashed

Sixty-seven parking tickets were quashed last week, two for persons pleading diplomatic immunity and one at the request of Representative Frank W. Boykin (Democrat), of Alabama.

Records of the "adjusted" violation notices were released at police headquarters yesterday and showed that 60 drivers received warnings and 7 tickets were canceled.

Representative Boykin interceded for his secretary, Patricia C. Benton, 1613 Harvard Street Northwest, who was charged with parking overtime, according to the records. She was given a warning by Capt. Milton D. Smith.

William Adams, of the Netherlands Legation, was given a warning for parking on a sightseeing stand, and T. Alberto Mateol, of the Spanish Embassy, had a ticket canceled. The notices charged him with parking to onear a corner.

Indiana U. Alumni To Breakfast Sunday

The Indiana University Alumni Association of Washington will hold its monthly breakfast meeting at the Kennedy-Warren Hotel at 10:30 a. m. Sunday.

Baptists Get Challenge of Dr. Cranford

He Urges Stronger Work Among Youth To Counter Influences That Hurt Character

Dr. Clarence W. Cranford last night challenged delegates at the annual District Baptist Convention to combat character-undermining forces with more effective church youth programs.

The pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Richmond, popularly known as "Cranny," spoke at a "Culture of Christian Youth" program at Grace Baptist Church, where earlier in the day encouraging reports were heard on local progress of the denomination.

Dr. Weaver Reports

Presenting his annual report in the afternoon, Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, executive secretary of the convention, described expenditures of $506,700 by local Baptists during the past year for erection of new buildings and improvements. Reports on the Baptist Bible School, Baptist Home for Children and the Baptist Home of the District also were given.

Dr. Weaver announced that a national Baptist publication shortly will appear under a Washington date-line, beginning in December or January. It is understood that Dr. Weaver and Henry Sweinhart, of First Baptist Church, who have been heading a special committee of local Baptist clergy and laymen in bringing the publication here, will be editors.

The convention approved a resolution urging "the establishment of a Baptist Youth Fellowship of the Northern Baptist Convention," which would incorporate the work of the Baptist Young People's Unions of America, the youth work of the American Baptist Publication Society and the Board of Education of the Northern Convention.

Division Deplored

Another resolution approved yesterday deplored "the present division of our Baptist denomination into two conventions" and recommended that "every effort be made to unite the two conventions into one and thus become the most powerful organizations in the United States for the advancement of God's Kingdom."

Last night's youth program brought remarks from Baptist young people's leaders of the city, among them Haley Scurlock, speaking for the Baptist Student Union; Betty Bogart, the Columbian Girls' Organization; Richard Thomasson, the Sunday school, and John Gordon Mein, Baptist training unions.

Sessions of the Woman's Baptist Missionary Association are scheduled for today at 10 a. m., with Mrs. J. G. Yaden, president, presiding. A Thanksgiving service will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m.

Dr. Moody Speaks Of Churches' Duty

Churches have a great responsibility to follow young men into the Selective Service camps, Dr. Paul Dwight Moody said yesterday at the annual meeting of the Washington Association of Congregational Christian Churches.

Dr. Moody, director of the general committee on Army and Navy chaplains and president of Middlebury College, urged cooperation between civilians living near Selective Service camps and the men in the service.

He spoke at Cleveland Park Congregational Church, Thirty-fourth and Lowell Streets Northwest, whose pastor, the Rev. Paul Yinger, was elected moderator of the association, to succeed Miss Jessie M. La Salle. Dr. John B. Wolcott, of First Congregational Church, was chosen vice moderator, and the Rev. John L. Mixon, director of social welfare department of the Federation of Churches, and Howard F. Barker were reelected secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Reports on the general Congregational Conference at Berkeley, Calif., last summer were made by delegates Dr. Howard Stone Anderson, pastor of the First Congregational Church, and Mrs. Anderson, also an ordained minister; Dr. Arthur D. Gray, of Plymouth Congregational Church, and Dr. Fred S. Buschmeyer, of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

Dr. Joseph M. M. Gray, former chancellor of American University, and Mrs. Royal G. Whiting, executive secretary of the Congregational Christian Committee for Assistance to War Victims, spoke at last night's service, for which the Rev. C. C. Hung, pastor of the Chinese Community Church, gave the invocation. Mrs. Beatrice Field Russell, field representative of the Church Committee for China Relief, addressed the dinner meeting. Mrs. D. E. Brown, superintendent of the Middle Atlantic Conference of Congregational-Christian Churches, shared the afternoon program with Dr. Moody.

Dr. Dudley's Body Will Lie in State At Cathedral

The body of Dr. George Fiske Dudley, 74, former rector of St. Stephen's and Incarnation Episcopal Church, who died Monday night in Garfield Hospital, will lie in state in the Washington Cathedral, in the Chapel of St. Joseph of Arimathea, today and tomorrow.

Funeral services will be held in St. Stephen's and Incarnation Church, 1527 Newton Street Northwest, at 1:30 p. m. Friday, with the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, officiating, assisted by Bishop Wallace Gardner, of Trenton, N. J. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Bishop Freeman yesterday issued the following tribute: "Few men that have served in the ministry of the church in this city have been more widely known to clergy and laity alike then Dr. Dudley. Energetic, forceful, devoted to his ministry, a strong preacher, he furnished a fine example of the Christian disciple."

Postlude

Serenade and Poker Game Danced by Ballets Russe

BALLERINA—Nathalie Krassovska, soloist of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, will dance tonight at Constitution Hall in a joint performance of the Ballet Russe Company and the National Symphony Orchestra. Curtain: 8:45 p. m.

By Ray C. B. Brown.

National Symphony Orchestra collaborates with the Ballets Russe de Monte Carlo in Constitution Hall Tuesday night. Program: "Serenade" to music by Chaikovski, "Poker Game" to music by Stravinski, and "Vienna 1814" to music by Weber. Artistic director: Leonid Miassin. Conductor: Efrem Kurtz.

Presenting three choreographic ductions now to Washington, the Ballets Russes de Monte Carlo joined forces with the National Symphony Orchestra last evening in Constitution Hall, which was well filled with spectator - auditors cordially welcoming the return of Leonid Miassin and his organization. Because of the staging limitations; the spectacular side of the ballets naturally lacked the background of decor, but the performances were thoroughly enjoyable on their technical merits. Moreover, one once move savored the experience of hearing the music excellently played by a competently skilled orchestra.

Ray C. B. Brown

The high achievement of the program was George Balanchin's "Serenade" danced to three numbers from Chaikovski's orchestral suite of the same title. The supple choreography, revealing an instinctive understanding of the relation between ballet traditions and the contemporary emergence of new dancing techniques, was delightfully molded to the music. In the costuming also was evidenced the transformation which the classic ballet is undergoing before our eyes, and the dancing patterns made subtle use of visible counterpoint.

In the opening movement, the Sonatina, the designs developed by the corps de ballet were ingenious and constantly interesting in the flowing adaptation to the rhythms of the music. The adagio section was remarkable for pattern devices which were frankly rhetorical, corresponding to the flourishing periods and dramatic emphasis of oratory, and extremely effective. While the waltz section was more conventional, it had several novel treatments of a ryhthm which is apt to become rigid when not thus modified.

Igor Stravinski's "Poker Game," formerly known as "Card Party" when first offered by the American Ballet, was disappointing in its unimportance as music. The score, unusually melodious for Stravinski was flippant and inconsequential, and one noted at least on unabashed borrowing from Rossini, Balanchin's choreography, making adroit use of straights, flushes and other poker terms, was indisputably amusing. Much of the humor devolved upon Frederic Franklin as the Joker, and he carried out his part with the true buffo spirit.

"Vienna 1814," a refurbishing of the old ballet idea of bringing together period-costumed figures at a ball which is enlivened by specialty dances, was more pleasing musically than scenically. Russell Bennett, who contrived the score, orchestrated a number of unfamiliar pieces by Carl Maria von Weber and gave them fresh life by clever instrumentation.

Frankly, one's attention was held more by the delightful music than by a choreography, which abided too closely to the Petipa conventions. In the course of the proceedings were heard a polonaise, a Saxon dance, a Scilienne (danced in a beautiful style by Chris Volkov), a Russian dance, a Chinese theme, and a rousing mazurek. Leonid Miassin made his only appearance of the evening in one of the divertissements.

Two changes were made in the cast as set forth in the printed program. Rosella Highlower substituted for Alicia Markova as Queen of Hearts in "Poker Game," and Mia Slavenska was Princess Lieven in "Vienna 1814," while Alexandria Danilova took her place as one of the debutantes.

Secretary's Job Goes Begging Among Columbia Hgts. Citizens

Wanted: One Secretary, by the Citizens Forum of Columbia Heights.

The forum chose new officers last night, reelecting President Sparrel A. Wood for a third term, but nobody would accept the nomination of secretary.

Thomas M. Raysor, present secretary, finally agreed to remain in office for one month while President Wood scoured around for a successor.

The forum reelected Lester T. Walter, first vice president; Mrs. C. J. Fernald, second vice president, and James M. Cranford, treasurer. William J. Oates was elected chaplain and Dr. Lyman F. Kebler and W. W. Coulliette, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Meeting at Powell Junior High School, Hiatt Place and Lamont Street Northwest, the forum adopted a resolution condemning the grade of concrete being laid in Thirteenth Street Northwest between Spring Road and Clifton Street.

In another resolution, the citizens decided to ask the Park and Planning Commission to remove brick and other debris from the playground on Lamont Street near Powell Junior High School.

A report on the District budget, presented by Tax Chairman Coulliette was discussed and a motion picture was presented by the Community Chest.

Petworth

The District sanitation division was urged to remove accumulation of dead leaves in the streets by the Petworth Citizens Association last night. The association pointed out that the leaves, washed into the sewer basins, might clog up the city's drainage system.

The unit expressed opposition to the granting of a liquor license applied for at 3815 Georgie Avenue Northwest. It suggested to the Federation of Citizens Associations that the latter organization apply to the District Commissioner for a room in the new District Building to be used exclusively by the federation. A committee was appointed to prepare a petition seeking the rerouting of empty buses using Fifth Street Northwest en route downtown.

Miss Elsie M. Pinney was awarded a turkey door prize. The association voted to hold a Christmas lighting contest and put up three cash prizes.

Girl, 3, Hit by Car In Front of Home

Three-year-old Ida Fugitt, of 1100 Sixth Street Southwest, was struck by an automobile and injured last night in front of her home.

At Providence Hospital, where she was treated for head and body lacerations, her condition was pronounced "fair." Mandel Wilpan, 63, of 1732 Sixteenth Street Northwest, was listed by police as driver of the car.

Sabotage In Press Hit By MacLeish

Democracy's Enemies Should Be Answered, He Says in Speech Honoring Gutenberg

Partisans of democracy can defend their purpose and their hopes "only by employing the press more skillfully and more persistently and more effectively than the saboteurs can employ it against us," Archibald MacLeish, Librarian of Congress, last night told a meeting celeorating the 500th anniversary of the invention of printing from movable type.

He said the real enemies of democracy in the United States do not call for the overthrow of democratic forms of government, but rather are saboteurs who destroy "the meaning of he words, the authority of the speakers, the confidence of the hearers, the significance of the facts . . . by defamation of character, by falsification of fact, by excitement of rumor."

Therefore, he said, "there is no possible denial of the press, no form of statute and no method of enforcement, which will close the press" to such saboteurs. To counteract them, partisans of democracy must keep "the American issue" before the people, he said, which is the issue of "the realization of the democratic dream—the ceration in this continent of the free mind."

1,000 Hear Address

He spoke at a program sponsored by the Washington Club of Printing House Craftsmen, in Harding Hall, Government Prinitng Office. About 1,000 persons attended.

Adolf Hitler is the first man since the invention by Johann Gutenberg "to turn the printing presses against the people like machine guns," MacLeisch said.

"And Mr. Hitler and his friends at home and in this country are the first men in history who have deliberately and sytematically employed the printing press as an offenseive weapon of confusion and deceit," he said.

MacLeish said that since Fascist victories abroad, a journalism "of shameless calumny and calculated deception" has begun to appear in American newspaper columns and magazine articles.

He called attention to the irony of the fact that "the 500th anniversary of the invention of the art of printing should fall upon the year of the successful employment of the printing press as a weapon of intellectual confusion and emotional disorder."

From Darkness to Light

Douglas C. McMurtrie, director of typography of the Ludlow Typograph Co. and chairman of the Invention of Printing Anniversary Committee, International Association of Printing House Craftsmen, traced the history of Gutenberg's invention and showed slides of pages from early books.

Alvin W. Hall, director, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, in a brief talk said, "we are celebrating an event that occurred in Germany 500 years ago. It has been said that this invention turned the darkness of the Middle Ages into light."

He then referred to the contrast between "conditions in a free country like ours, and in the country in which the press was born."

Augustus E. Giegengack, public printer of the United States, also spoke.

Marines to Come Home to Capital For Thanksgiving

Washington's Fifth Marine Battalion will be home for Thanksgiving, it was learned last night.

The more than 400 officers and men of the unit, now undergoing a period of "shakedown" training at the Marine Base at Quantico, will be on liberty from 4 p. m. today until Friday morning.

Maj. William W. Stickney, the battalion's executive officer, said the organization's commanders had no intimation of when they will be assigned regular duty in the corps. Several weeks ago it was reported the battalion, now brigaded with a former reserve organization from Detroit, would be sent to Guantanamo, Cuba.

Freak Fire Puts Damper on Traffic

Rush-hour traffic was impeded on downtown Fourteenth Street yesterday by a freak fire.

Partitions of the second-floor kitchen in the Federal Bake Shop, 611 Fourteenth Street Northwest, began emitting smoke about 5 p. m., half an hour after the gas stove had been turned off.

Heat from the stove, transmitted by iron utensils to a metal rod in the partitions evidently caused the blaze.

MRS. ANNA BADEN AND MRS. JOHN RYAN

There were places of honor last night for the men in Blue, but they were not filled by those gallant soldiers.

For the first time in its history, the Ellen Spencer Mussey Tent, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, held its annual dinner for Grand Army of the Republic veterans without a veteran in attendance.

Only two survive in Washington, and John M. Kline, 98-year-old commander of the G. A. R. Department of the Potomac, and William F. Dorsey, 97, lone member of the department, have given up going out at night. Though both are still active, considering their ages, they now confine their gadding about to daylight hours.

But the spirit of the Grand Army was brought to the 75 diners at the Admiral Club, Seventeenth Street and Rhode Island Avenue Northwest, by a special guest of honor, the 99-year-old widow of a Union captain.

Mrs. Anna M. Baden whose husband, Capt. James T. Baden, commanded Grant's escort in the war, made a speech.

"Memory carries me back to my childhood days," she said in a clear voice that wavered when she spoke of things that meant so much to her.

She recalled the song "Tippecanoe" of Mexican War days. She remembered the end of the Civil War and "the greatest parade in history" when 250,000 returning soldiers marched up Pennsylvania Avenue to the tune of "Johnny Came Home Again, Hurrah, Hurrah."

She recalled the Spanish War. "I had the honor of placing the first wreath upon the Maine Monument and making a short speech during a driving snowstorm." And the World War, "which we all remember."

"And now," she said, "I am entering into the fifth war . . . We hope and trust and pray that America will never be involved in this war . . . I would tell you more but I cannot speak for a great length of time."

Mrs. Baden told no more, but she surprised everybody when, after introducing Mrs. Frances Wells as the singer of "I Cannot Sing the Old Songs," she joined Mrs. Wells in singing the number.

When Mrs. Baden came to Washington from Alexandria to open with her husband, one of the District's first hotels, the American House, they had to go back to Alexandria daily to do their shopping. They saw the city grow from a handful of buildings. And they were personally acquainted with most of the early days' public figures, including Lincoln, Grant and George Washington Parke Custis Gen. Washington's stepson.

Mrs. Baden remembers Lincoln' inauguration, which she witnessed. And she remembers having lemonade and wafers at Arlington and rowing across the Potomac with Custis, who played the violin in the boat.

"I cannot sing the old songs," the white-haired old lady told her audience, "for foolish tears would flow."

Another special guest at the dinner was Mrs. John T. Ryan, whose husband, a G. A. R. veteran, died only recently. She also said a few words.

3 Men Indicted For Attack in Union Dispute

Three men accused of saying it with chunks of pipe in a debate at a bricklayers' union meeting were indicted yesterday on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Accused were Thomas Elam, John Gleason and William Gleason, union members. Bench warrants were issued for their arrest.

Woodson W. Holst, also a union member, accused the three of beating him insensible when he refused to keep quiet in a debate of working conditions at a union meeting last July 24. Shortly after the incident action was dropped in the Police Court for lack of evidence.

Later, District Attorney Edward M. Curran assigned Detective Sergt. Joseph E. Shimon, his inquiry chief, to investigate the charges, which were pressed by Holst. After Shimon interviewed a dozen witnesses the case was presented directly to the grand jurors.

Exonerated by the grand jurors in their report to Justice F. Dickinson Letts, of the District Court, were Garrell Batson, 36, a painter and decorator, and Attorney Henry R. Berger, 25. Batson had been detained recently on a charge of assault, and Berger was accused of being an accessory to the assault.

The grand jury learned the men after both waived their rights to refuse to testify and voluntarily told their stories. Berger expressed his appreciation to District Attorney Curran for permitting him to tell his own story to the grand jury.

Justice Letts received a total of 27 indictments.

Police Fail To Get Sniper Confession

Convict Suspect Sticks to Denial; Effort to Find Link To Weapon Futile

An all-day grilling by homicide squad detectives failed to win a confession from a convict held as a suspect in the recent sniper slayings, police revealed last night.

A search for a .38 caliber pistol among the man's personal effects also proved futile.

Late yesterday Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives, repeated a previous statement that the suspect "looks good" and is the "hottest" suspect yet apprehended.

It was learned yesterday that Lieut. R. J. Barrett, Third Precinct, a former detective bureau investigator, has been assigned to work exclusively on the fatal shootings. Barrett, once chief of the pickup squad, was made a lieutenant last year.

The suspect, under 30, was arrested after police received information that he repeatedly declared he "would get even" with colored persons because of incidents in prison.

Parts of a pistol were found in the man's possession, but investigators said they were not connected with the murder gun.

Mildred Washington, 17-year-old colored girl, identified the suspect as the man who fatally shot her escort last month as they walked across the temporary K Street bridge. Three other fatal shootings are attributed to the so-called sniper.

$60 Reported Stolen From Postoffice Branch

A colored man who stole $60 from a postoffice branch in the Hillcrest Pharmacy, 2810 Alabama Avenue Southeast, was sought by police last night.

Harry S. Kaplan, manager of the drug store, told police the man entered the store to make a purchase. The clerk went into a rear room and the thief took the money from a desk drawer and fled. The theft was not discovered for nearly an hour, Kaplan said.

Filchock Again Sent to Emergency Hospital

Passing Star Will Miss Giant Game

Suffering From Side Hurt in Bear Game; Farkas Plays Sunday, Turk Edwards Retires

By Al Hailey
A Staff Correspondent

Already a hospital case once this season, Frank Filchock, the Redskins' second-period backfield forward passing artist, was taken to Emergency again yesterday—this time with a painfully inflamed left side that will keep him out of Sunday's game in New York against the Giants.

The 24-year-old former Indiana University halfback, whose toss to Dick Todd last Sunday beat the Chicago Bears, 7-3, may also miss the final game of the season here December 1 when the Skins entertain the Philadelphia Eagles.

To attempt to make up for the loss of Filchock, however, Coach Ray Flaherty announced last night that Andy Farkas will be put on the eligible list today and that Capt. Turk Edwards will retire for the remainder of the year.

Farkas to Play

Farkas will return to action in the Giants game for the first time since his knee operation before the opening of the season, Flaherty said, adding "that's a promise."

Filchock will be the only man missing from the squad of 33 in the New York game, and he is expected to be held out of the final game if the Redskins clinch the title this Sunday and earn their way to the National title playoff.

Topped only by his illustrious teammate, Sam Baugh, Filchock has maintained a high place in league passing despite the fact that he already has "done time" at Emergency.

Hurt Last Month

Filchock's flinging arm was injured late last month, and he had to spend several days in Emergency. In the Detroit Lions game, Frank's arm was heavily packed and his passing was severely taxed.

Although Filchock will be missed in the Giants game, the return of Farkas and two other players who have been out for the past few weeks will greatly strengthen the Redskins' chances of defeating the Giants and cinching the Eastern Division championship.

Max Krause, veteran blocking back who has missed the last two games, and Rookie End Sandy Sanford, who has been held out a month, will be back. Both were suffering knee injuries. Erny Pinckert, who hurt his knee in the Bears game, also will be able to play against the Giants.

Meanwhile, Flaherty called the squad out to work at Griffith Stadium yesterday after a day's layoff and at once began concentrating on his ground game.

With only Baugh, aided by Rookie Roy Zimmerman, to do the passing, the Redskins probably will do more running against New York than they have done so far this season against any other club

It's in the running game that the broad back of Edwards will be sorely missed. One of the league's greatest tackles, Edwards has seen little action this year since his leg

Al Davis Fined $2,500; License Revoked

Most Severe Penalty in N. Y. History

Repeated Fouling Of Zivic Costly To Gotham Fighter; His Purse Held Up

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 19.—The New York State Athletic Commission today revoked the license and inflicted a penalty of $2,500 on Al Davis, New York welterweight, who was disqualified for repeated fouling in his fight with Welterweight Champion Fritzie Zivic in the Garden last Friday.

No time limit was placed on when Davis' license might be restored, but Commissioner Bill Brown said, "You'll have to get another commission first."

Davis, however, can go to court to recove rthe $2,500 which the commission instructed Promoter Mike Jacobs to take out of the fighter's purse of $11,340, which had been held up pending action of the commission.

Money Held

"This money is held pending final action by the court," said Chairman John J. Phelan. If there is no court action the money will be turned over to the State.

Davis was disqualified in the second round when he kept punching low, despite the warnings of Referee Billy Cavanagh.

Davis, showing a certificate from his personal physician, told the commission the vision of his right eye was blurred as the result of a foul by Zivic in the first round. Davis appeared wearing dark glasses and was examined by Dr. William Walker, commission physician, who testified "there was no evidence of inflammation of the eye itself that could be attributed to injury."

Most Severe Penalty

Phelan said Davis told the commission that he didn't know what happened after the first round and that if he did foul repeatedly it was not intentional.

The penalty was the most severe ever imposed by the New York commission.

The commission was notified that the New Jersey and Pennsylvania commissions would concur in the action against Davis. Abe J. Greene, chairman of the New Jersey body, previously had written it would go along with the New York commission while Leon Rains, chairman of the Pennsylvania commission, said that Davis didn't have a license in his State and that he wouldn't get one.

Eagles Given Good Chance For Ice Title

Mackenzie Believes Present Team Better Than 1939 Runners-Up

Coach Redvers Mackenzie introduced the 15 members of his 1940 Washington Eagles ice hockey team to the members of the press and radio yesterday at a luncheon at the Stables.

Mackenzie declared he was certain that the local fans would like this new club, which appeared as strong or stronger than the 1939 Eagles, who finished second in the Eastern Amateur League despite a miserable start.

"We may not score as many goals as last year," Coach Mackenzie said, "but neither will our opponents. We are considerably bigger than in 1939 and much improved defensively.

Although Mackenzie would not go out on the limb and predict a championship this year, he gave the impression that he would not be surprised if Washington never relinquished the league lead it now holds by benefit of three consecutive victories.

The Eagles plan to alternate goalies as soon as Lester Colvin, a 20-year-old sophomore in the Eastern League, rounds into condition. Colvin will take turns at the net with Gordon Hemming, acquired from River Vale. Hemming won praise in both Boston and Baltimore for his fine work.

Before inaugurating their home schedule with the New York Rovers, the Eagles will travel for three games this week-end, meeting the Sea Gulls in Atlantic City Friday, the Skeeters in River Vale Saturday, and the Rovers in Madison Square Garden Sunday afternoon.

Famous Stallions MayHaveProvided Food for French

Paris, Nov. 14 (Delayed).—Mon Talisman and Clairvoyant, two of France's most famous stallions, listed as missing in action since June, are now thought to have been killed and eaten during the big exodus.

Horseflesh worth $100 a pound, writes the Petit Parisien, probably met the fate of the common truck breed, being sold, perhaps, at 10 cents a pound in one of France's numerous horseflesh butcheries

Mon Talisman and Clairvoyant both belonged to the Argentine millionnaire, Martinez de Hoz. The former won the French Derby in 1927 and the latter the Grand Prix de Paris in 1937.

Redskins Hold Leads in Most Departments

The Redskins have taken over the National Professional Football League almost lock, stock and barrel in all-around team play, a round-up of the situation by the league's service bureau disclosed yesterday.

Sammy Baugh, ruling the roost in both the forward passing and punting departments, needs only one more game to break two all-time passing records.

Dick Todd, the Redskins' only other top man, is pacing the scorers with 8 touchdowns and 48 points, only 3 touchdowns away from the record set last season by Andy Farkas with 11 scores.

But a hasty glance at the leaders in the various divisions of play reveals the names of Redskins in such large numbers you're likely to think you're looking at an Indian roster Here's the setup:

FORWARD PASSING: It's Baugh by 40 lengths, with 102 completions in 157 attempts for 1,306 yards and 11 touchdowns. Baugh needs but four more completions to equal the 106 record set last year by Cleveland's Parker Hall, and he needs 18 more yards to catch Philadelphia's Davey O'Brien, who gathered up

Novel Play-off Settles Scholastic Football Dispute

Florence, S. C., Nov. 19 (AP).—When Lake View and Cheraw High School football teams played each other to their third successive scoreless tie for the district championship last night, officials told them they had to decide it somehow or other.

So the contest reverted into the Montana system of settling such disputes—the ball is placed on the 50-yard line. Each team is given five tries, alternating each try with the other team, and after the tries are exhausted, the team in whose territory the ball rests loses the game.

So Cheraw won by carrying the ball to the Lake View 38.

Ens Replaces Wilson as Reds Coach

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Nov. 19.—Jewel Ens, manager of the Indianapolis club of the American Association, was named tonight by General Manager Warren C. Giles to succeed Jimmy Wilson as coach of the World Champion Cincinnati Reds.

Ens, contacted at his home in St. Louis, accepted quickly after Giles induced the Indianapolis club to release Ens from a managership contract signed for 1941

The man stepping into the vacancy left by Wilson, who signed yesterday as manager of the Chicago Cubs, was born on August 24, 1889, the same day on which Hank Gowdy, other Redleg coach, was born. He played ball for 15 years as a third baseman before becoming a major league coach.

In 1930 Ens was named manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and in 1933, when his friend, Donie Bush, went to the Reds as pilot, Ens left Pittsburgh to join Bush.

Pie Traynor brought Ens back to Pittsburgh several seasons later, where he remained until Traynor was released a year ago.

Ens, a warm personal friend of Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati club, went to Indianapolis in midseason last year.

Red Killifer to Manage Indianapolis Club

Indianapolis, Nov. 19 (AP).—Wade (Red) Killefer, former manager of the Indianapolis Indians, was appointed tonight to direct the local American Association club during the 1941 season.

Killefer will succeed Jewel Ens, who took charge of the Tribe midway in last season when Wes Griffin resigned. Ens is returning to the Cincinnati Reds to take over the coaching assignment of Jimmy Wilson, appointed manager of the Chicago Cubs.

Random (and I mean random) thoughts about football:

I'd like to see that Georgetown team with a Charley O'Rourke in its backfield and would bet on 'em to beat Minnesota, Stanford, Michigan, Tennessee or any other team rated in the first ten. Lack of deception killed Georgetown in the Boston College game. When Koshlap was taking the ball for Georgetown, B. C. knew it was a pass; when Kopcik was back, they knew it was to be a kick; McFadden is strictly a blocker, and Castiglia strictly a line hitter, O'Rourke in the Georgetown backfield, with his kicking, running and passing proclivities, would panic the opposition, particularly behind that superb Georgetown line.

POVICH

The "fifth down" on which Cornell scored against Dartmouth last week-end is the more amazing because it happened under the eyes of Red Friesell, one of the better referees in both college and pro football ranks. Redskin fans who have seen Friesell officiate at Griffith Stadium label him as the finest referee to come within their notice. He runs the game with an utter lack of hesitation and with complete authority. His decisive actions inspire confidence in both teams and the spectators. His admission of his error in permitting Dartmouth five downs in the Cornell game was the act of a big man, although he stands but 5 feet 6 inches. Under the rules, no referee can reverse a decision after the game although he might acknowledge the error. Only with Cornell's permission could Dartmouth claim the game on Friesell's error, and when the evidence was all in, it was to Cornell's credit that it forfeited what appeared to be a victory. The concession was greater on Cornell's part because it ruined an unbeaten, untied record for the Ithacans.

Only because great football minds deem it fine strategy can we countenance the pro teams' habit of refusing to send a safety man down field on third down punts when it is seemingly obvious that the team with the ball will punt. Unlike the collegians, the pros send no safety man down field on third down when a kick appears imminent. They are willing to sacrifice yardage for ultimate possession of the ball on the theory that a team in possession of the ball always has a chance to score. They want one more defender in the secondary on a possible pass play and inasmuch as the professional coaches appeared unanimously agreed that that is the better strategy, who are we to differ?

At this stage of the season we are a bit conscience-stricken by the fact that earlier in the year we suggested that Dick Todd was not one of the better football players in the professional league. We are happy to retract that line, because Todd is proving each week-end that he is, indeed, one of the great backs in the league. We doubt if anybody but Todd could have scored the Redskin touchdown that beat the Bears and we doubt if anybody but Todd could have hauled down George McAfee on the 1-yard line in the last minute to save the Bears' game for the Redskins.

The fellow has speed, deception and a positive hunger for touchdowns as his league leadership in that last respect attests. And he is one of the few surviving old-fashioned tacklers who can bring a ball carrier down by his heels, although that is Todd's salvation because he isn't big enough to stop a ball carrier with a high tackle. He must bring them down the hard way which, happily, he is able to do. But it's the toughest kind of tackle to make.

Our selections for the National Professional League all-star team went in this week and there were two Redskins in th backfield. We named the incomparable Sammy Baugh and Mr. Todd. Our quarterback was Mr. Whizzer White, of the Detroit Lions, and our fullback was Ace Parker, of the Brooklyns. We think they would constitute the greatest backfield for all-around performance that was ever slung together, even on a mythical team.

Georgetown and George Washington will tangle on Saturday afternoon and Georgetown will certainly win, but we wouldn't guess on the margin of victory. Because this is intracity strife and in that situation the points are always incalculable. We remember when a despised Carnegie Tech team rose up to slap down a great Pitt team for the championship of Pittsburgh, and up in Boston week before last the great Boston College outfit could beat the supposedly week Boston U. team only 21-0. Home town rivalry fires up the under dog, most certainly.

Powerful forces in New York are at work to obtain the Sugar Bowl bid for Fordham, but Boston College deserves the invitation by all odds. The appeal for Fordham is based on greater publicity that a New York team would command, but Boston College has a powerful "in" with New Orleans. Folks down that way want to see more of the team that licked Tulane 27 to 7, which Boston College did. New Orleans, which always disparages Tennessee teams, wants to see the Yankee team from Boston put unbeaten Tennessee in its place in the Sugar Bowl.

Spike Briggs, the son of the automobile body magnate who owns the Detroit ball club, has been persuading fine football players to go to Georgetown for the past seven years, but Coach Jack Hagerty would be obliged if Alumnus Briggs would scout scholars as well as football players. Briggs' boys have been flunking out with discouraging regularity in the study halls after establishing the fact that they could play football.

Texas A. & M. Rated Top College Eleven

By Paul B. Williamson,
Noted Football Forecaster

Gaining momentum with each game, Texas A. & M. crushed Rice, 25-0, Saturday to fortify its position at the top of the Williamson Ratings. Stanford, with a clean-cut 28-14 victory over Oregon State, retained the runner-up spot, but Tennessee was ousted from third place by Minnesota. Although both teams were victorious, the Gophers' 33-6 rout of Purdue was deemed more impressive than the Vols' 41-14 licking of Virginia.

Michigan, S. M. U. and Nebraska remained among the first ten, and were joined in that select group by a pair of newcomers, Boston College and Georgetown. Victims of stunning upsets, Cornell and Duke dropped from the leading ten.

This week we can only give the Nation's 99 top teams, so that Thanksgiving Day predictions can be turned out on time.

Last week's victories of the first eight leaders were forecast by the system. Other good predictions were California over Oregon, Hardin-Simmons over Catholic University, Columbia tying Navy, Denver over Oregon State, George Washington over Kansas, Alabama over Georgia Tech, Ohio State over Illinois, Penn State over N. Y. U., Nebraska over Pitt, Princeton over Yale, Texas over Texas Christian, Texas Tech over Wake Forest—a honey; Tulane over Georgia, Utah over State, Drake over Washington of St. Louis, Marshall over Xavier of Cincinnati, and Arizona over Loyola.

Missed in Minors

The system's forecasting was far off in the minor circles. Witness the following: Williams over Amherst, Toledo over Butler, Grinnell over Coe, Ripon over Detroit Tech, Muhlenberg over Dickinson, Idaho over Nevada—first Idaho victory—Howard over Mercer, Knox over Monmouth, Fort Hays Teachers over Pittsburgh Teachers, Presbyterian over Wofford, and Denton over Commerce.

Rain, snow and ice leveled many teams to even terms last week-end, resulting in several disastrous upsets, including Dartmouth's victory over Cornell, and Sewanee's triumph over Washington and Lee for its first major success in many years.

Iowa, for the third straight year, upset Notre Dame and ended Irish hopes for a perfect season.

Another prize was West Virginia's 9-7 victory over Kentucky. Kentucky routed George Washington, 24-0, and George Washington routed West Virginia, 19-0.

Colonials Work on Passing Attack for G. U. Game Saturday

G. W.'s Lack Of Passer Stands Out

Reinhart Working Frantically to Shape Up Aerial Power; Record Unimpressive

By Jack Munhall

George Washington's current lack of a good forward passer has never been emphasized so strongly as this week when the Colonials are drilling overtime in their efforts to produce an attack that will upset Georgetown at Griffith Stadium Saturday.

Georgetown, for all its capabilities, does not possess a first-class passing defense. That was proved beyond doubt Saturday when Charley O'Rourke threw the Hoyas into a panic in the first half and finally tossed the Eagles to victory.

But scant comfort is this knowledge to a George Washington eleven with one of the poorest aerial attacks of any major team in the East. Statistically speaking, the Colonials haven't even a good passer, let alone one of the O'Rourke caliber, which would be essential to their offensive plans for the Georgetown game.

Aerial Barrage Seen

For records show that G. W. has completed only 16 of 64 passes in its eight games to date, for an unusually bad average of .250. What is worse, the passes they have been able to complete have not been the payoff kind, but rather short tosses into the flat for meager gains. This is borne out by the figure for their total gain on passing, which is 116 yards.

So it is, that in spite of all the talk that George Washington will turn loose a devastating aerial offensive against the Hoyas, the Colonials, after all, probably will continue to rely on their fairly strong running attack. How much success G. W. will have running the ball against the huge and fast-chanring Hilltop line is unknown, but it is known that no team in three years, Boston College not excepted, has made any headway in this respect.

Although Saturday's attraction, the second annual meeting in modern years between Hoyas and Colonials, undoubtedly will be a hard-fought battle there certainly can be but one result. And it is conceivable that Georgetown will win by the big margin it desires to boost its hopes for a major bowl invitation.

Eighteen Seniors in Finale

Still, the season's largest crowd can be expected for the game, if for no other reason than to take a final look at what is Georgetown's greatest team in history.

Eighteen seniors who have contributed largely to Georgetown's fine three-year record of 22 victories, 1 loss and 1 tie, will close out their college careers against George Washington. Among them are some who rank with the finest players ever to don the Blue and Gray colors. There is Augie Lio, the 225-pound guard, who probably will make Grantland Rice's All-American team; Al Matuza, the stellar center; Tackles Joe Daniels and Earl Fullilove, and the crack first string backfield of Joe McFadden, Jules Koshlap, Lou Ghecas and Jim Castiglia.

The Colonials drilled on their offense until after dark yesterday, mixing straight line plunging with trick sweeps and forward pass plays. Fullback Walter Fedora, leading scorer and ground gainer of the team, was in the tailback slot most of the time. Fedora has picked up 399 yards on 96 rushes to date.

Ostinato Lost

There was no rough work, but the Colonials rehearsed pass plays to the most minute detail, with blocking pads serving as Hoyas. Dan Seibert, 18-year-old sophomore center, looked good on defense, intercepting four passes. Mike Monchlovich, who was first string center until injured in the Bucknell game, participated in the workout but it is not known if he'll start against Georgetown.

Though Colonial scouts say the Hoyas' real strength lies in their line, G. W. Coach Reinhart also is having trouble mapping a defense for Lou Ghecas and Jack Doolan, the Hilltop speed merchants, and Jim Castiglia, the fullback who at times bucks like Bill Osmanski.

Scott Gudmunson, a sophomore halfback who was impressive against Kansas Saturday, may see considerable action against Georgetown, principally because he is about as good a passer as the Colonials have.

Only item of interest from the Georgetown camp yesterday was confirmation of early fears that Mark Ostinate, senior first-string guard, probably won't play Saturday because of a leg injury received in the Boston College game. He will be replaced in the line-up by his alternate, Eddie McMahan.

Colored Grid Title At Stake Sunday

The championship of the Washington Gridiron Conference, local colored sandlot footbal organization, will be settled Sunday at 2 p. m. at Griffith Stadium when the Lions, winner of the northern division title, take on the Willow Tree Athletic Club, southern division tilist.

Proceeds from the game will be used to purchase instruments for the Northwest Symphony Orchestra, composed of students from Banneker, Bruce and Monroe Schools.

Virginia's Gridiron Thespians Hold 'Rehearsal' of N. C. Game

Coaches, Freshmen Cast as Tarheel Players In Cavalier Playlet; 'Carolina' Takes Beating

By the Associated Press

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 19.—The University of Virginia, borrowing a leaf from the University of Richmond strategy book, cast four members of the coaching staff as North Carolina backfield men today and put on a hopeful rehearsal of what may happen in the Tarheel-Cavalier game here Saturday.

More specifically, Virginia went beyond the leaf-borrowing stage, appropriated the whole volume and added a sequel of its own. Richmond only had a freshman coach out on the practice field to impersonate Carolina's great back, Jim Lalanne, and managed to come out on the upside of a 14-13 score.

But in the cast of characters in the Virginia playlet today was:

Cast Introduced

Freshman Coach Dick Fletcher as Carolina's Sid Sadoff in the line charges that Sid is expected to try.

Line Coach Ralph Heikkinen, who was great shakes at Michigan in 1938, as Tarheel Harry Dunkle, the blocking back.

Walter Smith, freshman assistant, as Carolina's fourth man in the backfield, Don Baker.

Open to Debate

The quality of the performance, of course, remained open to debate after the drill. However, the Cavalier regulars said it was beautiful to behold the way the Virginia line smacked through the freshmen actors and brought down Guepe-Lalanne, most of whose long runs were of the lateral variety, stopped Fletcher-Sadoff before he could build up any momentum and turned aside the blockers at will.

Head Coach Frank Murray, who produced the spectacle, stood silently and watched with End Coach Bunny Corcoran. Neither one even made reference to the parallel situation in which the old Confederate was reported to have said before the War Between the States:

"We can lick those Yankees with cornstalks."

Historical legend, adds of course, that the same old Confederate remarked after the war:

"Yep, I still think so. Trouble was, they wouldn't fight us with cornstalks."

W.-M. Athletic Director Resigns

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 19 (AP).—Tommy Scott, director of athletics and coach at the College of William and Mary, Norfolk division, since opening of the division in 1930, resigned today. He is considering several business opportunities.

Dr. W. T. Hodges, dean, named Bill Rosenfeld, present bursar, as graduate manager of athletics to supervise the athletic program, but does not plan to act immediately on a successor to Scott. He said the institution regretted "very much" Scott's decision to leave, and added that he valued Scott's "services very highly."

D. C. Loses Tennis Star as Jacob Enlists in Army

Army yesterday when he left for Langley Field, Va., to join the Army Air Corps. Son of Harvey Jacob, of 2812 Thirty-sixth Place Northwest, Morgan comes from a family of District tennis stars, the youngest of whom, Betty, has won several local tournaments.

Navy Promotes 'B' Squad Star To the Varsity

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 19.—Maj. Emery E. (Swede) Larson, Navy's head football mentor, today announced the promotion of Jimmy Donaldson from the junior varsity or "B" squad, to the varsity group, as the regulars continued preparations for their all important game with Army in Philadelphia November 30.

Donaldson who hails from Bessemer, Ala., and weighs 180 pounds, played a whale of a game at center for the shock troops. The juniors have completed their season and Larson is grooming Donaldson for a blocking back, as an understudy for Bill Chip, who, with Bill Busik, triple threat backfield man, were slightly injured in the game against Columbia on Saturday. Donaldson performed well in today's two hour practice session, and Larson feels he will make a fine replacement.

Donaldson's selection indicates that Larson preferred not to disturb the make-up of the alternate varsity eleven by removing Johnny Harrell from the blocking back berth. Harrell who was the national intercollegiate heavyweight wrestling champion at Oklahoma A. and M. two years ago, packs 208 pounds and is one of the most powerful members of the varsity squad.

Cards Favored Over Friars Saturday

First Edge in 3 Weeks Given C. U.; Sachon Declared Out

For the first time in three weeks, Catholic University's football team will be the favorite Saturday, when it closes its season with Providence College at Brookland Stadium.

A battle of Notre Dame systems of play will be the order when Coaches Dutch Bergman of Catholic University and Huge Devore of Providence, both former Irish gridmen, match strategy.

Devore, winding up his third season with the Fighting Friars, was graduated from Notre Dame in 1934, when he captained and quarterbacked a successful Irish eleven. Well versed in the Notre Dame style of play, Devore, upon graduation, became line coach at Fordham and played a big role in the development of the famous "Seven Blocks of Granite."

At Providence Devore has enjoyed surprising success, considering the twin handicaps of poor material and injuries to key players. Last season, with his team riddled by injuries, Devore led the Friars to three victories in five games.

Coach Bergman took his C. U. team outdoors yesterday for a two-hour workout following Monday's day of rest. With "Pistol Pete" Sachon expected to miss this game, Bergman has handed out new plays, most of which will be on the running variety. Huck Hughes will start in place of Dachon if the Cards' great quarterback is unable to play.

Meantime, Catholic U. has not been encouraged by reports that Providence is as air-minded as Hardin-Simmons, which gave the Cards considerable trouble last week with a widespread passing game. The Friars are said to have a crack forward passing combination in Halfback Ray Kawalski and End Joe Sullivan. Against St. Anselm Sunday the pair threw caution to the winds and completed nearly 50 per cent of their tosses.

If the Cards win Saturday they will have completed a surprisingly good season with four victories, three losses and one tie.

Blackhawks Sell Player

Chicago, Nov. 19 (AP).—President William J. Tobin of the Chicago Blackhawks announced today the outright sale of Defenseman Jack Portland to the Montreal Canadiens. The deal was a straight cash transaction, with no players involved, Tobin said.

Jenkins-Lello Fight May Be a Strictly Private One

Public Unaware of Grude Battle Scheduled Friday in Madison Square Garden Ring

By the United Press

New York, Nov. 19.—The lightweight title probably will change hands Friday night when Champion Lew Jenkins and Pete Lello tangle at Madison Square Garden. Moreover, it's one of those rarely genuine "grudge fights." Yet, the bout threatens to be held in virtual privacy.

In the good old days a lightweight championship fight was one of the year's outstanding sports events, because the lightweights generally have been ranked right next to the heavies as the No. 2 money division.

Despite the fabulous Mohawk lode, who ever heard of Goldfield, Nev., or the great Tex Rickard until Joe Gans and Battling Nelson tangled there. Indeed, the lightweights brought the limelight to other cities, like Denver, Colo.; Colma, Calif.; Buffalo, N. Y., etc.

But in this scrambled period of important baseball changes, reversed football scores, fouling out in pugilism's welterweight division, and proclaimed Thanksgiving turkey, the Jenkins-Lello lightweight title brawl has crept up on the public with virtually no fanfare nor publicity.

This is singularly unfortunate, both for Promoter Mike Jacobs and the fans—to say nothing of the fighters.

Challenger Lello, of Gary, Ind., dislikes Champion Jenkins so much that he has offered to fight him "for nothing" in a gymnasium. Hence, Lello, at least will not be disappointed with Friday night's gate. Lello is sore at Jenkins because he knocked out Texas Lew in their one and only meeting at Chicago in May, 1939, but Jenkins never would give him credit for the kayo. Instead, according to Gary Pete, Jenkins told everyone in New York that the Chicago officials had ganged up on him and stopped the fight in the ninth round because he was bleeding a bit from an old eye gash.

Jackets Make Stout Goal-Line Stand but Haack Intercepts Late Pass, Scores

Special Dispatch to The Post

Front Royal, Va., Nov. 19.—Woodrow Wilson administered a 19-0 defeat to Randolph-Macon Academy here this afternoon in the Yellow Jackets' final game of the season.

Receiving the opening kickoff, the Yellow Jackets punted on fourth down to the visitors' 40-yard line. Saine, Voigt and Hickson, in a varying attack around the end and through the line, reached the 8-yard line. Hickson went over the goal stripe for the first touchdown after seven minutes of play. A pass for a kick from placement was fumbled. Neither team threatened during the remainder of the half.

Late in the third period, Hickson and Voigt, starting in midfield, drove through to the 8-yard line and Voigt broke through to score in the final quarter. The kick from placement was wide.

In the middle of the final period the Yellow Jackets made a dramatic stand on their 1-yard line, Stirling, Rochelle, Roulette and Falck stopping a repeated savage attack by Wilson. Just before the game ended, Haack intercepted a Yellow Jacket pass and dashed over the line for a third touchdown. An extra point was made by a kick from placement.

Zahn to Play With Heurich Pro Courtmen

Former Colonial Star To Return After Idling Year With an Injury

Prospects of the Washington Brewers for the American Basketball League season were boosted skyward yesterday when Arthur (Otts) Zahn, former Eastern High and G. W. University forward, put his name on a contract.

Zahn was a member of the original Brewers, playing in 1937 and 1938, but a severe back injury forced him to stay out of action last year. He will continue his job as freshman cage coach at George Washington, as it will not interfere with play in the professional league.

Signing of the deadly shooter and expert floorman was received with joy at Brewer headquarters. Chris Heurich, jr., sponsor of the club, said "Zahn will furnish just the spark we need to make our season a roaring success. He's a real team player."

Meanwhile the Brewers went through a stiff drill with Colonial cage candidates last night, with Nat Frankel, newcomer from the Brooklyn Jewels, looking particularly good. Aim of the session was to round players into shape for the local opening, set at Riverside Stadium on December 1. The Baltimore Clippers will furnish opposition.

Manager Abe Rosenfeld announced that a gala program was being arranged for the opening, outdoing any previous start of the league here.

A special exhibition will be given Friday night at Southeast Boys Club gym, the Brewers meeting an all-star team of local scholastic players at 8:30 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend without charge.

Date Set for National Collegiate Court Play

Kansas City, Nov. 19 (AP).—The 1940 National Collegiate Basketball champion will be determined in Kansas City March 29.

Gene Zachman, manager of the Kansas City Auditorium, and Dr. C. Allen, University of Kansas basketball coach and N. C. A. A. tournament manager, today signed contracts for that date. Indiana University won in 1939.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Nov. 19.—The crowd had drifted out of George Bernard Shor's steak house, but there was still a lot of noise. Al Schact was talking. An hour or two earlier somebody had wondered out loud whether Bobby Feller would be picked up by the draft, and that launched Aloysius on a discourse on his own war record. That record may go down in military annals along with the saga of Lawrence of Arabia. For Aloysius of the Bronx, baseball's premiere clown, did the following:

CONSIDINE

1. Got in the Army even although he was deaf.
2. Broke a toe trying to tackle Frankie Frisch.
3. Came down with a bad case of tennis elbow.
4. Nearly shot a mule.

"I got turned down the first couple of places I tried to enlist in," Schacht shouted, deflating a souffle that Shor was whipping in the kitchen. "Then I went out to Fort Slocum, for a final inspection, and a guy who had seen me pitch got aholt of me and said, 'Boy do we need you on our Second Company team.' I told him I was deaf as a cigar store Indian, but he said he'd fix it up. So I pitched that afternoon—beat Ray Fischer, 2-1—and the next day they got me in a room and a guy yelled 'SIXTY-TWO' loud enough to blow out a window.

"'Did you hear that?' the guy then asked me. 'Sure,' I said—and, boffo, I'm in the Army. Funny thing, though, after the war was over I couldn't get out. They examined me, some other fellow did, and he said I was deaf. He thought I got deaf in the Army and they wanted to send me to all kinds of hospitals. Took me until April of 1919 to get out."

"The officer in command of our company was a great baseball fan, and so was a friend of his, another officer, from another company. Well, they got in an argument one day and they decided to pitch for their teams. I moved out of the box and played second. Well, you never saw such hitting like that! We won 21-19 because I called nearly every pitch our officer made for the last three innings. He had a dinky slow curve and a slow ball, but he insisted on throwing the so-called fast ball all the time. They were slaughtering it. Finally I went to the box and told him to throw the slow curve to George Twombley, the old Braves outfielder. Twombley popped up with the bases filled and I came in and said to my officers, I said, 'That was the greatest exhibition of guts I've ever seen, sir.' I got a couple other guys and we carried him off the field—he couldn't walk any more—and the next day he makes me a corporal."

Schacht ate at the officers' mess during the baseball season, even though he was a private through most of the year. But when the season was over he was demoted back to the mush and beans league. So he went out for football, hoodwinked the coach into thinking he could play, and was reveling in his fine food when the camp team scheduled Fordham. He had never played football in his life. They put Schacht on the first team. On the opening kickoff, Frankie Frisch received the ball and ran through the entire camp team. Schacht was the last man. He made a dive for Frankie, let out a yell of pain, and

Hyattsville Girls Start Pin Program

200 Fair Bowlers Turn Out for 1st Intramural Action

More than 200 girls, comprising some 40 teams, turned out yesterday and Monday, as Hyattsville High School girl students invaded the Hyattsville Recreation Center en masse to begin the school's first intramural bowling program. A round robin schedule has been planned which will last through February.

Because of the large number of participants it has been planned to run off each week's competition in three days, instead of two, in the future. The Junior and Senior League will bowl Mondays, Sophomores, Tuesday, and Freshman, Wednesdays. The entire program is under the sponsorship of the Physical Education Department and is actively directed by Coach Agnes Turner.

The team with the highest average at the end of the season will be declared champion of its league. The three league leaders will then have a playoff. For the past several weeks physical education classes have been practicing at the alleys, which are located near the school, in the regular class periods. It is hoped that at a later time an all-high team can be chosen to represent the school against other high schools in exhibition matches.

Each team is managed by an intramural manager of the homeroom, who is selected directly by the students. Coach Turner announced that when the intramural setup gets well under way she hopes to secure outstanding professional bowlers, both men and women, to put on exhibition matches for the girls.

Brilliant Young Mare

On any list of brilliant young broodmares, Risk would have to be placed near the top. This daughter of Sir Gallahad III, though only 11 years old already has produced the stakes winners Danger Point, Sky Larking and Little Risk. She is owned by Arthur B. Hancock, leading breeder of 1939.

Flower Five Bowler Sets Season Mark

Anita Franklin Rolls Set of 385 To Pace Team Victory

Anita Franklin, Shaffer Flowers, won the biggest bouquet last night in the Maryland-District of Columbia Ladies meet at Silver Spring, setting a new season record for high set with a 385 and leading her team to highs of 554 and 1,623. Bronson Quaites, formerly president of the National Duckpin Congress, took high game for her Beeques quintet with a nice 145. The Shaffer, Bergmann Laundry, Sandford, Inc., and Bee Bee's teams won all three games from opponents.

ARCADIA

The Lutheran Men's and Women's leagues saw Ethel Keller, Grace, take highs for the ladies with 122—332 and Mack McGrory, Atonement No. 1, rolling high game of 138 for the men as Harry Crow, Reformation, won set honors with 361. In the men's loop Atonement No. 2 took team game with 582 with Takoma rolling 1,650 for set. St. Matthew's had 493 for high game in the women's league but Trinity No. 1 took the high set with 1,409.

CONVENTION HALL

PETWORTH

Federal Power Commission action saw Fanny Lee, Defense, and Kay Warren, Hoodlums, taking highs for the ladies with 112 for game and 294 for set, respectively. Coffman, Hook's Crooks, was the best man for the night, rolling highs of 132-310.

BROOKLAND

John Eckstine, Mount Vernon, rolled 155 for high game in the Methodist Church loop to come within one pin of the season record while R. Jarman, Douglas, had a nice high set of 380. The Douglas quintet went crazy on the maple-ways and set two new season records for team game and set, getting pinfalls of 628 and 1,776, respectively.

CLARENDON

In the Buckingham Athletic Association's rolling Sokol, Antelopes, loped off with individual prizes with a 129 game and 354 set. The Scavengers scraped up enough pins, 557 in all, to take team game, while the Panthers stalked the other quintets and pounced on the set with a high count of 1,594, and took all three games from opponents while doing so.

NEW RECREATION

The men and women of the two Elks leagues resumed play, and in the women's section it was Betty Fuschini, Eagles, who starred with highs of 124-298 and sparked her quintet to team set of 1,270 as the Orioles won team game with 468.

Dodgers Sell Presnell To Cards for $15,000

Deal for 33-Year-Old Righthander Expected to Be Forerunner of More Major Transactions With St. Louis

By George Kirksey
United Press Sports Writer.

New York, Nov. 19.—The Brooklyn Dodgers today sold Pitcher Forrest (Tot) Pressnell to the St. Louis Cardinals for an estimated $15,000. The deal in itself wasn't highly important but is likely to be the forerunner of at least two other transactions of major consequences.

It appears that Pressnell, a 33-year-old right-hander, will pass on from the Cardinals to some other club, probably the Pittsburgh Pirates who made overtures for him before the Dodgers sold him to St. Louis. After the Cards dispose of Pressnell, then the way will be paved for a St. Louis-Brooklyn trade which is likely to bring Catcher Mickey Owen to the Dodgers.

Pirates Want Him

The Dodgers were able to give up Pressnell because they are overloaded with pitchers of his type. Manager Leo Durocher is counting on Kirby Higbe, Whit Wyatt, Hugh Casey, Luke Hamlin (if he's not traded) and Lee Grissom forming the Dodgers' "big five." That leaves Freddy Fitzsimmons, who, like Pressnell is a knuckle-ball pitcher; Bill Swift, drafted from St. Paul; Tex Carleton, and Curt Davis for relief duty, more than an adequate assortment.

Pressnell, who came up from Milwaukee, has put in nearly three seasons with the Dodgers. He won 11 games and lost 14 in 1938, won 9 and lost 7 in 1939, and won 6 and lost 5 until he was optioned to Louisville last August in a deal for Wesley Flowers. With Louisville Pressnell won 6 games and lost 4.

Pittsburgh, short on pitchers, has been trying desperately to strengthen its staff. The Pirates bid unsuccessfully for Kirby Higbe, failing to land him because the Dodgers were willing to go as high as $100,000 cash for the Phillies' young fire baller. Now the Pirates are looking elsewhere for mound aid and Pressnell is one of the men they want.

The Dodgers aren't going to retire from the trading mart because of their acquisition of Higbe. Shortly after making that deal they tried unsuccessfully to wangle Ernest White, southpaw pitcher who was with Columbus last season, away from the Cardinals. They also were interested in Harry Walker, the Cards' rookie outfielder who's coming up from Columbus with a $100,000 price tag on him, but couldn't get to first base. Sam Breadon informed Larry MacPhail that he expected Walker, who's a brother of the Dodgers' Dixie Walker, to be the cards' leftfielder.

The next deal the Dodgers are likely to put over is for Owen, the Cards' 25-year-old catcher who was tabbed "another Mickey Cochrane" by Branch Rickey when he came up from Columbus three years ago. Other clubs, including the Reds and Cubs, are said to be after Owen but the Dodgers are believed to have the inside track as a result of the Pressnell transaction.

Army, Navy Soccer Teams Vie Tomorrow

Bill Guckeyson to Be In Soldiers' Line-up For Game at Point

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 19.—Navy's soccer squad, 18 strong, will leave tomorrow afternoon for West Point, N. Y., to meet the rival Army Cadets Thanksgiving Day.

Coach Tom Taylor's Middies having won four of seven games. Their only reverses were at the hands of Gettysburg College and Penn State College. The Bullets and Nittany Lions have been the nemesis of the tars in recent years, and both of them came through 2-1 victories in games played here.

Little is known here of the strength of the Army booters, but in the line-up of the Cadets will be Bill Guckeyson, gridiron star and former all-around athlete at University of Maryland, who was prevented from playing football at the Point by reason of eligibility rules.

Tech Regaining Old Football Fame Under Wondrack

Championship Game Tomorrow Afternoon May Give Tech First Crown Since 1936

Its stellar guards and tackles and Jackie Walsh had a lot to do with Tech's triumph in the east section of the interhigh series, earning a shot at Western tomorrow in the championship game at Central Stadium, but most of the credit goes to the young coach of the Manual Trainers.

In his first year at the head of the Tech football forces, Artie Wondrack, former Maryland U. stalwart, has surprised everyone, including himself. His team is in a position to take its first title since 1936. And it appears ready to regain the dominance of local grid circles it enjoyed in the past under Coaches "Hap" Hardell and Clarence Hecox.

If ever a football coach was popular with his charges, that man is Wondrack. His popularity sprouted when he was helping "Rusty" Thompson as line coach and it's grown like a weed since he took over completely.

The secret of Wondrack's success, other than the aforementioned tackles and guards, is probably the fact that he gets such a kick out of his teaching. Between his instructions in downfield blocking and pass defense, Artie tosses in a lot of "kidding" which lessens the seriousness of the game. * Nobody has to play any harder than he wants, but somehow everybody likes to play as hard as he can.

Artie is the "screamer" type of coach. His high-pitched voice can be heard all over the field when he thinks his club is getting a bad deal, or when one of his youngsters makes a misplay.

On the opposite bench in tomorrow's most important game of the 1940 interhigh series will be Coach Dan Ahern, Western mentor who is as unlike Wondrack as possible. Well liked by his boys, Ahern still retains an aloofness that makes the Raider bench a morgue in comparison to Tech's. Ahern's joy at coaching has long subsided with years of seeing Western football teams in action.

Victory Descends on Dartmouth

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

The game they thought they lost on Saturday was celebrated as a victory by Dartmouth students on Monday after moving pictures showed Cornell's "touchdown" to be illegal. Cornell conceded the game to Dartmouth, 3-0. The students are seen massed in front of the campus home of College President Ernest Martin Hopkins

Bill Ackerman . . . on Fishing

The first white marlin of the southern Florida season was caught more than a month ago. The first blue marlin, weighing 346 pounds, was taken directly off Miami Beach this week by a Pennsylvania angler on Capt. Comley Wilson's Gypsy Queen, and on 24-thread line.

ACKERMAN

Sailfish, according to Tommy Aitken, are thicker than fleas on a dog, and early season anglers are experiencing exceptional offshore fishing.

The Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia has always enjoyed better fishing, as well as earlier and later fishing—sometimes by several weeks, than that of the western shore. Just why, right now, is beside the point, for more important is the fact that with another summer the Eastern Shore will be more within the reach of anglers from the standpoint of expense.

The Maryland Roads Commission has at last reached an agreeable figure with the Annapolis Ferry Co., and when the deal is completed the traveling public can expect lower rates. We believe far greater numbers of anglers will fish the Eastern Shore with lowered rates.

In excess of 1,950,000 rainbow trout eggs have been collected at the Wytheville station of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service this fall, and are being shipped to other stations for hatching.

Fall distribution of trout in Virginia is expected to start at an early date. With the season's output at the Newcastle Station the best it has been at nay time since it has been under Federal supervision, we note that 51,000 rainbow trout and 55,000 brookies have been distributed so far this year.

A louvar is a species of pompano attaining a size of several hundred pounds. Its striking rose and silver colors are as beautiful as its shape is fantastic. There have been but two of these fish caught in the west Atlantic—one this summer by three anglers fishing in the surf at Easthampton, Long Island. It was not, however, by aid of hook and line. They saw it struggling in the break and were only able to drag it ashore because it had been wounded—probably by the wheel of a boat.

The catch was outstanding as well as interesting, but only from a scientific viewpoint. Certainly not from the angle of being entered in the George Ruppert Fishing Contest as an outstanding fishing achievement.

A real sportsman and an enthusiastic worker in marine angling activities in southern Florida waters, Ellison Boggs, has gone on to fish in celestial waters.

That he loved his worldly fishing there is little doubt, for his last request was that Capt. Lloyd McNeill should scatter his ashes along the edge of the Gulf Stream from the cruiser Miamian, from which he had fished for many years.

Terps Scent Upset Victory Over Rutgers

Teams Play Rubber Game of Series at Baltimore Tomorrow

Rutgers, outweighing Maryland 33 pounds to a man in the backfield and 4 pounds to a man in the line, will be a decided favorite in their Thanksgiving Day game at Municipal Stadium, but the Terrapins believe they're due for an upset.

Out at College Park the players are talking confidently of closing their season with two straight victories, over Rutgers tomorrow and Washington and Lee at College Park Saturday.

Biggest reason for Maryland's optimistic outlook on the Rutgers game is its clicking atatck, which outgained V. M. I., 300 yards to 200 yards, Saturday despite the Terps' 20-0 licking. Also precedent heavily favors Maryland, since it has not lost a game in Municipal Stadium since 1936, having walked off with six straight decisions.

This will be the fifth and rubber game of the Maryland-Rutgers series, each having won two and scored a total of 31 points.

The Terps reveled in the snappy weather yesterday as they drilled on offense and defense, giving particular attention to handling the ball and to scoring strategy.

Jessel Heads Group to Purchase Brooklyn Dodgers

New York, Nov. 19.—Jerome Golenbock, New York attorney, said today he was representing a syndicate headed by George Jessel in negotiating for the purchase of the Brooklyn baseball club.

Golenbock said Alexander Eisemann, a broker, and George M. Cohan were others in the syndicate, and that Lester Amster, drug magnate, also may participate.

He said his preliminary negotiations had been conducted with George Barnewall, an officer of the Brooklyn club representing the Brooklyn Trust Co., which holds 50 per cent of the stock in trust. Barnewall said he new nothing of any negotiations.

Golenbock said the assessed value of the club's property in Brooklyn alone is approximately $1,470,000. The deal, if consummated, also would include the Brooklyn farm properties.

Michigan Stages Last Scrimmage

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 19 (AP).—With Capt. Forest Evashevski and All-America Tom Harmon absent, Michigan's Wolverines engaged in their last scrimmage today before meeting Ohio State in the season's final game Saturday at Columbus.

Evashevski, rugged blocking quarterback, was suffering from a digestive disturbance and Harmon was confined to his room with a cold. Dr. George Hammond, team physician, said they would be ready for the game, last of their college careers.

Stave Off Late Rally By New Yorkers; Wilfie Field Shines

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 19.—The New York Rangers stayed off a desperate third-period drive by the New York Americans tonight to win the first National Hockey League game between the two clubs this season, 3-2.

The Stanley Cup holders took a 3-0 lead in the first two periods on a clever exhibition of hockey and appeared on the point of coasting home with an easy victory when Americans staged the assault that brought them within a goal of tying it up.

Wilfie Field scored both American goals, ranging far from his defense post in power plays. The Rangers had piled up their lead with a goal in the first period by Alex Shibicky, on a pass out from Ott Heller, and two in the second, by Bryan Hextal and Alfie Pike.

The crowd of 8,673, small for a clash between these traditional rivals, saw the fastest and most wide-open game of the young season.

Rangers, unbeaten with two wins and two ties, climbed to a third-place tie with Chicago Black Hawks.

Art Coulter, veteran Ranger defenseman, suffered a shoulder injury when he was checked into the boards by Pete Slobodian in the first period. Slobodian suffered a fractured bone in the left cheek when he collided with Phil Watson in the third period and was struck by Watson's stick as they fell.

Red Wings Play Bruins to 4-4 Tie

Boston, Mass., Nov. 19 (U.P.).—Scoring twice in the third period, the Detroit Red Wings tonight earned a 4-4 tie with the Boston Bruins in an overtime national hockey league game before 10,000 fans in Boston Gardens.

The Bruins, winless in three previous starts, unleashed a powerful attack to score four goals in the second period after Detroit had led, 1-0, on a first-period counter by Syd Howe, who also registered the tieing tally midway through the third period. Roy Conacher missed a chance to give Boston victory in the final minute when his penalty shot struck a goal post. Detroit played defensive hockey in the overtime session.

Wisconsin Coach Satisfied With Club

Madison, Wis., Nov. 19 (AP).—Coach Harry Stuhldreher pronounced himself "satisfied" as his Wisconsin Badgers completed their final contact work preparatory to the Minnesota game here Saturday.

Stuhldreher said that veteran End Al Lorenz would be in shape by Saturday. The injury list is shrinking daily. Paul Hirsbrunner, sophomore tackle; Dick Embick, senior guard, and Don Miller, right halfback, are all showing improvement.

Chmelewski And Abrams Are Rematched

Henry Chmelewski, Polish fighter, who won a disputed decision over Georgie Abrams last September in Milwaukee, Wis., was signed yesterday for a return ten-round engagement at Riverside Stadium November 28.

A highly regarded middleweight, Chmelewski now is ranked No. 9 and was signed by Promoter Ray Alvis after a final attempt to obtain the services of Billy Soose failed.

The Polish fighter is getting a $1,500 guarantee, Alvis said.

Fighting on a card in conjunction with the National Boxing Association convention in Milwaukee, Abrams, then fifth ranking 165-pounder, was shunted down into tenth place by the upset.

Lieut. Col. Harvey L. Miller, former District Boxing Commission secretary; Maj. Ernest W. Brown and Claude Owen, members of the commission, witnessed the Milwaukee fight and recommended a return bout, in view of the Milwaukee newspaper reaction to the verdict favoring the Pole. Chmelewski has won 19 fights, lost 2 and fought 2 draws in the past year.

Lumiere Wins Bayard Handicap Over Housework at Bowie

Gelding Steps Mile, Sixteenth in 1:48; Marco, Migration Pay $153 Double

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Bowie, Md., Nov. 19.—In a driving finish, Lumiere, racing in the colors of the Chicago-owned Railroad Stable, withstood a pounding by Jockey Willie Garner t owin the Bayard Handicap featuring the Tuesday program at this point. Always in the first flight of the field of seven, Lumiere crossed the line a half-length in advance of Mrs. H. Plattner's Housework and a neck farther in front of J. Emery's Mon Time.

A crowd of 8,000 picked one of the best days of the fall season to spend at the races. Those who backed the chances of Lumiere collected $13.70 for each $2 investment and watched the 4-year-old gelding go the route of a mile and a sixteenth in creditable time of 1:48.

Lumiere, a son of Lucullite and Lucar, was a keen forward factor from the start. Jockey Garner eased him along and was closest to the pace of Mon Time as the field turned into the backstretch. Milk Punch moved up to join the leaders at the far turn and the three ran head and head to the stretch. Lumiere finally shook off Mon Time to assume command and held on to the end, under powerful handling.

The program opened with the defeat of an odds-on favorite and a victory by J. W. Y. Martin's Maroc. The Sting gelding was an easy winner over Balkan War, the people's choice, in charge of Jockey W. L. Taylor. Third money in the field of 11 went to Rugged Rock. The race was marked by some football tactics on the way to the stretch which eliminated several contenders. The winner paid $10.20.

Those who coupled Maroc with J. P Jones' Migration cashed a $15830 daily double when the On Watch colt defeated 11 other juveniles in the second race Jockey Johnny Gilbert brought the youngster along with a rush on the outside and he downed, among others, Hotzea and Dixie Maid Maroc paid an individual mutuel of $29.50.

The Tall Tree Stable's Bill Farnsworth brought Jockey Gilbert his second winner on the program in the sixth race. Carrying 123 pounds, the 7-year-old son of Crack Brigade held a margin of a half length at the end of the six-furlong sprint. The Trainer, P. L. Kelly entry of Float Away and King's Blue was second nad third in the field of 11. Bill Farnsworth paid $14.40 and was clocked in 1:12 3 3-5.

BALKAN WAR, first away, set good pace and was no match for winner, but was an easy second. RUGGED ROCK, off poorly, went between horses boldly to reach contention and hung in final drive. NICK was knocked back after a quarter and failed to rally.

HOTZEA was keen forward factor from start, set and forced pace with DISCOURAGED and held on gamely, but could not resist winner. DIXIE MAID had a very rough trip and closed with bold rush. ROYAL MARLBORO lacked early speed, moved up menacingly between calls and faltered right at close.

GOOD CONDUCT, first away, drew out, set steady pace and won easily. IDA ROGERS was in thick of forward contention from start and held on gamely in closing test. BETTER HALF was closest to pace early and weakened right at end. LONELY ROAD came from far back to close with good energy. SEALOCH moved up early and weakened. FLYING DUKE went evenly and was held safe.

The latter was allowed to race on own courage early, came out for racing room and closed with rush. MON TIME set good pace and fought it out with good courage. GINO REX was taken up while racing on inside and forwardly early and rallied mildly in closing test. MILK PUNCH moved up menacingly and faltered.

BOOK PLATE could not reach serious contention and closed with good energy. RAWSON was rushed to front and weakened badly in final sixteenth.

Selections at Bowie

Dear Al: Here's good news for Jockey Henri Mora and his followers. Mora, who was set down at Pimlico, will be allowed to ride starting Saturday. Mora has applied to the Maryland Commission for permission to ride Mrs. Dion Kerr's True Call in the $5,000 added Prince Georges Autumn Handicap and he could resume work, but was warned not to make any mistakes. Mora was suspended when he shut off Abbe Pierre in the Grayson Handicap. Mora won that race with True Call. Jockey Jimmy Stout, Bel Air Stud rider, packed his tack, and will vacation until the Florida season opens. Sonny Bonthron, former big league catcher, is policing the jockeys' room here. Mrs. J. B. Belk was a visitor from Charlottesville, Va. She reports she has four yearlings on the farm. Jockey Joe Wagner, leading rider at Havre De Grace, will not be seen in action again until Florida. He and Mrs. Wagner are going on a hunting trip. Let's all rejoice with Trainer Charles H. Warner and his wife. Mrs. Warner lost her sight osme time ago. She underwent an operation recently and word was received yesterday that she has regained her sight. Four claims have been made so far at the meeting. Maydig, Repercussion, Florida Parade and Grano Saltis all changed hands. No winner of the Endurance Handicap (tomorrow's feature) has ever won the Kentucky Derby. However, Whiskery, which placed to Dolan in 1926, went to Kentucky and won the classic the following year. I like to get Friend Oakes' publicity, but those special deliveries are coming in the middle of the night. Sounds too much like a summons when the door bell rings. With two Thanksgivings, Bowie should do all right. Greg Johnson will accept entries here closing day for Charles Town's opening. Paul Sanford was around asking for the Hagerstown champion. The horse Brustigert has been placed on the schooling list and will have to brush up on starting manners before being O. K.'d. George Odom has shipped his horses to Camden, S. C., to winter quarters, and is giving up the idea of racing during the winter months. W. G. Whitney will ship Shanteb to Florida. See you on the rail.
BILL.

First race—Memorist, who has shown good form in juvenile maiden events, drops down into the claiming ranks and has enough class to beat platers of this caliber. Priority hails from a smart outfit and looks like the one to beat off New York form. Miss Identify should go well.

Second race — Trapeze Artist showed little in his last two races, but was a good winner in New York last month. Late works indicate that he is back in form. Busy K. had speed in New England races and rates as the contender. Amnesty is in good hands and dangerous.

Third race—Clingendaal displayed excellent speed in several races this fall and is expected to show improvement over the Bowie track. Dream Boat has been consistently close in late races and shapes up as the principal contender. Little Kiss is an improving horse.

Fourth race—Pirate was closing strongly behind Dawn Attack at Pimlico last week and was the winner of his previous race. He appears well placed in this field and shapes up as the best bet of the day. Largo Mint is at his best and appears capable of handling the others. Sea Chanty is able to do better than recent trials indicate.

Fifth race—Equistar led most of the way in his recent Pimlico test, but gave way to T. M. Dorsett in the final eighth. His pace setting should be keenly contested here, but he figures to hold sway to the wire. Bill Farnsworth is always a contender to be reckoned with in this company. Cockerel was a good second at Pimlico and figures to be close.

Sixth race—Son Altesse turned in a good performance when fourth, five lengths off Dusky Fox and Vintage Port at Pimlico. The competition being of a cheaper nature, he appears well placed. Bar Fly ran a game race behind Rosetown at Pimlico and should be a factor in the late stages. Toddle On could threaten on best effort.

Seventh race—Autumnquest was in a tough spot when racing with Sunphantom and Argella at Pimlico, but this field, being comprised mostly of $1,500 platers, looks like soft pickings. Wayriel has been a consistent winner this fall and her recent victory gives her a good rating here. Mowmart should go well.

Best bet—Pirate.

Taylor, East's Saddle King, Goes From Bowie To Charles Town in Quest of U. S. Jockey Title

Texas Boy Aiming To Beat Earl Dew, California Pride

By Walter Haight

Two tiny athletes, separated by some 3,000 miles, are in the closing stages of a battle that could not be more spirited if they were swinging at each other in a hall closet. In the Eastern corner, at nearby Bowie, is Walter Lee Taylor. In the Western corner, at California's Bay Meadows, is Earl Dew. At stake is the honor of being the leading jockey of 1940.

TAYLOR

These youthful disciples of the saddle are far in front of the Don Meades, the Johnny Longdens and the Basil Jameses, the turf's consistent veterans. Going into this week's racing unofficial figures gave Taylor 238 winners to 237 for Dew.

Although there is no official prize for the winner, both boys are fighting for all they are worth. Taylor goes out to the track, boots hard all afternoon and then can hardly wait to get results from California to see how Dew has fared. Reports from the West Coast say Dew, likewise, is keeping an eye on Taylor.

With the closing of Bowie a week from the coming Saturday, many intimates believed that Taylor would rest until the opening of Tropical Park. However, they were mistaken. The 19-year-old boy from Houston, Tex., will ride throughout the meeting at Charles Town and the peaceful West Virginia town, with its popular racing plant, is likely to be the locale for the coronation of a new ruler of the riding roost.

And don't think for a minute that Taylor's contract employer, Mrs. V. Wyse, of Texas, isn't interested in that jockey race. Going to Charles Town with Taylor will be the 14 horses owned by her, a smart stable, which with outside mounts, should keep Taylor busy.

The decision to perform at Charles Town might have been made because handlers of Dew have been sending him south of the border into Agua Caliente, Mexico, for Sunday racing. If Dew makes that long trip to add a few winners, then Taylor contends he can forego his vacation until after the first of the year. It is a nice break for Charles Town, which has been forging ahead steadily under the leadership of Al J. Boyle.

Taylor came to this section something of a stranger. But was quick to show he is a natural horseman. Taylor is quiet, polite and likeable. He seems to have a highly developed sense of honor, too, something that is not always easy to find around the Nation's jockey rooms. An index to his character is furnished by an incidence that occurred only last week at Rockingham Park.

Contract Employe Sends 14 Horses to West Virginia Oval

According to my informant, the stewards at Rockingham were of the opinion that Taylor's mount had been fouled out of first money in a certain race. Although victory meant much to Taylor, particularly due to the nip-and-tuck race with Dew, the Texas boy insisted that the horse which finished in front was the better of the two horses and that his mount had not been bothered.

Taylor, who rides at 105 pounds, is getting plenty of mounts at Bowie and will be in demand at Charles Town. However, he has to battle every inch of the way because his rivals have no interest in his jockey championship contest. At Charles Town, he will have to adjust himself to the three-quarter mile track and he will be against boys who know every inch of the way.

Despite the rivalry between Taylor and Dew, they are the best of friends and rode together around Chicago.

"I am very fond of Earl and I'm glad that the race has come to such a point that he is sure to win if I don't," said Taylor. "I haven't seen him in several weeks, but I hear from him now and then and I'm sure he's trying just as hard to beat me as I'm trying to whip him."

injury before the start of the Redskins' second game. When the going was tough, Turk always could be counted on to tear gaping holes in the enemy line long enough to let his runner get through. His retirement on Farkas' return was necessary to keep within the player limit, 33.

Returning from a one-day trip to New York, Flaherty reported that the football populace there is all steamed up over prospects of an upset. The Giants will be at full strength but for the absence of Ward Cuff, their gigantic field goal artist.

A record crowd of Washington fans is expected to follow the Skins to New York on almost a dozen special trains, and local ticket offices still are being mobbed daily.

Classy Filly

Race goers concede that Little Risk is one of the classiest three-year-old fillies seen in this country in some time. She is a daughter of Stimulus and the Sir Gallahad III mare, Risk. She was bred by Arthur B. Hancock but races for Warren Wright's Calumet Farm stable.

Kentucky Derby Tentatively Set For May 3

By the Associated Press

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 19.—The tentative date for the sixty-seventh running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs next year is May 3, it was announced by Col. Matt J. Winn's office tonight.

A representative of Winn said the Downs would ask the Kentucky State Racing Commission to approve spring meeting dates opening April 26 and closing May 17.

The Derby stake will be $75,000 added, the same as last year.

Boarding Farm

Thomas Piatt, breeder of race horses for nearly 40 years, operates one of the largest horse establishments in the Bluegrass region of Kentucky. Many of the mares on his several farms are kept for other owners.

Age Is No Determent To Turkey Hunters

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hancock, Nov. 19.—You are never too old or too young to be a successful wild turkey hunter, E. R. McCullough, game warden at Pearre, said today in reporting among the 40 successful turkey hunters this week were Albert Creek, 72, of Hagerstown, and Sonny Murray, 14, and Ernie Miller, 15, of near Hancock, each of whom got a wild turkey in the Hancock area. McCullough reported wild turkeys appear to be more plentiful this year than ever.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Nov. 19 (AP).—Wheat futures ended the day with slight gains after fluctuating uncertainly over a range of about a cent a bushel today.

The bread cereal started lower, influenced by declining securities markets and soybean quotations. The latter dropped as much as 3¾ cents. Corn was firm.

Final prices for wheat were unchanged to ⅛ cent higher than the previous close: December, 89@88⅞; May, 88⅝@88¼. Corn was ¼@⅝ up. December, 64⅞@65; May, 65¼@65⅝. Oats unchanged to ⅛ up; rye ⅛@½ off; soybeans 3¼@3¾ lower, and lard 8@10 higher.

The wheat market undertone was nervous. After a lower start, wheat rallied ½ to ⅝ cents at times, only to back down partially under the weight of selling. Trade was generally light. The May contract advanced from 87⅞ to 88⅝ cents at times, but failed to retain much of the gain at the close.

Soybeans were one of the principal unsettling factors, breaking sharply at the start to $1.01½ for December, off 3¾ cents. All deliveries finished the day at or near the lowest levels of the session. Some traders said the reaction was to be expected after the sharp rise since the first of the month of almost 23 cents to levels around 40 cents above the season's low point.

Sugar Futures

New York, Nov. 19 (AP).—Domestic sugar futures lost 1 to 2 points today when larger offerings from trade houses outweighed buying for Cuban account and covering against sales of actuals. Turnover totaled 7,500 tons.

The world list, retarded by uncertainty of overseas demand, dipped ⅛ point but sales amounted to only 1,700 tons: December, .76½; March, .80½b.

A price of 4.35 cents prevailed again in refined locally as California and Hawaiian Sugar Refining Company came back to that level for eastern territory.

Willard, Near 80, Expected to Quit As B. & O. Head

Baltimore, Nov. 19 (AP).—The Evening Sun said today that Daniel Willard, veteran president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, "will suggest to the directors of the road at their meeting on November 27 that they find a younger man to fill his position."

Willard was out of town and sources close to him declined comment on the paper's report.

"Mr. Willard has offered his resignation to the board each year since he was 70 years old and each year the directors have refused to consider it," the Evening Sun said.

"At the meeting next week, it is said, Mr. Willard will make the suggestion that he be relieved of his duties, with greater emphasis than he has made it in the past, and will call attention to the fact that he will be 80 years old on January 28."

Cotton Futures

New York, Nov. 19 (AP).—Cotton futures reached new high prices for the season again today, with gains of 4 to 9 points.

Brokers saw three factors primarily responsible for the rise; rumors that a high loan rate for the staple might be set for next year; the holding movement in the South by interests hoping for higher levels; continued flow of cotton into Government loan stores.

The trade heard talk of a 15 or 16-cent-a-pound rate, which would compare with the present rate of between 9 and 10 cents.

Pleasing Dividend News Buoys Stocks; Early Losses Reduced or Canceled

New York, Nov. 19.—Stocks steadied in today's market after an early sell-off centering on steels and other recent industrial favorites. In fairly active dealings declnies ranged from fractions to more than a point around mid-day. A litti support then arrived and extreme setbacks were reduced or canceled in many instances at the close.

A number of pleasing dividends, some unexpected in Wall Street, helped the list to regain part of its equilibrium. At that, many traders refused to work up any real buying enthusiasm becau- of fears new shocks from the European war might be in the offing. Foreign dispatches, stressing feverish Axis conferences with Balkan powers were viewed as indicating a possible new shift in the conflict.

Business needs, on the whole, remained about all that could be desired by bullish forces but an assortment of earnings statements again accentuated the pressure which mounting taxes are exerting on corporation profits.

Financial circles were given a pleasant surprise by Santa Fe directors who voted a payment of $1 on the common. It was the first disbursement on this issue since September, 1937, when $2 was declared. The junior stock climbed 1½ points to 18¼ and the preferred issue was up at 3 at 58½, a new top for the year.

The Republic Steel board announced regular quarterly dividends of $1.50 each on its two preferred stocks which rose 1⅝ and 3 points, respectively. The common finished ⅛ higher. Chairman Girdler said he thought the steel industry would run "full" through 1941, but that "it depends a lot on Hitler and Winston Churchill."

U. S. Steel was unchanged, Bethlehem down ⅛ and Youngstown Sheet up ½. On the offside were Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Du Pont, Johns Manville, Anaconda, Kennecott, Douglas Aircraft, Eastern Air Lines and N. Y. Central.

In a slightly irregular Curb modest improvement was posted for Electric Bond & Share, Glen Alden Coal, Humble Oil and Phoenix Securities. In the losing division were Aluminum of America, American Cyanamid "B," Gulf Oil and McWilliams dredging. The turnover here was around 109,000 shares, against 100,000 the day before.

Bond market prices shifted uneasily today with investment buying pushing some issues to new 1940 tops while others were in supply at losses.

Two groups in the Associated Press averages—industrials and lowyelds—edged into new high ground at 105.1 and 113.8, respectively, while rails were unchanged and declines ruled in utilities and foreign dollar loans.

Sales of $8,297,000, par value, compared with $5,309,600 on Monday.

A great deal of activity centered in low to medium priced rails. Heavily traded issues included Missouri-Kansas-Texas 5s, up 2⅜ at 12⅜ on news the company would pay the December 1 interest on its first 4s.

U. S. Governments ended 1 17-32 points higher to unchanged on light turnover.

Declines of a point or more were in the majority in the foreign group and included Denmark 4½s, Milan 6½s and Argentine 4s.

Increase Is Forecast In Crude Oil Demand

Special Dispatch to The Post

The Bureau of Mines yesterday forecast the December market demand for domestic crude oil at 3,560,000 barrels daily on a total of 110,360,000 for the month.

This was 10,000 barrels a day higher than the November forecast and 10,000 more than the daily average demand last December.

Officials estimated crude oil exports at 3,900,000 barrels, the same as for November.

Tulsa, Nov. 19 (AP).—The daily crude oil production in the United States declined 25,555 barrels to 3,571,865 for the week ended November 16, the Oil and Gas Journal said today.

Iron Ore Melting Sets 17-Year High

Cleveland, Nov. 19 (AP).—The steel industry, spurred by defense demands, consumed in October the greatest monthly melt of Lake Superior iron ore since May, 1923. Consumption last month, as announced today by the Lake Superior Iron Ore Association, was 6,051,347 tons, against September's 5,671,918. The May, 1923, figure was 6,118,540 tons.

Consumption of Lake Superior ore so far this year totals 50,280,289 tons, compared with 33,344,946 in the like 1939 period.

Iron and Steel Scrap Prices Continue Rise

Cleveland, Nov. 19 (AP).—For the third successive week steelmaking grades of iron and steel scrap have been advanced in the Buffalo district, "Daily Metal Trade" reported today. The scrap is quoted 50 cents higher on a scale of 12,000 tons of heavy melting steel to a leading mill at $21.50 to $22.

Cast iron borings also have been marked up 50 cents a ton. Scrap is showing strength in other districts but prices for the moment are holding, and no shortage is reported, the trade publication said.

Husband Your Assets, Canadians Are Urged

Montreal, Nov. 19. — (Canadian Press)—Canada's war effort will demand "a tremendous sacrifice, financially and otherwise, on the part of all Canadians," A. A. Magee, president of Barclays Bank (Canada), said at the annual meeting today.

"It behooves us, therefore, to husband and conserve our personal and national resources, thereby making them available for government war financing" added Mr. Magee.

Gold Imports Slump In Nov. 13 Week

By the Associated Press

Gold imports slumped to $42,638,731 in the week ended November 13 from $73,270,991 the preceding week.

The Commerce Department said the drop, resulting in one of the lowest totals in many weeks, was due to the lack of customary large shipments from Canada on behalf of the British Empire.

$67,000,000 FHLB Issues Far Oversold

Two Loans Marketed At Record Low Interest Rate

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 19.—The Federal Home Loan Bank today marketed in record time and at record interest rates a total of $67,000,000 of debentures and announced heavy oversubscription of the two issues.

One loan of $15,000,000 series "F" debentures bearing ½ per cent interest and due in April, 1941, were sold on an interest basis of .20 of 1 per cent. This was a record low in interest return to the purchaser.

Another issue of $52,000,000 series "G" debentures due in 1942 were sold on an interest yield basis of .45 of 1 per cent, a figure duplicating the previous low for this type of obligation.

Proceeds will be used to refund $25,000,000 of 2 per cent consolidated debentures due on December 1 and provide additional funds for advances to member institutions to take care of increased financing of homes by these banks.

Meanwhile, a sharp pickup in State and municipal bond financing in the next few weeks was indicated in a survey today showing roughly $65,000,000 of various types of loans were under discussion between officials and bankers.

Heading the list of probable offerings was the State of New York, whose fiscal officers were reported to be discussing an offering of $30,000,000 in bonds around the first of December. No details have yet been decided upon, it was said.

Kansas City officials were reported to be considering a plan to market $10,000,000 of refunding bonds and if the decision was reached to go through with it the issue was expected also about December 1.

Officials of Los Angeles Water & Power were understood to be working on a plan to market $15,000,000 in bonds in the near future, and the City of Detroit was reported to be planning a refunding issue of about $8,400,000 later this month.

Girdler Sees Boom in Steel Through 1941

Special Dispatch to The Post

Cleveland, Nov. 19.—Near-capacity steel operations will continue through 1941 in the opinion of Tom Girdler, chairman of the board of the Republic Steel Corporation.

Following a meeting of the directorate today, Girdler commented to newsmen:

"I think the steel industry is going to run 'full' through 1941. That depends a lot upon Hitler and Winston Churchill, but I still think it's going to run 'full'."

Girdler was asked about John L. Lewis' expressed hope that Republic, among other companies, might soon sign a collective bargaining contract.

"There's nothing whatever to anything about a contract," responded Girdler, who tangled frequently with Lewis in the "little steel" strike of 1937. "There's nothing to it any way, shape or form. There have been no negotiations on the subject."

The Republic chairman observed that British buying was "increasing all the time." He said he could not estimate what percentage of steel production was currently going into defense works.

Earlier in the day, Republic directors authorized the setting aside of $6,300,000 to purchase 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock of the company, opening the way to possible payment of a common stock dividend.

The fund will redeem approximately half of the outstanding 119,597 shares of 6 per cent cumulative convertible preferred.

This action, together with the recent removal of all dividend arrearages, "now opens the way for common stock dividends as profits of the corporation may warrant them," an announcement stated.

Republic has not paid a common dividend since the $1.24 a share directors declared in 1930, shortly after the company's formation.

Texas A. & M. Rated as Top College Eleven

Stanford Is Second By Williamson System; Minnesota Outs Vols

The championship of the Bix Six will be decided by the William and Mary-Richmond game, where the Spiders are favored by a shade.

On Saturday most football interest will be attached to the traditional Penn-Cornell game in which the Quakers will be slight favorites. Although nothing hinges on the game but prestige the clash of Notre Dame and Northwestern will command secondary interest. In our books the Wildcats will win. In another close one Colgate gets the nod over Columbia.

Other leading Saturday games include Washington State over Gonzaga, despite Gonzaga's upset of Detroit; Georgetown over George Washington in the big attraction of the season in the Nation's Capital; Hardin-Simmons to continue its winning streak over San Francisco, Manhattan to nose out Holy Cross, and Michigan State over West Virginia.

Gallovich Tops S. C. Scorers; Thomas, 2d

Wake Forest, V. P. I. Stars Only Players With Chance for Honors

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Nov. 19.—Either Tony Gallovich, of Wake Forest, or Herb Thomas, of Virginia Tech, will be the leading football scorer of the Southern Conference this season unless another contender now far behind goes on a last-minute touchdown spree.

Gallovich, elusive halfback and tallying leader since early in the fall, has a total of 62 points as compared with 60 for Thomas. The Wake Forest star has scored at least one touchdown in six of the nine games played by the Deacons and kicked an extra point in a seventh tilt. His biggest day was against William Jewell when he accounted for 16 points. He tallied two touchdowns each in the George Washington and Marshall victories.

Thomas, also a halfback, has scored almost one-half of V. P. I.'s total points for the season. He ran wild in a conference game against Furman to register 24 points.

Both players have one more chance. Thomas' final bid will come Thursday when Tech meets V. M. I. at Roanoke. Gallovich will rest up from the long trip to Texas Tech this week and close out against South Carolina on November 28.

They are still considerably short of the 91 points rolled up by John Polanski, of Wake Forset, last year. Polanski's total this season is 36 points.

Thir ranking point-getter now with 48 is Arthur Jones, Richmond's ace back, who ends his collegiate career against William and Mary Thursday. Dewey Proctor, Furman fullback, has 46 points and his sopohmore running mate, Ralph Hamer, has 44. Their big opportunity comes Saturday when Furman meets Clemson in a game which the Tigers need to clinch the Southern Conference championship.

Sir Herbert Barker

Another son of that most prolific sire of top horses, Sir Gallahad III, which will begin a stud career in 1941, is Sir Herbert Barker. This horse is owned by Mrs. Graham Lewis but is managed by Leslie Combs II, of Lexington, Ky.

Redskins Hold Lead in Most Departments

1,324 yards last season. Already in possession of the completion record for a single game, 23, Baugh has an efficiency average of 64 per cent and appears certain to beat the 61 per cent mark set in 1939 by Frank Filchock.

Did someone say Filchock? He's right back there in the stretch, topped only by Baugh in efficiency, with 52 per cent. Frank has completed 29 out of 53 passes and is tied for fifth place in the passing race. Cecil Isbell, of the Packers, is second; New York's Eddie Miller is third, and O'Brien and Brooklyn's Ace Parker are tied for fifth place.

SCORING: Todd's 48 points have him in front, but hold on—in third place with 42 is Washington's Jimmy Johnston, while Bob Masterson is right behind in fourth with 40. Cleveland's John Drake and Johnston have scored seven touchdowns each, but Drake has two extra points for 44 and second place. Rookie Bob Seymour ranks well up with four touchdowns for 24 points.

PASS RECEIVING: The Redskins aren't first here, but of the first seven, four are Redskins. Philadelphia's Don Looney leads with 42 caught, Green Bay's Don Hutson is next, and then come the Redskins' Jimmy Johnston, third; Wayne Millner, fourth; Dick Todd, fifth; Detroit's Lloyd Cardwell, sixth, and Washington's Charley Malone, seventh.

PUNTING: It's Baugh again, with 33 punts for a 50-yard average, 7 better than the next man, the Chicago Cardinals' Hugh McCullough.

It might be mentioned that while the ground-gaining department is ruled by Detroit's Whizzer White, with 474 yards, the Redskins are represented in the first 15 by Dick Todd, seventh, and Jim Johnston, fourteenth.

U. S. L. T. A. Names All Incumbents

New York, Nov. 19 (U.P.)—Headed by President Holcombe Ward, of New York, all incumbents have been nominated for reelection by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, it was announced today.

Nomination is virtually tantamount to election and first vice president Joseph Wear, of Philadelphia, second vice president Lawrence Baker, of Washington, Secretary Gordon Small, of Cincinnati, and Treasurer Russell Kingston, of Orange, N. J., probably will continue in office.

Regional vice presidents nominated included Frank Sulloway, Concord, N. H., and Dr. William P. Jacobs, Clinton, S. C.

was carried off the field with a broken toe. But he had strength enough each day to drag himself to the officers' mess.

Al had a couple of sore elbows in the Army, from pitching, and once he almost had to fire a gun. "They put me in charge of a couple of guys to watch one of those big disappearing guns," Al recollected. "As if anybody could steal the thing! How would a crook feel with a hot Howitzer on his hands? Anyway, I gave my privates a night off and I'm sleeping one cold night when an officer wakes me up with a kick in the rib. He made me go out there and watch that darn cannon. Well, I'm walking up and down near it when I hear a rustle in the weeds. I yell the thing about 'approach and be recognized' but I don't hear any answer. I figure I'm too deaf, or may be they're going to make a rush for the cannon. I hadn't learned how to shoot my gun, but I got a bullet in there and I'm just about to close my eyes and fire when a mule walks out."

Happily, for the new defense program, Al has passed beyond the 35-year limit. He'll be back in baseball next season, an utterly unique figure in the game. He traveled 50,000 miles last year, to 111 minor league towns, appeared before 400,000 spectators, and capped a great season of clowning with knockout appearances at the World Series. This is Al's thirtieth year in the baseball business, having been made a pro at Haverstraw, N. Y., in 1910. He pitched a game up there and was paid $6 by the team's captain and first baseman, a tall, thin young man named James A. Farley.

"I've been underpaid ever since," Al roared, liquefying Mons. Shor's fresh batch of Jello.

Listen!
with Glynn

(WJSV Announcer Gunnar Back pinch-hits today for Paul Glynn.)

Sooner or later the radio announcer who is moving with a clear eye forward must make a decision about the word "either." Is he to pronounce it EYE-ther or EE-ther?

Take my Swedish aunt. She became firm about "either" when her husband was made president of the school board. She definitely chose EYE-ther. My uncle, the president, like any good Swede, continued to say EE-der, a third possibility.

My experience has been that the average announcer from Keokuk comes to grips with this matter about the time he begins to make $50 a week somewhere. Yes, $50 a week, I have observed, can be made by announcers somewhere. In such cases, it is likely to be EYE-ther. Then there are other announcers who can no more say EYE-ther than they can say with ease "ex-PERT workmanship" instead of the comfortable "EX-pert workmanship," which is also quite correct.

The truth of the matter is EE-ther is good American and comes first. EYE-ther is British, but so is Harris tweed.

Among the crew at WJSV, Charles Daly is, of course, an EYE-ther man. Reg Allen and Lee Vickers go along with him. I think Hugh Conover and Joe King still stay with us boys in the back room and use EE-ther.

Like my Swedish uncle, it's nothing at all for me to slip into EE-der.

Contract Bridge

The take-out double is one of the most disputed bids in contract, and even the experts disagree on its interpretation in certain instances. Ely Culbertson, who probably counts the greatest number of followers of any master, sums up the situation like this:

"A double is meant for a take-out, provided that—

"(1) Partner has made no bid or double;

"(2) The double is made at the doubler's first opportunity;

"(3) The doubled bid is one no trump or one, two or three of a suit.

"A player who has opened the bidding with one of a suit may make a take-out double on the next round if his partner passes. Also, if a player repeats his take-out double (his partner having passed due to an intervening bid), it is still a take-out double if the situation conforms to the requirements above."

Using this advice as a basis, we answer a fricky question on the take-out double. Mrs. T. V. K., reads, "South opens three spades; West, my partner, doubles; North bids four hearts; I pass. My hand:

♠ A Q 10 9
◇ J 8 7 5
♣ 10 6 3

"Is this three-double of my partner's a business double or is she looking for a suit? What does a three-bid double mean?"

Under normal circumstances Mrs. T. V. K.'s partner's double of a pre-emptive three-bid is for take-out; however, much leeway is given the partner, who may leave in the double if he believes a set to be more profitable.

In this particular. East, holding four spades, ace, queen, ten, nine, it is obvious that West is doubling for a take-out, unless South has bid a ridiculous psychic.

The intervening bid allowed East to pass, which was wise, since her hand was not of the aggressive type and it had no defense agains four hearts.

According to Culbertson, a double of three in a suit indicates at least four honor tricks, with at least three cards in each of the unbid suits.

Texts of President's Note, Green's Reply

Message Urges Peace And Labor Official Says A.F.L. Is Willing

New Orleans, Nov. 19 (AP).—The text of President Roosevelt's letter to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, follows, together with Green's reply by telegram:

Dear Mr. Green:

Please extend to the officers, the delegates and the members of the American Federation of Labor my congratulations and felicitations upon this occasion of the sixtieth convention of the organization. At the same time, let me wish, with all your members, for a meeting out of which will come substantial good and benefit to American wage earners, to American business, to American farmers and to the general public.

I had hoped to be able to attend the New Orleans convention and to speak to my friends there in person; but that was part of a plan I had which included the possibility of a cruise and also the spending of Thanksgiving at Warm Springs. As you know, all plans have to be tentative in these days of crisis, and subject to change according to circumstances of the hour. It still is inadvisable for me to be further away from Washington than a distance which will permit my return in seven or eight hours. Reluctantly, therefore, and with deep regret, I have to forego the privilege of attending the New Orleans convention.

United Democracy

This nation of ours and its workers have made great economic and social gains since your 1933 convention was held here in Washington. Representatives of organized labor have played an important part in the shaping and carrying out of the progressive program which has meant so much, not only to wage earners, but to farmers and business men as well.

Now we have come to a period which demands intense and sustained cooperation so that our beloved Republic can present, in any emergency which might be forced upon us, the solid, imposing front of a great and united democracy. In order to do this successfully all of use are called upon to work together in a common purpose and for the common good that these United States shall stand forever free and that the institutions, we as a free people enjoy, shall ever be preserved. To this end, labor can make its contribution along with the rest of the American people. I am confident that this contribution will be generously and gladly given without reservation.

Labor will lend its aid in planning for full efficiency of industrial production, in planning for selection, training and placement of new workers, in planning for full labor supply, in maintaining the social gains of recent labor and social legislation, in maintaining sound and uninterrupted work in the defense industries and in promoting sound employer-worker relationship at time like this when the steady flow of production may be our greatest need. Sacrifice may be necessary in the future for everyone. Responsible action and self-discipline, physical and moral fitness are now required of all of us as our part in the defense of our country and democracy.

Much Needed Harmony

Among the things which labor will contribute is, I venture to suggest, an unselfish, a far-sighted and a patriotic effort to bring about a just and an honorable peace within the now divided labor movement. Labor leaders, with the interest of the Nation at heart and the advantage of their followers in mind can, I am sure, find the way to reach such a peace.

Peace may not be easy to achieve and the intricate problems involved may not be easy to solve. But when men of honor and good intentions sit down together they can work out a solution which will restore the much-needed harmony either by unity or by a sensible working arrangement.

We as a people today have the common determination to put our country above all else. Please God we shall always keep it so as to preserve our priceless heritage of the world's greatest democracy which came from the fathers of the Republic. It can only be kept by building upon that sound foundation in the patriotic way, in the democratic way, as a great and as a united people, now and for evermore.

By William Green

The text of Green's reply follows:

Please accept the profound thanks of all those in attendance at our convention for your most inspiring message. Be assured of the full support of the membership of the American Federation of Labor in the execution of the Government's defense plans and policies.

You can rely upon us to give freely of our skill, training, service and labor to America in order to safeguard and protect our common heritage of freedom, liberty and democracy and in the realization of the common objectives set forth in the first paragraph of your appealing communication wherein you state:

"Labor will lend its aid in planning for full efficiency of industrial production, in planning for selection, training and placement of new workers, in planning for full labor supply, in maintaining the social gains of recent labor and social legislation, in maintaining sound and uninterrupted work in the defense industries and in promoting sound employer-worker relationship at a time like this when the steady flow of production may be our greatest need.

"Sacrifice may be necessary in the future for everyone. Responsible action and self-discipline, physical and moral fitness are now required of all of us as our part in the defense of our country and democracy."

We deeply appreciate the suggestion you make that "an unselfish, a farsighted and patriotic effort be made to bring about a just and honorable peace within the now divided labor movement." Fortunately we can officially make answer to your suggestion in a most definite and sincere way.

The executive council included in its report to the sixtieth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor the following recommendation: "The executive council is firmly of the opinion that labor in America can be solidified and united through affiliation with the American Federation of Labor. In order to accomplish this purpose and realize this objective, the executive council reports to the sixtieth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor that it has endeavored to reestablish unity within the labor movement through conferences with representatives of the C. I. O. and has endeavored to bring about a settlement of existing differences during the past year. The committee representing the American Federation of Labor stands ready and willing to meet with a committee representing the C. I. O for the purpose of negotiating a settlement, anywhere, any time, any place."

Your suggestion, therefore, that when men of honor and good intentions sit down together they can work out a solution which will restore the much-needed harmony either by unity or by a sensible working arrangement is coincidental with this recommendation of the executive council to the convention now in session.

I am confident the convention will concur in the recommendations of the executive council by officially authorizing the committee representing the American Federation of Labor to meet with a committee representing the C. I. O. around the conference table for the purpose of negotiating an honorable peace and the reestablishment of unity and solidarity within the ranks of labor.

I repeat, Mr. President, that these assurances will be carried out in good faith and with all sincerity whenever opportunity for the American Federation of Labor to do so presents itself.

Now, Bombs Won't Rock Her Crib

Survivor of Ship Torpedoing Tells Of Seeing 24 Die

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 19.—The armed British liner Samaria arrived today from Liverpool via Halifax with 884 passengers, most of them refugees from the war zone. All passengers had worn their lifebelts constantly during the voyage.

Among them was Mrs. Ann Haltrecht, who said that before she left London a small bomb went through the crib of her 14-month-old son and exploded after it had passed through the floor below.

She and the baby had gone to bed after having been in an air shelter until 2 a. m., she said. "After an initial explosion which blew the roof from the house," she related, "I saw a small bomb come down through the sky. It fell into the baby's crib—we were on the second floor—went on through and exploded—and when it did the baby went up in the air and I went with him.

"The house was practically demolished but neither of us was injured, except I was somewhat bruised."

Her husband is with the Royal Engineers. She and the child are on their way to stay with her sister, Mrs. Lily Norton, of Miami, Fla.

Another passenger with a tale of war's horrors was Arthur E. Dowling, of Melbourne, Australia, a survivor of the torpedoeing of the City of Benares last September 17.

Dowling said that he was in a lifeboat with 28 others when it was torpedoed and that he "watched 24 of the 28 die."

"The boat was water-logged and almost useless," Dowling related. "The passengers in it drowned practically sitting up. As each one died, I took off his lifebelt, prayed a few words, and eased them into the sea."

About 60 children and some 400 Jewish refugees were aboard.

Return of Naval Bases to Britain Would Put Eire Directly in War, de Valera Asserts

By Wallace Carroll.

Copyright by the United Press

Dublin, Eire, Nov. 19.—Premier de Valera, leader of a nation which has just come through 25 years of war and economic conflict, spoke today of Eire's determination to remain neutral.

In a frank talk across a green-topped desk, he explained to me why he could not surrender to Britain naval bases on the south and west coast of Ireland which Britain restored to Eire in 1938.

The Taioseach (head of the government) made it clear at the outset that he did not wish to say anything which might foster ill feeling between Eire and Britain. His consistent aim, he said, has been to secure understanding and goodwill. But he made it equally clear that Eire will not change her attitude about the bases.

"It must be remembered," he said, "that these Irish ports had been held by Britain against the will of the Irish people. In giving them back Britain was only restoring to Eire what was her own. It was an act of restitution.

"I am not denying if one had been using something that belongs to another, to give it back to the rightful owner is sacrifice, and a repression of selfishness which is difficult. But if there is to be justice in the world at all such sacrifices must be made.

"To give us back the ports only on condition they would be returned to Britain when she wanted them would in fact be not to restore them at all. And at the time of the agreement in 1938 it was made quite clear, both in the British Parliament and ours, that restoration was absolute and without conditions, expressed or implied.

"This question," he continued, "is one which involves our national sovereignty and our people's will. It also is one which involves the safety of our people.

"You in the United States are 3,000 miles away from immediate bombing. If we handed over the ports to Britain we would thereby involve ourselves directly in the war with all its consequences.

"You have seen what happened to London, notwithstanding its defenses. Eire is not a nation which can spend 10,000,000 pounds a day for armaments and if London is suffering as it is, what would happen to Dublin, Cork and other Irish cities relatively unprotected? No doubt we have to face these dangers but no nation can be asked to court them."

Chevy Chase Boys Find Mother Dead

Two boys came home for lunch yesterday to find their mother, wife of George R. Cassidy, assistant chief clerk of the Veterans Administration, dead by gas in the house at 6711 Forty-fourth Street, Chevy Chase, Md.

John, 10, and Jimmy, 9, found the front door of the house locked when they returned at noon from the Bethesda Elementary School. They tried the rear door and found it locked, also, but smelled gas.

Bethesda police said the boys ran a ladder up to a window, climbed in and found Mrs. Alice Cassidy, 36, dead in the kitchen and the house filled with gas from open jets of the kitchen range. They dragged their mother's body into the dining room and called police.

Dr. C. E. Hawks, the Montgomery County medical examiner, is investigating. Sergt. Joseph B. Nolte, of the Bethesda police, said that he had learned Mrs. Cassidy had been in ill health for a long time.
